Files Complaint; Labor
Commissioner Silent.

A. U. Hogan, manager of the Dublin office of the State Employment Service, was secretly suspended Wednesday by Labor Commissioner Ben T. Huiet on the complaint of Herschel Lovett, Dublin newspaper owner, that Hogan was participating in politics in violation of the Hatch act.

When asked yesterday to comment on the suspension, Huiet went into a closed conference with his aides and came out with the following statement:

"I have no statement to make with reference to the matter of A. U. Hogan, manager of the Georgia State Employment Office, division of the Department of Labor, Dublin, Ga., because anything I might say may be misconstrued by the parties concerned."

This is the first time the newly amended Hatch act has been invoked in Georgia. Despite Huiet's refusal to talk, Lovett gave the following story of the case to The Constitution over long-distance telephone from Dublin:

Complained In Letter.

About three weeks ago Lovett wrote a letter to Huiet complaining about the activities of Hogan and charging that he was actively supporting the candidacy of his brother, R. L. Hogan, who is opposing Lovett for a seat in the house of representatives.

In this letter Lovett said he explained his attention had been called to the fact that Hogan was using his position to influence votes. He said Hogan had admitted his activities and Lovett added he wanted to know Huiet's attitude.

Huiet replied that if such were the case he would have to suspend or fire Hogan under the Hatch act. Tuesday Lovett summoned Hogan to his office and told him he was going to call Huiet and complain in his presence. This he did, explaining to Huiet over the telephone that Hogan had admitted participation in politics.

"Admitted Activities."

Hogan then took the telephone and talked to Huiet. According to Lovett, Hogan admitted his political activities to the labor commissioner, declaring he was working in his brother's campaign. Huiet then got Lovett back on the telephone and said that since Hogan had admitted his activities

SUSPENDED—J. C. (Bugs) Glover, suspended chief of the State Highway Department, was named yesterday in reports of highway investigators that three warden's houses had been built by the state on land owned by Glover. The houses are in Dawson, Miller and Dade counties, the reports said.

LES VERRIERES, Franco-Swiss Frontier, Aug. 29.—(P)—France and Mexico have signed an agreement at Vichy whereby all Spanish refugees in France since the Spanish civil war, numbering about 250,000, are to migrate to Mexico, it was reported tonight.

It also was reported from Vichy that the Mexican government was negotiating with Washington to charter United States ships to transport the homeless Spaniards to Mexico.

Three conditions were reported attached to the agreement:

1. That transportation expenses and upkeep in France for the refugees from today until their departure will be paid by the Spanish government;
2. Mexico to accept all Spaniards without regard to creed or political beliefs, and
3. France reserves the right to hand over any common-law criminal in the ranks of the refugees if the Spanish government asks her to do so.

Houses Built on Glover's Land.

Attorney General Ellis Arnall yesterday took a hand in the investigation of alleged irregularities in the State Highway Department after members of the Highway Board released reports of investigators that three warden's houses, each costing about $2,500, had been built by the state on land owned by J. C. (Bugs) Glover, suspended chief of the board's convict forces.

"In all cases in which the state or highway department has suffered any loss by virtue of any irregularities, this office will take appropriate action to see to it that the state's interest is fully protected," the attorney general said.

Writes Miller.

At the same time he dispatched a letter to W. L. Miller, chairman of the highway board, asking him if he would "immediately notify the State Law Department of any instances of which you have knowledge or which may come to your attention whereby any employee of the State Highway Department has committed any alleged irregularity by which the highway department of the state has suffered or may suffer loss."

He requested Miller and the board members to see that all employees' bonds were in proper legal form and that employees of the department who handle any state funds were properly bonded.

Miller, Lawson L. Patten and Herman Watson, members of the board, were present yesterday at a conference at which reports of the investigators were disclosed. Investigation of alleged irregularities in the 15 convict camps began July 12 and has not been completed. The results will be revealed from time to time, the highway officials said. Commissioner Patten said federal inspectors were conducting a similar investigation.

Three Reports.

Reports of three investigators showed Glover had owned lots on which the warden's houses were built by convict forces and with state material at the camps situated in Dawson, Miller and Dade counties.

The reports showed photostatic

Installation of Diesel Engines by Railroads Is Demanded.

By WILLARD COPE.

Husky-voiced daytime dwellers of midtown Atlanta, where the choo-choos ply merrily, coughing away loyally at their work and sending up a great swoosh of asphyxiating, cinder-laden blackness with every turn of the driving-rod pins, were speaking freely yesterday.

They wanted Diesel-motored engines for the countless switching operations over the tracks in their midst which bring them inflamed respiratory tracts in winter, added grittiness of epidemics and nerves all summer, enlarge the overhead on their habitations, dust up no little the various establishments where they work, and do virtually nothing to add to the attraction of the already none too attractive commercial scene.

"Practical" Solution.

"I don't see why not," was the general burden. "Diesel engines aren't any experiment. It isn't as if a huge investment of many millions for overhead electrical installations were needed. With the Diesels you overcome the smoke in a practical way."

Representative of the opinions expressed were these:

E. S. Papp, president, Atlanta Chamber of Commerce: "I haven't the faintest hesitation in saying the railroads ought to co-operate in making the center of town a more desirable place. The city, the property owners, the people who have to work there and the pedestrians who must pass that way are entitled to a more presentable and a more liveable situation."

"There is no question that the smoke and noise made by the present methods employed in the railroad seriously affect the efficiency of every person working in that region. Health is involved. Property is involved. Equity is involved in every phase of the situation. A practical solution seems apparent, and should be effected."

H. F. Linder, 5 Plaza way: "I am just off this smoke belt. Atlanta has grown into a big town in many ways, but that railroad cut is operated as if we were still back in the '90s. I think the trade this city provides ought to justify more consideration."

WELCOME, MR. FARMER—Hoping that this friendly "picketing" farmer symbolizes millions of farm voters for the Democratic ticket, Edward J. Flynn (left), national chairman, and Henry A. Wallace (right), vice presidential candidate, yesterday were glad to entertain C. C. Armstrong, of Ames, Iowa. The sign on Mr. Armstrong's back, "Farmers Feed the Nation—Keep Wallace," appeared at Des Moines notification ceremonies for Mr. Wallace.

Keep Roosevelt
To Bar Hitler,
Wallace UrgesRepublicans Accused of Being U. S. Appeasement Party.

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 29.—(P)—Henry Agard Wallace tonight declared another term for President Roosevelt would constitute an antidote for Hitlerism in the western hemisphere.

Formally accepting the Democratic vice presidential nomination here before a cheering, constalk-waving crowd, the candidate said:

"Most Republicans may not realize it, but their party is the party of appeasement in the United States today."

Democratic party officials estimated the crowd at 7,000. Titled the speech "The New Fight for Freedom," Wallace declared this nation "must face the fact that the dictators have definite designs against this hemisphere."

"Divide and Conquer."

"Their tactics here as in Europe are to divide and conquer," he said. "They hope by propaganda and bartering agreements to set one nation against another. Out of the confusion which they have created they hope to build political power and eventually military power."

"They hope to get rid of the unyielding Roosevelt."

The nominee said he did not wish to imply that the Republican leaders are wilfully and consciously giving aid and comfort to Hitler.

"But I want to emphasize that replacement of Roosevelt, even if it were by the most patriotic leadership that could be found, would cause Hitler to rejoice. I do not believe the American people will turn their backs on the man Hitler wants to see defeated."

Maintaining that President Roosevelt has "understood the Hitler menace from the start," Wallace declared:

"Powerful elements in our opposition will, if the Republicans come into power, force us to make one economic concession after another to the totalitarian countries. These appeasers will have their way if the Republicans win, because they have contributed largely, both politically and financially, to the Republican cause. These people believe the Republicans in power would give them profitable business with a German-controlled Europe at the earliest possible moment."

Virtually All of French Africa Scorns Peace,

By the Associated Press.

German war planes circled furtively about London's outskirts last night and early today, in their sixth consecutive night-time appearance, and a steady glow rising from the city's horizon indicated incendiary bombs had been dropped. Two scream bombs were dropped in London district, causing a number of casualties.

More than an hour after the high-muzzled buzz of their engines was first heard, however, central London had not been touched and no general air raid alarm had been sounded.

Thus, it appeared that a "nuisance" visitation was under way—one designed not so much to destroy London buildings as to

Two more French African territories switched their allegiance to Britain last night in the war against the Axis powers. The French Cameroons and Congo followed the lead of the Chad territory—Italian Libya's southern neighbor, it was announced by General Charles de Gaulle, London leader of the "Free Frenchmen" and recently sentenced to death in absentia by the Vichy government of Marshal Petain.

'Won't Tolerate

Protests AssertBucharest Government Is Held Responsible for Eventualities.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Aug. 30.—(Friday)—Tass, official news agency, disclosed today Soviet Russia had accused Rumania of continued violation of her frontier and said repetitions of these "provocative acts could not be tolerated."

Deputy Commissar for Foreign Affairs Dekanozoff handed two protests to the Rumanian minister, Grigore Gafencu, the agency said, one of them in reply to a Rumanian note alleging frontier violations by Soviet troops and aircraft.

The first note delivered August 19 reported Rumanian troops had fired on Soviet border guards and drawn the latter's fire. Rumania lodged a counter-protest six days later, the agency said, charging Soviet aircraft had violated Rumanian territory.

(It was said that Soviet frontier guards in several instances have been compelled to return the fire of Rumanian troops, the United Press reported.)

Second Note.

Dekanozoff handed Gafencu the second note yesterday protesting "new hostile actions" on the part of Rumanian troops and aircraft, adding "it is true the Soviet side as yet had no casualties but should casualties occur the matter will take a grave turn."

"The Soviet government placed upon Rumania the entire responsibility for possible consequences," the agency said, and declared "violations of the Soviet frontier by Rumanian troops continue up to the present day."

"PEACE" TALKS START

VIENNA, Aug. 29.—(P)—Germany and Italy turned their ministerial attention to the turbulent Hungarian-Rumanian frontier today and, in separate discussions with Hungarian and Rumanian diplomats, began the shaping of a new Axis-sponsored "peace."

The contours of a new line that will divide the disputed province of Transylvania and its 3,500,000 people between Hungary and Rumania were still hidden tonight.

"Verdict" Expected Today.

Foreign Ministers Joachim Von Ribbentrop, of Germany, and Count Galeazzo Ciano, of Italy, conferred for two hours each with the Hungarian representatives, Premier Count Pal Teleky and Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky, and Rumanian representatives, Foreign Minister Mihail Manoilescu and his aid, Valerie Pop.

Ho-Hum---Tiny Pup Just Dozes
Through Court Fight Over Him

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 29.—(P)—A tiny puppy slept peacefully in city court today while his ownership was argued before a perplexed judge who finally told the contestants to go to a higher tribunal.

Mrs. Lena Jones, 25, declared the dog was her own little Fluffy, five months old.

R. C. Bradley insisted the pup was only six weeks old and was none other than his dog Gypsy.

The case landed in court when Bradley charged that Mrs. Jones had taken the animal from his small brother-in-law when the lad carried it out to show to her. Mrs. Jones said that was right, she did take the dog—but she'd swear he was Fluffy who was stolen from her automobile several weeks before.

Mrs. Jones demanded a blood test. She insisted the dog would answer to the name Fluffy. Bradley scoffed at the idea, declaring: "Why, he's so small he would answer to the name of Hitler if you called him that."

The pup didn't bat an eye.

Finally Judge Jack R. Kirkchick dismissed the charge against Mrs. Jones and suggested that a civil action be started to settle the question.

Still asleep, the pup was turned over to the Humane Society to hold until there is a decision.

'England Happy Country Today!' Briton Says,
Describing How Nation Recovered Faith in Self

(Editor's Note: The Associated Press presents below a frank, interesting British viewpoint after nearly a year of war with Germany. It is written by Evelyn A. Montague, one of England's great newspapermen. Mr. Montague served with the British expeditionary forces as a war correspondent. He is a son of the late C. E. Montague, the famous essayist and novelist.)

By EVELYN A. MONTAGUE.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—(P)—Britain today is a happy country! That is the strangest thing that has happened to us in all this strange year.

I am a happy man! My home has been broken up, my child is in one part of the country, my possessions in another. My wife and I are in a third, living in a stranger's house, overtaxed, overworked, uncertain of the future, cut off from most of our small pleasures, restricted in our movements, threatened with invasion. But we are happier than we were 12 months ago.

Twenty-two years of unnatural living are behind the change. They began in 1918 when a million or two of our soldiers came home vowing that there would be no more war for any reason whatever.

It was natural that exhausted men whose too simple hopes of the millennium had been disappointed, and who had been bloodily mishandled by some of their commanders, should feel that way for a time. But the temporary neurosis became a settled principle, buttressed by bad theology, slipshod logic and plain materialism. It sank deep into British minds and has influenced all our policies ever since, usually for the worse.

It began to take extravagant forms as time went on. Ignoring all the evidence, we deluded ourselves that a tough revengeful people could be won away from their purpose by our disarmament.

Our more amiable qualities—Readiness to believe other men's word, friendliness towards a beaten enemy—helped to foster the delusion.

Some of us became ashamed of our own warlike history and of the empire which it had won for

Ceremonies Will Mark Moving in of Ellis Family.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Aug. 29. (AP)—Elbert V. Ellis, farmer of Thomas county, gets the first farm dwelling built in the United States under the United States Housing Authority rural housing program.

Tomorrow, various officials of national, state and county organizations will help him celebrate. Langdon W. Post, special assistant to Nathan Straus, national administrator, will be here along with George B. Hamilton, chairman of the State Housing Board, and Eugene A. Ackerman, executive director of the Thomas county housing authority.

With their speeches, they will set the Ellis family off on their first year in their brand new home, a modern structure replacing an old, ramshackle farm house. Rent on the new home will be about $50 annually, since Ellis plans to do all ordinary maintenance and repair work himself. The new Ellis house cost $1,324. It includes three bedrooms, a living room with open fireplace, kitchen and dining space. Plenty of food storage space was provided.

The Ellis home will serve as a demonstration dwelling for low income farm families, including owners-operators, tenants, sharecroppers and rural wage earners who have applied to the Thomas county authority for similar buildings.

Ackerman said he planned to advertise for bids soon on 50 more farm homes, with another 50 to be advertised shortly afterwards. Hamilton announced the celebration at the home, about 14 miles northeast of here, would be in the nature of a statewide program making a "new step forward in the program for our low income farm families."

New Hampshire Town Becomes Mitten Famous

WHITEFIELD, N. H., Aug. 29. (UP)—A dozen women residents of Whitefield turned out more than 750 pairs of hand-knit mittens in 1939 and are trying to raise that mark this year.

Besides mittens, the group also produces socks, bonnets, caps and "shoe socks."

Mrs. Frank S. Dodge designs the mittens and inspects each woman's work before it is sold. The women shared a profit of $1,100 among them last year.

One woman helped fill a rush order by knitting six pairs of mittens in a week, and the quality of the work is so high that Whitefield is becoming known as "the village in the White mountains where the best double mittens are made."

Lovely Victor Over Polio Is Georgia Visitor

'Miss New Orleans' Drops in on Warm Springs Patients.

By CAROLYN MCKENZIE.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Aug. 29. Tall, brunet Pauline Powell, 17-year-old "Miss New Orleans," who was a polio sufferer at the age of two, stopped here today en route to the national beauty contest at Atlantic City. She spent the day with patients, visiting the Warm Springs Foundation, and mentally comparing the methods of treatment today with the four years' care which led to her total recovery.

The brown-eyed Texan, who has lived in New Orleans for the past seven years, is healthy today. Her legs, formerly one inch different in length, are normal, and she walked over the Foundation with the poise, grace and naturalness of a professional model. (Incidentally, she plans to go from Atlantic City to New York where she hopes to find a job modeling clothes).

Only Worry.

Pauline and her mother arrived here looking as though they were just up from a long night's rest; but the polio beauty's only worry was to get out of her heavy black sports dress, have a shower, and take a nap. Undaunted by her fatigue, however, she walked over the entire hospital waiting with patients on every turn.

She never entered a beauty contest until August 2 and then only after numerous entreaties of friends. And even though she prefers modeling to a screen career, still she doesn't spurn Hollywood.

TWO POLIO VICTIMS—Pauline Powell, 17-year-old "Miss New Orleans," spent yesterday visiting with patients at the Warm Springs Foundation. She had infantile paralysis when she was two years old; but is perfectly healthy today. She paused for a long time at President Roosevelt's portrait in Georgia Hall. She, as he, won out over polio in a game fight for health.

With no ill effects remaining from her attack of infantile paralysis, Pauline told Warm Springs patients that she found her key to perfect health through exercise. She likes swimming, dancing and sailing, but doesn't go in for strenuous sports, preferring to sit at home and listen to classical music. She has all the earmarks of a modern swing enthusiast, but "hates" jitterbugs and "loves" Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony.

Pauline is a perfect example of a victorious fight for recovery. She anxiously walked from portrait to portrait in Georgia Hall, identifying the outstanding persons in Georgia's battle against infantile paralysis. Then she paused for a long time at President Roosevelt's portrait. She, as he, has overcome paralysis.

Wears Pin. She wore a jeweled pin, which we concluded was a fraternity pin after she said she'd never been to college, never intended to, and only wanted to read when she did what she wanted to. Then we learned it was a high school sorority pin and that she intends being a "bachelor girl."

"I haven't met anyone I'd have that would have me," she smilingly commented. And thus with her cheery outlook on life, Pauline and her mother, Mrs. M. A. Ulrich, spent today and tonight playing cards, singing and looking over the Foundation with patients. They are delighted with the hospital, having expected to see a village of frame buildings, jammed together, with no landscaping.

Plane Repair Contract Awarded Dallas Firm

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 29. (AP)—A $1,350,000 contract for construction of an airplane repair shop at the southeast army air depot here was awarded to the A. J. Rife Construction Company, of Dallas, Texas, today.

Major A. F. Dersheimer said the Texas firm was the lowest of seven bidders for the contract. The repair shop, largest single unit in the $8,700,000 air depot project, will cover 12 acres of ground. Work will start within 30 days.

British Planes Made Invisible, Germans Say

Bombers Painted With Secret Varnish 'Disappear' in Lights.

BERLIN (Friday), Aug. 30. (UP)—A secret type of varnish which makes British bombers invisible under the glare of searchlights has made it impossible for German aircraft gunners to turn their fire on enemy raiders attacking Berlin, air force officials said today.

The British bombers were said to have been "completely invisible" when the full glare of Berlin's searchlights was turned upon them.

As a result, it was asserted, the German gunners were able to shoot only at the shadows which the raiders threw against the clouds.

(British air circles in London described the Nazi reports as "a lot of nonsense." "It sounds like an excuse for the failure of German searchlights to pick up our bombers," it was said.)

The varnish, a thick black substance, was said by the Nazis to be painted on the underside of the wings and is a secret which the British alone possess.

After one British bomber was brought down recently German experts began making tests of the varnish, the air force sources asserted.

These same quarters said that the British raiders had used shrewd tactics in their attacks on Berlin, such as flying at varying heights from 6,000 to 15,000 feet. Their frequent variation of altitude, it was said, altered the tone of their motors and upset the German sound-detective apparatus.

U. S. PLANES USE CAMOUFLAGE ENAMEL

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 29.—A new lacquer enamel, which can be quickly removed with a special solvent, has been developed by Pratt and Lambert, Inc., for camouflaging military aircraft, T. Emerson Murphy, industrial sales manager, disclosed today.

Murphy said the "washable" paint is now being used experimentally by the army at Marshall Field, Ala. The new paint is designed to enable the army to change colors of its planes, depending on the terrain below.

'Hostile Acts' Are Charged To Rumania

"concluding results" presumably would be reached tomorrow.

Bucharest dispatches said Rumania will throw the bulk of her army into a new line of defense near the Russian border as soon as territorial disputes with Bulgaria and Hungary have been settled definitely.

Second Defense Line.

The Rumanian general staff, diplomats said, already is working on plans to make the Siret river an "impregnable second line of defense" which Rumanians are convinced they could hold, even against the Red army.

Reports also circulated that attempts are being made by King Carol II to form a new cabinet.

After an extraordinary cabinet session, the King called in a number of prominent Iron Guard (Romanian Nazi) members for private audiences.

The King also summoned the royal councilors for an unprecedented crown council session to discuss the Vienna conferences.

British Pilots Tossed Coins To Raid Berlin

'You Couldn't Have Bought Seat' for Attack, Officer Says.

LONDON, Aug. 29. (AP)—The air ministry tonight described last night's British raid on Berlin as a methodical enterprise in which explosives and fire bombs were tossed "on a series of carefully selected military objectives and on works vital to war production."

In a supplemental statement to its official communiqué, the ministry told this story of the assault:

"Aircraft drawn from two squadrons made a special attack on one objective only four miles from the center of the city. Every pilot in the two squadrons wanted to be in on the raid. Their keenness amounted to competition."

"You couldn't have bought a seat in any of the aircraft for any amount of money," said a senior intelligence officer.

"In one case two pilots 'tossed for it.' They normally were the first and second pilots of the same aircraft. Their difficulty, however, was that their machine had been more or less commandeered by the squadron's commanding officer who, not having his own machine available, declared that in no circumstances was he going to miss 'this big show.'"

Set Off at Dusk.

"That meant either that the first or second pilot had to stand out (stay at home). Each protested that he was entitled to go. The wing commander thought it over for a minute. Then he told them to toss up for it."

"It was just as dusk was gathering that the aircraft set off. Within three hours, one of the raiding force returned. Some technical trouble had developed on the way out and the pilot had to turn back, jettisoning his bombs in the sea."

"We'd have liked to have gone on," he said, "but we aren't risk it."

"There was a wait of a few more hours and then a sergeant pilot and his crew landed."

"They marched into the intelligence room together, untruffled and excited, to give their account of the raid. The rear gunner, a stockily built Scotsman, was carrying a toy Scottie dog as a mascot."

"He's been everywhere," said the gunner; "to Heligoland, Stavanger, France, over a whole lot of German territory . . . and now, Berlin."

"We went straight to Berlin and straight back," said the sergeant pilot. "We took seven hours exactly."

"As they sat being interrogated by an intelligence officer the roar of the other planes returning could be heard overhead."

"Soon their crews began to fill the room."

"The captain of the second aircraft—a young pilot officer—told his story next. They had attacked the (Berlin) power station."

"We bombed at 12 o'clock—dead on midnight," he said. "Somebody had been there before us. When we arrived we found the target well on fire. We could see it when we were 25 minutes flying time away from the target. We came in more or less north to south and put our stick (series) of bombs down just to the left of this big fire. Then four more fires started. They were burning with very bright white lights. Altogether, we were cruising round over Berlin for about half an hour."

20,000 Will Be Added to Public Welfare Rolls

Additional Funds Are Made Available to State Department.

The State Department of Public Welfare will have 64,055 persons on its public assistance rolls by December, an increase of more than 20,000 over its present load of 43,242, Dr. J. M. Branch, director, announced yesterday.

Increase in the number receiving old age assistance, aid to the blind and aid to dependent children was brought about through additional funds made available to the department.

The increase from July to August was 3,837—3,364 for old age assistance, 55 for aid to the blind and 418 for aid to dependent children.

Total amount of assistance in August was $351,112 as compared with $317,663 in July, an increase of $33,449.

Dr. Branch said only 863 cases suspended for lack of funds had not been reinstated in August, and that these would be reinstated during September.

Meanwhile, S. E. Hamrick, supervisor of examinations for the merit system in the Welfare Department, warned that the deadline for getting in applications is midnight Wednesday. He said notifications of acceptance or rejection will be sent to each applicant as soon as possible after the closing date.

The King also summoned the royal councilors for an unprecedented crown council session to discuss the Vienna conferences.

Tulsa's First Oil Well

Produces for 39 Years

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 29. (UP)—Thirty-nine years ago the first oil well in the Tulsa area was brought in as a 100-barrel-a-day producer. Today the well still is producing, but only one barrel of oil a day. The well is known as the No. 1 Red Fork. It was drilled by Fred S. Clinton and J. S. Bland, of Tulsa, on the Sue A. Bland allotment north of the Red Fork river.

Oscar Howard is the present owner of the well. It touched production at the shadow depth of 548 feet. When it was discovered, hundreds of persons came to Tulsa. A special train brought a crowd from Oklahoma City to see the well.

DON'T ARGUE ABOUT IT

How many votes did President Roosevelt receive in the election of 1932? How did Tennessee go? Suppose neither candidate gets a majority—who makes the choice? Who counts the electoral vote? Does a President have to be born in the United States? Who would succeed to the Presidency if something happened to both the President and the Vice President? What are the exact words used by the President in the oath taken at his inauguration? Are these words prescribed by the Constitution? Was a woman ever a candidate for the Presidency?

These and countless other questions will be discussed and argued over times without number in the next few months. You don't have to guess—be informed. The following group of three bulletins, available from "The Constitution" Service Bureau, 1013 Thirteenth Street, Washington, D. C., will settle the questions definitely:

1. State Votes in Presidential Elections.

2. Presidential Elections Since 1789.

3. The Presidency.

Nearly 75 members of active and alumnae chapters of the Alpha Omicron Pi national sorority registered yesterday for the three-day southern district convention at the Biltmore hotel.

A welcome dinner was given last night for delegates from chapters from Maryland to Florida. E. S. Papp, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Miss Charlotte Granberry, chairman of the convention; Mrs. Claude C. Bell, president of the Atlanta Alumnae chapter, and Miss Marie Richardson, president of the Lambda Sigma chapter at the University of Georgia, gave the welcoming addresses. Following songs by Miss Florence Modena, and Spanish dances by Miss Joan Ray and Miss Ann Joiner, a model initiation was held. Miss Frances Williams, of Bainbridge, was the model initiate, for the Lambda Sigma chapter.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon, Professor Glenn Rainey, of Georgia Tech, will be the guest speaker at the "cotton luncheon," discussing "Hope of the South." The "Progressive Gospel Singers," a Negro quartet, will furnish a musical program.

England Happy Nation Today! Briton Exults

us; the world resounded with our cries of remorse.

We upheld the League of Nations with promise which we could not perform. We tried to persuade ourselves that we could tame the Italian Lion by letting him run about loose, but keeping his food away from him.

In the end, the British Labor party got itself into the ludicrous position of demanding that we should fight for the League of Nations, but not provide ourselves with the arms to do it, and the Conservative party did neither.

War was the ultimate evil; we admitted no other.

Disillusion was slow and painful. It began for us in China, it went on in Abyssinia, Spain, Austria, Czechoslovakia. With deepening anger the British, one of the great fighting races of the world with a record of victory unbroken since the American Revolution, saw themselves outmaneuvered or elbowed aside when they tried to help the oppressed nations. But they clung to their theory that somehow things could be put right and justice done without violence. The hatred of war was still too strong in them for reason.

Munich Came. At last came Munich, with its sense of hysterical relief in the house of commons and its fury of shame in the hearts of many Britons who could not make themselves heard. Happy or bitter, all of us knew then—or very soon afterwards—that the dream was over.

We took stock of our armaments and set to work to make good the years that the locust had eaten.

And all through the year that followed, as we tuned up our armament factories, built our air raid shelters and trained our civilian army, we grew more bitter as we realized more fully how we had been fooled.

The patience of the government outlasted the patience of the people. On the eve of war, when Chamberlain made a speech in the house of commons which suggested that he was ready to compromise even the invasion of Poland, Arthur Greenwood got up to reply for the Labor opposition, and government backbenchers, in an agony of shame and rage, cried out to him, "Speak for England." Their voices were the voice of England taking charge at last, saying, "No more of these hesitations, this appeasement which leaves us in the end nothing but a choice between dishonors. Life is not so precious as we have made ourselves believe. Death is not so horrible as we have compromised with tyranny and enslavement. We are going to fight until either this nation or Hitler is destroyed."

Voices of England. The government listened to the voice of England. Two days later we were at war, and over all of us hung the certainty of loss and the destruction of hopes, the possibility of death. But we were happy at last.

We have had bad times since then. We were distressed and worried by the "phony war" and angered by the retreat from Dunkerque. We were black days when Leopold laid down his arms with a suddenness that invited a harder name, when our troops seemed inescapably trapped at Dunkerque, when Petain withdrew France from the struggle and left us to fight alone.

When France surrendered it seemed for the first and last time that we might not win.

But the good times have outweighed the bad.

The rapturous ecstasy of the whole British people over the rescue of the B. E. F. from Dunkerque was not wholly, or even mainly, joy at the saving of husbands and sons.

It was the happiness of recovering our faith in ourselves, sapped by years of unnatural meekness in the face of insolent injustice. When the heroic story of Dunkerque became known, every Briton said to himself exultantly, "By God, we are a great people still. We are the great fighters and adventurers of the world. What other army and navy could have done it?"

Twice as Formidable. From that moment this nation was twice as formidable as it had been before.

We have had other rapturous moments, when Narvik showed that we had recovered our ancient knack of striking hard and quick, without waiting to apologize beforehand, when we knew that right was on our side.

This year of war has been for us a process of discovering that we still have the barbaric virtues which we have been so busy condemning for 22 years.

Our young men are still capable of being simple-hearted and heroic. The boys who a few years ago as students at Oxford were announcing that they would not fight for king and country have fought the Germans in the sky with such a fantastic daring that the outside world finds it hard to believe the stories of their victories. But we, knowing them, believe, and rejoice every day that the grime has been rubbed off and has left the gold untarnished.

Arnall Pushes Highway Unit Investigation

copies of papers in which Glover had deeded the lots back to the Highway Department, but these deeds have not yet been accepted.

Asked if he would vote to accept the deeds making the property the possession of the road agency, Commissioner W. L. Miller said he "certainly would not."

Commissioner Herman Watson said one complaint made was that camp records in some instances showed there was no deposit of $8 to be spent for clothing. These deposits are made by the counties in which the prisoner is convicted.

One complaint being investigated was that a convict for whom the $8 clothing deposit had been made was given only a 98-cent hat along with his freedom.

The board has received complete reports from nine of the 15 camp. Most of the reports besides those on Dade, Dawson and Miller showed no irregularities.

Investigator B. D. Purcell reported that during August the Pickens county highway camp loaned 13 state convicts to work free of charge on Pickens county roads. Asked if this were irregular, the commissioners agreed it definitely was.

In this same camp Purcell said he found a Pickens county policeman got nine gallons of gasoline from the state tank for which there was no record of sale.

Questioning this procedure, Purcell was told that the state camp and Pickens county occasionally loaned each other gasoline.

The prober said his two weeks of investigation at the Pickens camp was hampered by an exchange in wardens two days after his arrival and unwillingness of citizens to be quoted or to make affidavits on their criticisms.

Bought Own Gas.

Purcell further reported that the camp's chief mechanic bought gasoline from his own filling station at Jasper for use in state work instead of using that available at the camp. He submitted bills for this gasoline weekly to the camp's cost clerk, who paid them.

The commissioners explained that the camp gasoline is bought by the state much cheaper than it can be from a private filling station.

After a strike by free labor at the Pickens camp, the Highway Board voted last week to abolish the camp and it is being dismantled.

One investigator was unable to ascertain ownership of the lot on which the warden's house stands at the Lanier county highway camp.

Rivers' Policy.

Governor Rivers, in commenting on the disclosures, said it always had been his policy to sever the connection of anyone who had committed any irregularities. He said he assumed that the procedure in this case would be for the State Highway Board first to complete its investigation and then to turn over the facts to the law department for possible action if any is warranted.

Coincident with the disclosure of the reports was the announcement by Attorney General Arnall that his office had learned E. C. Copeland, maintenance patrolman for the Highway Department in Crisp county, had been convicted of forgery in connection with the handling of the payroll of the department for employees under his supervision. Arnall said he was proceeding to protect the state's interest by undertaking recovery from Copeland's bonding company.

Florida Wants Canadian Pilots To Train There WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Aug. 29.—(P)—A move to bring Canadian pilots to Florida for training during the winter months was disclosed here today even as the Florida State Chamber of Commerce asked the War Department to consider one of the state's airports for the purpose.

Wright Vermilya Jr., Florida governor of the National Aeronautics Association, said negotiations had been under way for several months to have the Canadian government school its fliers in Florida when the weather handicaps their training at home.

Canada's air marshal, W. A. Bishop, Vermilya explained, had advised him the plan is not possible now because of the United States' neutrality act.

3,000 Birmingham Iron Workers To Get Raises BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 29. (P)—Wage increases for approximately 3,000 employees of merchant iron manufacturers in the Birmingham district, all effective September 1, were announced today.

Firms affected are the Woodward Iron Company, Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company, and Republic Steel Corporation.

That is why now, at the moment when war is on their doorstep, the British are more confident than they have been at any time since last September. They have grown steadily younger, more primitive, if you like, more simple, unperplexed, self-reliant and proud.

Doctors are pointing out that nervous troubles in Britain have decreased since the war began. The civilians of Britain have faced the bombing raids of the last few weeks with untroubled and humorous fortitude. The years have fallen away from the veterans of the last war who are now in the home guard; they are aching to meet the enemy whom they have beaten once before.

We do not regret our lost allies; we have more faith in ourselves. Public confidence in victory is so complete that in the last month or two ordinary men's minds and talk have turned more and more to what we will make of Britain and the world after the victory.

The mood of the moment is propitious for such discussion. The common purpose, passionately held, has drawn us all together. Britain has never been so united in living memory as it is today. It is a purpose for which we are ready, quite simply, to give everything we have. Already we have given much—comfort and money, family life, leisure, freedom of personal behavior.

Comfort, though they have had more of it than most, has never been necessary to the British; if it had been, they would never have colonized the world. Now they are living uncomformably (and rather liking it, incidentally) and the greed of personal ownership has receded from their minds. They are serving something outside themselves.

The result has been the growth in unexpected soil—men who used to be preoccupied with their own privileges and possessions—of a new sense of national comradeship and a new conscience. These feelings are beginning to work in ways that may make a better nation here when the war has been won.

We have no exaggerated respect for one of our enemies and the most complete contempt for the other.

Huiet Suspends State Aide in Hatch Act Case

there was nothing to do but suspend him. He instructed Hogan to come to Atlanta. Hogan spent Wednesday in the labor commissioner's office and returned to Dublin yesterday morning.

This was the round-by-round story as Lovett told it. It was learned, however, that when Hogan got back to Dublin he met Lovett on the outskirts of the city and told him he had been suspended and was going to leave the county until after the election.

"All I asked Huiet to do was to follow the law," Lovett said. "Hogan admitted his political activity, and any employee of the state, whose salary is paid in whole or part from federal funds, is violating the Hatch act if he participates actively in politics. I insist that the law be followed. There are too many people down here who come in contact with the State Employment Service with whom an employee might exercise political influence."

The announcement of Hogan's suspension was first made yesterday afternoon in the Dublin Courier-Herald, edited by W. M. Harrison and jointly owned by Harrison and Herschel Lovett.

In Atlanta yesterday Huiet defiantly refused to discuss the case, although there seemed to be no hesitance on the part of Lovett in talking about it.

When he was asked pointedly whether Hogan had or had not been suspended, Huiet asked newspapermen to leave the room while he conferred with his lieutenants. He then called them back in and presented them with printed copies of his statement.

Marion O'Connor, director of the State Employment Service, who works at the direction of Huiet, said all matters relating to the Dublin office came through his hands. He further said all reports had been made to Huiet, but, when pressed for contents of the report, he hung up the telephone.

Augusta Bank Pays Pre-Confederacy Note AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 29.—(P)—A pre-War Between the States banknote was redeemed at the Georgia Railroad Bank and Trust Company this week. The note dated back to some-

Canada Spends One-Quarter of Income on War

11,000,000 People To Pay One Billion Yearly To Stop Hitler.

By THOMAS R. HENRY.
For North American Newspaper Alliance.
OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 29.—A nation of 11,000,000 citizens and an annual income of approximately $4,000,000,000 is in the thick of a war which may cost it $1,000,000,000 a year—that is, a quarter of all the money its people will earn or get.

Such is the prospect in Canada today. The United States' closest neighbor is facing it with an unflinching courage. Like the United States, it has passed through its decade of depression with heavy expenditures for relief and public works. For this fiscal year its appropriations for ordinary, peacetime government activities ran close to half a billion—$448,055,805. On top of this, with the declaration of hostilities, was piled a war appropriation of $700,000,000.

That is the price in dollars and cents which the Dominion is paying for idealistically becoming the spearhead of democracy in the new world in its life and death struggle with the forces of destruction let loose in Europe. There will doubtless be other and more precious things to pay before the war is over, but this is something that will go directly home to every citizen, however far removed he may be from any actual warlike activity.

Taxes Jumped.
Part of it—as much as possible—will be raised in current taxation. There has already been a 10 per cent increase in taxes on individual incomes. But there is a limit to this possibility without destroying the economic life of the nation and the Dominion sees no escape from piling up a debt for the future.

Every Canadian not in uniform will be fighting Hitler just the same by paying and paying. The citizens of the Dominion are paying cheerfully enough for they still are far from the war tax burdens imposed on the people by Great Britain and on the people of France before the collapse of the republic.

Uncle Sam's dollars, it is generally agreed, will be silver bullets in this war.

In Scotch highland legend, those who had sold their souls to Satan could be killed only by such bullets in their hearts and Canada seems faced now with just such an incarnate melevole.

U. S. Dollars.
To fight Hitler it must buy much of its war materials in the United States and pay for it in dollars. Ordinarily it has an unfavorable trade balance with its neighbor to the south. It sells Uncle Sam materials such as paper, lumber and metals, the demand for which fluctuates with the state of industry. It buys back a vast array of finished products from automobiles to heavy machinery. With Great Britain, on the other hand, it has a highly favorable balance. With the sterling it receives from across the Atlantic it pays the dollars it owes to the United States.

But to do this today would be to defeat its purpose as a war partner of Great Britain by depletion of the mother country's own credit resources. Hence a quandary in which Canada finds itself and the efforts to find some way to set up a balance with the United States. One way being energetically explored is to maintain and increase American tourist trade, with the assertion that every dollar spent in the Dominion this summer will be one more silver bullet aimed at the German war lord's heart.

Last year, Americans on vacation spent approximately $180,000,000 here. This year they must do even better to keep the accounts anywhere near to a balance and Canadians are hopeful that a large part of the summer traffic to Europe this year will be turned northward.

Club in Clarkston Will Meet Tonight

The week-old Clarkston Recreation Club, which plans to build a fully equipped community clubhouse, will meet at 8 o'clock tonight in the city hall and draw up recommendations for a charter.

Temporary officers chosen last week are Dr. H. D. Crowe, president; A. P. Milan, vice president; R. J. Haynie, secretary, and R. W. Dent, treasurer.

On the board of directors, headed by Dr. Crowe, are Fred T. Dempsey, G. W. Perrin, W. O. Lindsey, R. O. Smith, Clifford Garner, E. W. Gaines, R. L. Maddox, R. M. Bradley, C. Z. Chelana, E. L. Sutton and T. P. Hensler.

Techwood Festival To Be Tomorrow

Arrangements for the Techwood celebration tomorrow night will accommodate a crowd exceeding 5,000 persons and improved lighting facilities this year will illuminate the carnival booths and street dancing.

The affair, fourth birthday party of the federal housing project, will begin at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon when the booths open. Traffic will be rerouted to avoid the Techwood drive area.

Street dancing will begin at 9 o'clock and an 11-piece band will play for as many as 500 couples on the main drive of the community. Techwood drive will be used for the celebration, from Pine street to Merritts avenue.

Flames Damage Decatur Church

Fire caused $2,200 damage to the First Baptist church of Decatur early yesterday morning before firemen, stationed less than a block away, were notified.

The blaze started in a fuse and wire box at the rear of the church auditorium, it is believed, and damaged the rear of the church and Sunday school room, and weakened balcony supports.

The alarm was sent in at 4 o'clock by Merrill Nash, who smelled the smoke as he worked the late shift in a near-by printing establishment. It took Chief Julius D. Peek and his force only a few minutes to extinguish the blaze, ending further damage.

Decatur Building Inspector Joseph D. Broome made the official estimate of the damage.

Sumner Welles Named To Act of Havana Group

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP) Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, will represent the United States in the provisional administration of any European possessions in the western hemisphere which may be taken over jointly by new world countries as a security measure.

The act of Havana, adopted by the American republics at their recent Havana conference, provided for the emergency committee.

Secretary Hull, in announcing the appointment, said the emergency committee would be set up as soon as two-thirds of the American republics have appointed their members.

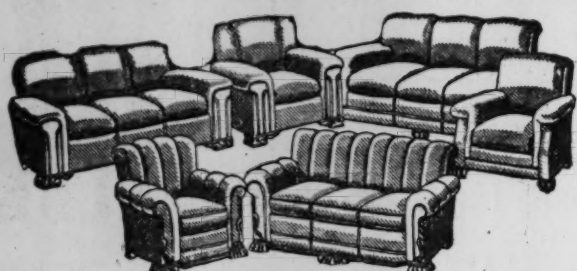

MR. WISE OWL SAYS:

Keep Roosevelt To Bar Hitler, Wallace Urges

appeasement with Germany, he continued, "are the backbone, even though unwittingly, of the most dangerous of all Fifth Columns."

"For the sake of a profit in 1941 they would sell out their own future and their children's freedom."

Wallace linked the economic destinies of nations in the western hemisphere with the outcome of the present European conflict.

"It is a war," he said, "to prevent the people of North and South America from developing their resources without paying tribute to Europe and without being victims of European secret police serving a self-appointed master race."

Roosevelt a "Symbol." The vice presidential nominee characterized President Roosevelt as a symbol of democracy, particularly to the western nations.

"He has proved his friendship for them by more than seven years of fair dealing as a good neighbor," the speaker said. "Hitler must not be permitted to break the solidarity of the Americas."

"If the Americas present to the Axis powers the same divided front as the democracies of Europe presented them, we shall assuredly walk the same path of destruction and lost freedom."

Both Germany and the United States were shaken in 1932 by the depression, he continued, but "Germany met that crisis with dictatorship. The United States met it with democracy and Roosevelt."

President Roosevelt "earlier than almost anyone else," Wallace said, perceived that the resultant dominating world issue was "freedom and a higher standard of living versus slavery and a lower standard of living for all except the Nazi governing class."

"Time after time the President voiced the broadest possible warnings to the public in an effort to stir our people from their slumber. For these efforts he was charged with being a warmonger, but the President kept on telling the truth as he saw it, and events have proved both the sincerity of his warnings and the accuracy of his judgment."

Turning to the farm issue the candidate said the G. O. P. has selected "a campaign manager who in 15 years in congress has never voted for one vital and constructive farm law."

Wallace also said the Republicans voted 106 to 38 against appropriations for commodity loans on farm crops "four weeks ago in congress."

"Mind you," he observed, "this attempt to deal a mortal blow to the farm program was made only five weeks after the Republican party in solemn convention had pledged itself to help the farmer, including in such help commodity loans. The Republican leaders say nice things about the farm program to get votes from the farmer. But when it comes to voting for the farmer, they don't deliver the goods."

Wallace said farm income and factory pay rolls, "the two strong legs of recovery, have both been more than doubled" since 1933. Business profits, he added, "have been restored and increased."

"The Roosevelt remedy," he said, "was not a resort to dictatorship, which so many conservatives were demanding in 1933, but simply more democracy. The Roosevelt programs gave more power to the people."

Text of Wallace's Speech in Des Moines Accepting Nomination

DES MOINES, Iowa, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The following is the text of the speech tonight by Henry A. Wallace accepting the Democratic vice presidential nomination and entitled "The New Fight for Freedom":

Mr. Chairman and Ladies and Gentlemen:

You are officially conferring on me tonight the greatest honor of my life. The office of vice president under the Constitution serves in a unique way as a link between the executive and legislative branches of our government.

And it is an unusually great honor to be the running mate of the one man who, more than any other, represents security for democracy in the modern world.

For nearly eight years President Roosevelt has battled for democracy and freedom, for their preservation at home and abroad.

Both Germany and the United States were shaken to the depths by the crisis of 1932. Germany met that crisis with dictatorship and Hitler. The United States met it with democracy and Roosevelt.

Hitler believed in government by a band of Nazi overlords, with Hitler himself as the dictator at the top. Roosevelt believed in government by the people and for the people.

ROOSEVELT PUT COMMON MAN FIRST

Hitler believed in reducing the status of working men and women to that of serfs. Roosevelt believed in putting the common man first—improving his wages and working conditions and upholding in law the right of collective bargaining.

Hitler believed in dominating both individuals and nations by force. Roosevelt believed in the good neighbor policy, among individuals and among nations.

Hitler believed in war through preparedness. Roosevelt believed in peace through preparedness.

Hitler believed in barter deals, so as to fight his economic war preliminary to military war. Roosevelt believed in freer world trade and a higher standard of living for all nations.

Hitler believed that all freedom must be crushed. Roosevelt believed in freedom of speech, press, and religion, which we in America hold dearer than life itself.

ROOSEVELT DEFENDER OF ALL DEMOCRACY

Adolf Hitler was the implacable enemy of all democracy. Franklin Roosevelt was its eager servant and faithful defender before the whole world.

Tens of millions of Americans shared the Roosevelt belief in 1933. But not one in a million saw so early and so clearly as he the world-shaking significance of the Hitler doctrine.

Only Roosevelt had the unusual combination of many months spent as a boy in European countries, a comprehensive knowledge of history, experience as assistant secretary of the navy in the first World War, access to the day-by-day information brought in by the trained observers in the State Department, and wisdom to relate that information to its significance for America.

Thus it was that Roosevelt, earlier than almost anyone else, saw that the dominating world issue was freedom and a higher standard of living versus slavery and a lower standard of living for all except the Nazi governing class. Week after week and year after year I have sat in cabinet meetings and heard the complete accord between the President and Secretary Hull on this issue when most Americans were not aware of the terrible storm cloud on the horizon.

PEOPLE WARNED TIME AFTER TIME

Time after time the President voiced the broadest possible warnings to the public in an effort to stir our people from their slumber. For these efforts he was charged with being a warmonger. But the President kept on telling the truth as he saw it, and events have proved both the sincerity of his warnings and the accuracy of his judgment.

Roosevelt has striven with greater vigor than any other President to build international good will, international trade, and a higher standard of living. In these efforts Adolf Hitler was stumbling block No. 1.

Roosevelt's task was rendered difficult enough by the opposition of Hitler abroad. But his handicaps were multiplied by a continuous and bitter partisan opposition at home.

The dominant leadership of this Republican opposition has never understood, and has apparently been unwilling to find out, what the rise of Hitler meant to farmers, workers and businessmen in the United States. This blind leadership believed that the United States could be prosperous, no matter what happened to Europe, no matter what happened to Asia, no matter what might be our relationship to Latin America. When Roosevelt tried to adjust the internal affairs of the United States to a sick world, they fought him at home as Hitler fought him abroad.

Some of the bitter attacks on Roosevelt's program were directly inspired by the agents of Hitler in this country. Others were merely blindly partisan. But, whatever the motive, the effect was the same—these attacks on Roosevelt and his program played into the hands of Hitler. Every evidence of opposition to Roosevelt within the United States has been reason for rejoicing in Berlin.

ROOSEVELT WORKED FOR SECURITY

For more than seven years Roosevelt has been working steadily to help the American people build an up-to-date democracy capable of bringing security to the families of this nation. Farm income and factory pay rolls, the two strong legs of recovery, have both been more than doubled. Business profits have been restored and increased.

The danger to democracy from within, which threatened us in 1932, has been safely met. The Roosevelt remedy was not a resort to dictatorship, which so many conservatives were demanding in 1933, but simply more democracy. The Roosevelt programs gave more power to the people.

Now we have launched a great national effort to build up our defenses against the threat from abroad. Under the leadership of Roosevelt we have pushed several years ago. We now have nearly twice as many airplanes as in 1933 and double the tonnage of fighting ships afloat or under construction. We have more than doubled our army. This is a splendid start, but it is only a start. It will be pushed until America is fully prepared to defend herself against any emergency.

Like the measures of economic adjustment, defense preparation also met with short-sighted obstructionist tactics. Why build so many airplanes? Why build another set of locks at the Panama Canal? Why spend government money to store up strategic war materials? Why create a Tennessee Valley Authority to harness the power and water and soil resources of a great region against a day of military need?

NATIONAL DEFENSE WAS OBSTRUCTED

To some extent those interests obstructing the national defense did have their way. They caused appropriations to be whittled down, and brought needless delays.

The TVA was fought in congress, in the courts, and in the press. Even a few weeks ago this opposition was still trying to block the building of one more TVA dam, the power from which is needed in producing aluminum that is indispensable for our airplanes. Fortunately that particular opposition has come. But of the 93 votes cast against this measure in the house on July 30, every one was a Republican vote. Such resistance to our military progress was encouraging to Hitler, but it was definitely injurious to our own welfare.

Now, at last, some of the Republicans are beginning to see that the nation really is in danger. National defense is going ahead, and the whole country can give thanks that the program is in such wise and experienced hands.

The total defense of modern war requires thousands of officers and men skilled in the mechanics of the gas engine, the airplane, and the tank. We must not only construct a giant air force, but know how to operate and service it. We must protect the Panama Canal. We must enforce the Monroe Doctrine with an increased navy, with air bases, and through co-operation with Canada and the rest of the Americas. By preparing completely now, we shall have the best chance of keeping out of war.

But we must face the fact that the dictators have definite designs against this hemisphere. Their tactics here, as in Europe, are to divide and conquer. They hope by propaganda and bartering agreements to set one nation against the other. They hope to reach each class against another class. They inspire a multitude of angry voices in every democratic nation. Out of the confusion which they have created they hope to build political power and eventually military power.

The fact that our presidential campaign and election come now is most welcome to the dictators. They hope to get rid of the unyielding Roosevelt. They know that a political campaign is distracting to our people. And they know that in the many months that would elapse before a new administration could act effectively, they might have their chance.

I do not wish to imply that the Republican leaders are wilfully and consciously going to aid and comfort Hitler. But I want to emphasize that replacement of Roosevelt, even if it were by the most patriotic leadership that could be found, would cause Hitler to rejoice. I do not believe the American people will turn their backs on the man that Hitler wants to see defeated.

In the opinion of the world—in the eyes of the Nazis and of the stricken nations under their heel—Roosevelt has become the symbol of democracy. And more important, he is the symbol of democracy to all the nations of this hemisphere. He has proved his friendship for them by more than seven years of fair dealing as a good neighbor. Hitler must not be permitted to break the solidarity of the Americas.

If the Americas present to the Axis powers the same divided front as the democracies of Europe presented to them, we shall assuredly walk the same path of destruction and lost freedom. In the United States, as well as in the other Americas, we find certain men who for purposes of their own profit want England to give up her fight against Hitler and who are strong for economic appeasement between the Americas and a German-controlled Europe. In that direction lies slavery, even though it is sugar-coated with promises of prosperity. Those who stand for business appeasement with Germany are the backbone, even though unwittingly, of the most dangerous of all Fifth Columns. For the sake of a profit in 1941, they would sell out their own future and their children's freedom. The business men of western Europe followed this path to their sorrow. If we of the Americas are not made of sterner stuff, we shall go down as they have gone down. Our weapons are unity for total defense and a determination not to engage in economic appeasement.

DEVELOPING PREPAREDNESS ON ALL FRONTS

Here in this country we are developing preparedness on all fronts. On the agricultural front we have secured in the ever normal granary tremendous reserve supplies, while at the same time by commodity loans we have protected farm prices and the purchasing power of farmers for city goods. We have increased our soil fertility. In every county and every township there are farmer committees which are prepared to meet any defense needs involving agriculture.

The farm program has been such a success that Republican leaders are now commending it in the hope of getting farm votes next November. But the real attitude of the Republicans, which for many years has been against farmers' interests, has been revealed anew by two things that have happened in the last few weeks, since the Republicans adopted their platform and nominated their candidate. One is the selection of a Republican campaign manager who in 15 years in congress has never voted for one vital and constructive farm law. The other is the vote in congress four weeks ago on funds for commodity loans—the loans on corn, on wheat, on cotton, which bring about the storage of reserve supplies and protect farmers' prices and income. Democrats voted 100 per cent for these loans. Republicans, led by the person a ally-selected Republican campaign manager, voted 106 to 38 against them. Mind you, this attempt to deal a mortal blow to the farm program was made only five weeks after the Republican party in convention had solemnly pledged itself to help the farmer, including in such help commodity loans. And it was made only four days before the farmers were given assurances by the Republican standard bearer right here in Des Moines that their program would not be harmed. The Republican leaders say nice things about the farm program to get votes from the farmer, but when it comes to voting for the farmer, they don't deliver the goods.

There are now enough Democrats in congress to protect the farmers against attempts like this to hamstring their program. Those Democrats will be needed again and again after the November election.

ADMINISTRATION CARES FOR AGED, UNEMPLOYED.

On the social security preparedness front the administration has started the job of taking care of our aged and unemployed. Continually we have put human values first. We believe that no one who is willing to work should be allowed to starve. We have improved the health of millions by means of food stamp and school lunch programs.

We have stood it at all times for national unity. To aid in our national defense we have called in the best men regardless of party. In terms of action, the National Defense Commission represents splendid co-operation between agriculture, labor, industry and government. We are obtaining national unity on the Fifth Column front by enlisting in a common-sense way the co-operation of local and state authorities. We are determined to break up the gigantic international conspiracy through which the Nazis are trying to subjugate our country.

A materialistic religion of darkness, based on force and lies and led by prophets of evil, is striding across the world. This war is more than a clash of rival imperialisms. It is a war to destroy freedom and democracy. It is a war to prevent the people of North and South America from developing their resources without paying tribute to Europe and without being victims of European secret police serving a self-appointed master race. There is no denying the strength and fanatical zeal of this satanic doctrine. It transcends economics and politics to invade the personal life. It proclaims might as the supreme god and the new Nazi master race as the mightiest of all, with a special destiny to direct and exploit and enslave every people in the world.

FAITH IS BASED ON DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLES

Against this dark and bloody faith we of the New World set the faith of Americanism, of Protestantism, of Catholicism, of Judaism. Our faith is based on belief that the possibilities in an individual are not determined by race, social background or wealth. We believe in the maximum of freedom which can be obtained without anarchy or intolerance. Democracy is the very heart of the religions which have the largest following in the United States. Democracy and Americanism are identical. Both are utterly opposed to totalitarianism with its exaltation of might, its suppression of freedom, and its claims to racial supremacy.

I am happy to respond to the notification ceremonies this evening with an acceptance, because I believe the Democratic party under the leadership of President Roosevelt is far better equipped than the opposition to preserve the freedom of the Americas. He has understood the Hitler menace from the start. Powerful elements in our opposition will, if the Republicans come into power, force us to make one economic concession after another to the totalitarian countries. These appeasers will have their way if the Republicans win, because they will have contributed so largely, both politically and financially, to the Republican cause. These people believe the Republicans in power would give them profitable business with a German-controlled Europe at the earliest possible moment. Most Republicans may not yet realize it, but their party is the party of appeasement in the United States today. It is the party which the totalitarian powers will back in every way possible. Of all men in the United States, Roosevelt best knows the danger of making economic concessions to the dictators.

Between now and November, I propose to do everything I can to arouse the American people to the need for peace through preparedness, to the importance of the solidarity of the Americas, and to the duty of businessmen, workers and farmers to co-operate together for full employment and for the national defense. For I sincerely believe the Democratic party under Roosevelt will best give us a higher standard of living, unity within our own country, safety from external aggression, and freedom on this hemisphere for ourselves and our children.

Man's Negligence Costs U. S. $3,000

Payment of $3,000 to Mrs. Nanette E. Teal, formerly of Hapeville, in settlement of claims against the government for injuries she received through the negligence of a WPA worker was included in a bill signed yesterday by President Roosevelt.

Mrs. Teal suffered a broken leg on January 8, 1939 at Brookhaven when she fell over an unguarded stake in a street under repair by a WPA crew. Shortly after the accident Mrs. Teal moved from Hapeville to another section of the state.

Oil in Nazi Fire Bombs Problem for British

LONDON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—German incendiary bombs dropped Wednesday night in the London area were found today to be of a new kind, consisting of a lightly constructed container of crude oil. Whether this new type turns out in the long run to be more effective, it undoubtedly will give the firefighters a fresh problem. Small pumps are useless against the blazing oil, and more sand will have to be used.

Willkie Assails Russell's Plan As Dictatorial

Demands F. D. R.'s View on Provision Authorizing Draft of Plants.

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Aug. 29.—(P)—Wendell L. Willkie said today that a provision of the conscription bill authorizing the government to take over private plants would set up "a potential dictatorship." He demanded that President Roosevelt state his view on the provision.

In a formal 1,100-word statement, the Republican presidential nominee declared that the conscription of manpower was the democratic way to obtain defense personnel, but he added:

"At the 11th hour (of the senate debate), however, an amendment was introduced by New Deal Senators Overton, Democrat, Louisiana, and Russell, Democrat, Georgia, and passed by the senate, which gives the President, whenever the secretary of war or secretary of navy is unable to arrive at an agreement with the owner of any plant or facility which is deemed necessary for national defense, power to acquire such plant or facility."

Front-Porch Conference.
Willkie's statement, which he read to reporters during a press conference on his front porch said that "in the event of emergency, the industries and assets of this country are at the disposal of the people."

"Let us not create that emergency before it actually exists by setting up a potential dictatorship," he added.

Declaring that the Russell-Overton amendment had been supported by Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley and other "senators known to be close to the administration," the Republican nominee noted that the President had declined his suggestion that the two debate campaign issues.

"For or Against?"

"That is his privilege," Willkie added, "but in this instance so much is at stake that I put this question to him directly."

"Is he for or against the Overton-Russell amendment?"

"I put this up to the President now," the nominee added, "and I hope that he does not answer with any quip about how Wendell Willkie loves property and he loves humanity. I say, without any personal criticism of the President, that it has been his good fortune at every stage of his life to possess and enjoy more wealth and more income than I have. This is true today as it was in the past."

WILLKIE WOULD DRAFT BOYS BUT NOT DOLLARS—GUFFEY

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—(UP)—Senator Joseph E. Guffey, Democrat, Pennsylvania, veteran New Dealer, said tonight that Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell L. Willkie's statement on the Overton-Russell amendment to the conscription bill makes the campaign issue clear and "assures the re-election" of President Roosevelt.

"Wendell Willkie, the wall flower of Wall street, by his stand in favor of drafting American boys, but not American dollars, has made the issue of this campaign clear," Guffey said. "It is the old story: Human rights against property rights."

"There must be no draft-dodging dollars in America. If we can draft American boys to safeguard our liberties, we can draft American dollars to back them up."

Guffey predicted that "the Willkie philosophy" would result in a 600,000-vote margin for President Roosevelt in Pennsylvania. "In the nation, he (Willkie) will be another Landon," the senator added.

SECRET SERVICE GUARD FOR WILLKIE SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(P)—Wendell L. Willkie would be given a secret service guard during his campaign under a bill introduced today by Representative Elston, Republican, Ohio.

England's Defense Pace Topped by U.S.—Briton

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(P)—Gordon Selfridge Jr., son of England's largest department store owner, said today that this country's defense program was proceeding at a greater peace-time pace than did Britain's.

Selfridge, an American, but until last March active in the management of his family's stores in England, came here to address a national conference of retailers.

Talmadge, Nix, Roberts Active With Speeches

Agricultural Candidate Cites Changing Conditions Due to War.

By LUKE GREENE.

While Abit Nix charged that Eugene Talmadge left debts against practically every department in the state government when he left office January 1, 1937, Talmadge yesterday declared the state's problems were the same as when he ran for Governor for the first time in 1932 and Columbus Roberts renewed his pledge to do everything within his power to put the school program on a sound financial basis, and cited the need for expanding vocational education.

Speaking at Rome and Lindale, Nix charged that when Talmadge retired from office the bonded debt of the state was $4,100,702.17, the debt due on the W. & A. Railroad rental discounts was $3,780,000 and the debt due on highway refunding certificates was $23,917,296.01.

Asserting he was giving the true facts, Nix said "no voter in this state ought to cast his vote for Talmadge either because he left $11,000,000 net balance in the state treasury—because he did not—or because he paid the state out of debt—because he did not."

Talmadge in Swainsboro.

In Swainsboro Talmadge said he told the people in 1932 that if they would elect him Governor he would pay the state out of debt without a sales tax and without raising other taxes.

"You know what Talmadge did on this tax question during four years as Governor," he said. "That platform of 1932 was carried out in every particular, and we not only kept the sales tax off our people, but we did some tax cutting that helped a lot."

Roberts spoke in LaGrange and said he favored expanding vocational education so that every boy and girl will "know how to meet the practical problems of life—to get a job and keep one."

"On the other hand, my only real opponent in this race has said, not once, but many times that a five-month school term was long enough for any child," Roberts said.

Roberts said in his speaking campaign he had spoken frankly and fearlessly about conditions in Georgia and some of the candidates offering for Governor, but added: "I have discussed only their public records and the records of their campaign backers."

DeKalb Talmadge Rally.
DeKalb county supporters of Talmadge planned a meeting for 8 o'clock tonight in Judge Augustus Roan's courtroom on the corner of Mayson and DeKalb avenue. Plans will be mapped for a campaign in the western part of DeKalb county. Judge James C. Davis will preside.

Jesse Hall, candidate for secretary of state, charged "a salacious and unwarranted attack" on his war record had been "resorted to by certain pernicious politicians" and said he wanted the people of Georgia to know he wanted no part of a "mud-slinging contest."

Hamilton Ralls, candidate for commissioner of agriculture, issued a statement in which he said the selection of a new commissioner of agriculture is of vital importance to the farmers because of changing conditions due to the war.

"The war will bring vast economical changes which will have a vital effect on the farming conditions in Georgia and since farming is one of the state's chief resources it can be readily seen that the new commissioner of agriculture must be a man who is fully equipped to fill the job," he said.

Peace Officers Urge State To Keep the Patrol

Recommend That Group Be Kept 'Free From Politics.'

MACON, Ga., Aug. 29.—(P)—The Georgia Peace Officers' Association, in session here today, adopted a resolution urging that the State Highway Patrol organization be preserved intact after the January change in administration.

The resolution, directed to the state officials and general assembly members, pointed out results of the patrol's operation in the state and urged that the organization be kept "free from politics."

At the same meeting, the officers heard a talk by Special Agent R. G. Danner, of the Atlanta Federal Bureau of Investigation office, urging co-operation with federal officers in combating "Fifth Column" activities.

Spokesmen for the group pledged assistance to the FBI.

France Imprisons Five For Tuning in on Reds

Asks What's Become Of the Fire-Eating Old Editor?

Too much reading of this and that during the summer evenings has made me weary of literature, so called.

I have an idea I'd like to subscribe to two daily newspapers, published in the same city, where the editors are supporting rival candidates and cutting loose.

But I don't know such a town or newspapers.

I can remember, I hate to confess, when editors rolled up their sleeves, dipped their pens in sulphuric acid and proceeded to praise their favorites and damn their opponents. And they really went to town.

They would state—and challenge all comers to disprove their accusations—that the opposing candidate for senator or governor or coroner had a criminal record which would make Ananias, Cain, Benedict Arnold and Captain Kidd look like presiding elders by comparison.

They would quote documents to prove the opposing candidate had stolen his grandmother's wedding ring from her corpse and pawned it to buy a pint of red-eye. They would assert, without fear of successful contradiction, that said candidate, while sheriff of his county, had sold the iron fittings of the jailhouse to the local junk dealer and had been restrained from selling the jail itself only by the fact that his term expired before he could complete the sale.

Those editorials provided glorious reading and were enjoyed by all concerned—except the victims of the vitriolic pen.

We don't have them any more and I am sure the oldtimers of the American public miss them.

Not Here, Thank You.

In the beginning of this epistle I said I hoped to find such newspapers and such a city.

But I don't want them in Atlanta. I don't care what happens to other papers in other cities.

It has been a long time since our newspapers were bitter and nasty over politics. For which let us praise the Lord.

I think a newspaper should not hesitate to print facts about a candidate—for or against. Maybe we are all too nice and sweet about it.

But when I say facts I mean facts. Not plain dirt. Let the candidates and their supporters sling mud if they so desire.

There are traditions about the "personal journalism" of what some folk term the "good old days."

Sergeant Prentiss, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, was a noted example. And after him Marse Henry Watterson of the same paper. They could skin the hide off an enemy and rub Tabasco sauce in the raw and bleeding wounds. And always in a most refined and gentlemanly manner.

But I don't think Mark Ethridge, former Georgian, who is now the editor of that famous old sheet, indulges in skinning folk with whom he disagrees. I don't get his paper among the exchanges, but I think Mark has too much horse sense.

Because that kind of journalism never won—or kept—any friends. Make an enemy and he's an enemy for life. But friends are fickle. You may serve them for years and then take a stand with which they disagree—and you have acquired another enemy.

Most newspapers, I think, have long strived to print gossip—and express their editorial opinions with a give-and-take attitude, admitting there are two sides to every question and the other fellow has a right to his own opinion. Certainly I haven't read recently of any editor being horse-whipped or challenged to a duel.

Sentimental Values.

The Honorable James Farley, a press item states, has such a wonderful memory he can call 100,000 persons by name.

I wonder how he ever counted them. If he did. Next time Mr. Farley has the honor of meeting me I'm going to ask him to take a few minutes off and recite all those 100,000 names.

On a trip last week somebody told me, with conviction in his voice, that Savannah and adjacent territory had lost a million dollars' worth of trees. Who figured that out?

There are about two dozen trees in our yard and we wouldn't take a good fat check for any one of them. But what are they worth? How much is any grand old live oak or magnolia worth—in cash money?

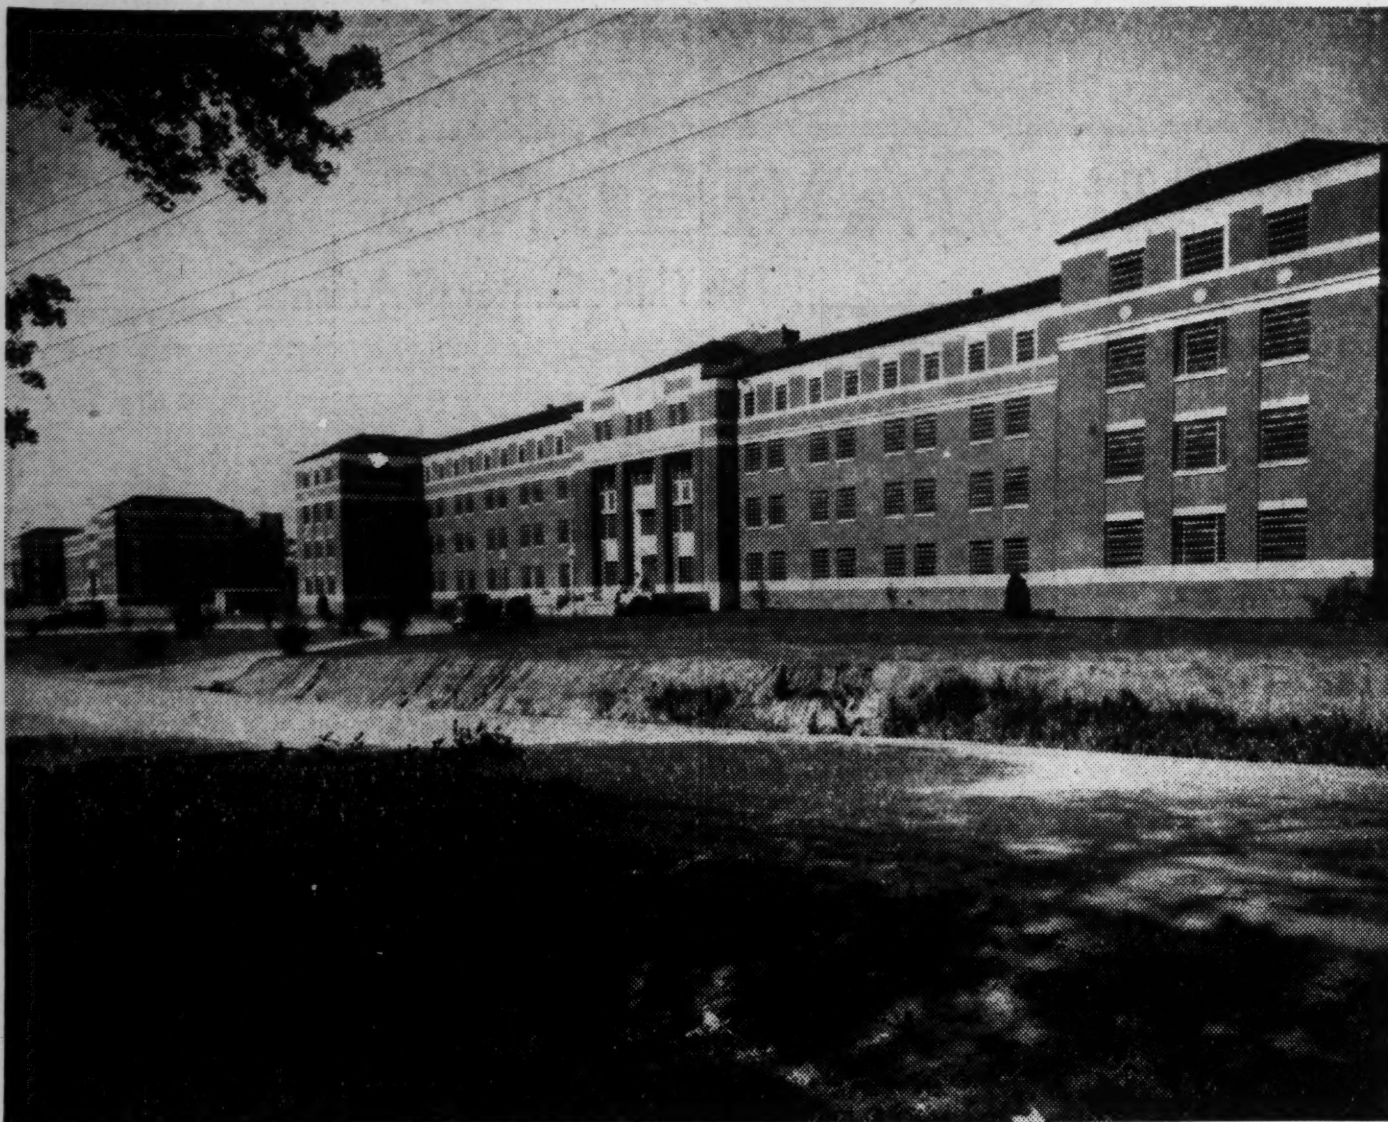

Their values are in history, sentiment and beauty. But just add up your trees and see how much they're worth in collateral at your nearest bank.

There are some values you can't find listed in your sixth grade arithmetic. And they're not listed on the stock exchange or even the curb.

I've seen sunsets more gorgeous and glorious than any painting for which a collector paid a quarter-of-a-million. But I never could borrow any money on one of them. The darn things show up only after banking hours.

NEW COUNTY AGENT.
THOMASTON, Ga., Aug. 29.—C. A. Bryant, Lamar county agent, will replace County Agent S. B. Adair, of Upson county, September 1. Mr. Adair has served as county agent of Upson county the past seven years.

'Old Order Changeth' at Milledgeville

THE LAST WORD in design and construction is this wing of the great hospital which the state is now completing at Milledgeville. It is part of a $5,000,000 improvement program under which five giant, modern buildings have been erected.

IN DAYS B. I. P. (meaning Before the Improvement Program) scenes like this were common in the old buildings at the State Hospital. Cots were jammed together; huge patches of plaster were missing from walls; lattice-work gave little privacy.

CLEAN, LIGHT, AIRY That's the best way to describe the rooms in the great new buildings at the State Hospital in Milledgeville. Here's a typical chamber, with ample room between cots and solid partitions to insure privacy for patients, whom a scarcity of space once crowded into uncomfortable proximity.

SPOTLESS as the blue of a cloudless sky is this tile shower stall. It and many others have been built into the new State Hospital at Milledgeville. They replace the bathtubs of the older replaced buildings.

GONE ARE THE DAYS when patients at the Milledgeville State Hospital were obliged to use washrooms such as this. Similar scenes were plentiful in the old buildings, which are now being replaced by modern, fire-proof structures, but the present building program has banished outmoded equipment.

MODERN AS TOMORROW Now, let's take a peek down one of the new corridors at the Georgia State Hospital in Milledgeville. Note the glass lookouts in each door, through which attendants may keep a close check on the patient without having to enter the room and disturb the inmate.

Building Plan Nears Finish At Milledgeville

5 Great Structures Are Erected Under Program.

Georgia citizens need no longer feel ashamed of the manner in which the state takes care of the unfortunate insane patients as the $5,000,000 hospital improvement program nears completion in Milledgeville.

For many years the state hospital plant has been entirely inadequate to serve the needs of the state. The old buildings were fire-traps, rooms and halls were overcrowded, plumbing and bathing facilities were archaic and conditions such that they attracted public indignation.

Under the rebuilding program, five great buildings, almost as large as the largest hotel in Atlanta, have been erected. One of these is a vast hospital to be used by patients suffering with tuberculosis and the other four are dormitories. The buildings will house approximately 600 patients each.

The magnitude of the hospital is recognized when it is considered that there are more than 7,000 patients and almost 1,000 guards, nurses and attendants. This population of 8,000 is as large as a city the size of Gainesville.

Through the creation of a State Hospital Authority Governor Rivers was able to obtain $4,250,000 from the federal government and additional funds were obtained through discounting the state-owned Western & Atlantic railroad rentals.

The Hospital Authority was created by the legislature and Governor Rivers named as its personnel R. H. Freeman, Macon, chairman; S. W. Howell, Blakeley, vice chairman, and Ivan Allen Jr., Atlanta, secretary-treasurer. Dr. John W. Oden, superintendent, will continue to operate the greatly enlarged hospital.

The floor area of the new buildings is over 15 acres, while there are more than three miles of corridors. The buildings are located on a tract of land purchased by the Authority and immediately adjoins the property on which the old hospital stands.

Some of the old buildings are 98 years old and the old plant was designed to accommodate 5,000 patients. With more than 7,000 patients on hand the crowded conditions that formerly existed can easily be visualized.

New buildings are served by a complete water supply system. A reserve supply of water is contained in a 200,000-gallon tank placed on a tower 150 feet high.

Three trunk sewer systems were laid to take care of the new buildings' waste disposal. There also is a separate system of storm sewers for drainage.

Every endeavor has been made to provide every possible safeguard for inmates, to protect them from fire hazards and to see that living conditions should be made as sanitary as the type of occupancy permits.

Property Sale For Tax Claim Fought in Court

Petition for Injunction Discloses Dispute Over Ownership.

An injunction petition seeking to restrain Fulton county from selling the taxes upon which the taxes have been promptly paid was filed in Fulton superior court yesterday afternoon by the Southwall Corporation.

The corporation set out it was owner of property at 738 and 744 Ponce de Leon avenue and had made tax returns and paid the taxes. But in 1939, it alleged, Miss Lucy Gartrell, of a Courtland street address, made a tax return on the same property, claiming an interest in it.

T. Earl Suttles, tax collector, has issued fi. fas. against the property in Miss Gartrell's name and is preparing to sell the property at 744 Ponce de Leon to satisfy the tax fi. fas. which are held by C. V. Rauschenberg, the suit alleged.

Denying Miss Gartrell has any interest in the two places, the Southwall Corporation petitioned court to enjoin Suttles from selling the property, to enjoin Guy A. Moore, tax receiver, from allowing Miss Gartrell to make a tax return on it, and to restrain Rauschenberg from collecting on the fi. fas. he holds.

Judge Virlyn B. Moore set September 13 for a hearing on the petition.

HOLIDAYS ENDED.

LAGRANGE, Ga., Aug. 29.—Employers and employees of LAGRANGE business houses played hard yesterday in an effort to store up vacation joys for the winter, a la the wise art. Wednesday afternoon half holidays, begun last June, were concluded for 1940, with benefactors looking forward already to the 1941 summer season. City and county offices also observed the summer vacation plan.

Germans Raid London Sixth Night in Row

Northeast, northwest, southwest, southeast.

Summing up yesterday's daylight operations, the ministry of home security declared early this morning that the Germans had machinegunned civilians in the Scilly Isles and in a southeast town, that a "small number" of civilians had been injured, and some fires set off by Nazi incendiary bombs. Nine German planes were declared shot down yesterday, against three British craft lost.

Swift-rising fighter planes scattered and put to flight a 200-plane wave of German bombers heading again for London in the late afternoon, even while the eager young bombers of the Royal Air Force told their stories of splashing blacked-out Berlin with "bright, white fires" in their first major raid on the German capital.

The German raiders were engaged high above the Thames estuary, and witnesses said they were too preoccupied with swarming Spitfires, Defiants and Hurricanes to unload a single bomb. The invaders broke their lofty formations and raced southeast for the channel.

Others Driven Off.

A few hours later a strong formation of German Messerschmitt fighters swarmed to the outskirts of a south coast town at 20,000 feet and swooped to attack barrage balloons. Spitfire and Hurricane pilots fought them off, using machineguns against the Germans' aerial cannon. Three planes came crashing down, one of them British.

The raiders and defenders spiraled in a series of high dog-fights, and within a few minutes the first plane hurtled to earth a few miles inland.

Then two others, one of them British, spun out of the mass. One fell like a stone, and when it crashed the explosion of its gasoline tank could be heard for miles.

An RAF pilot baled out from the other. He fell in the sea a few yards from shore and was rescued by a naval torpedo-boat.

Four of the Messerschmitts headed for home amid anti-aircraft bursts. Wreckage flew from one of them.

Farm Workers Attacked.
Reports from other southeast and southwest areas described similar early night raids. In the southwest, a raider spouting machinegun bullets dived on farm workers in a field, but they were not hit.

These battles, however took second place to the accounts of the young men of two RAF squadrons who, in the words of the air ministry, rained "high explosive and incendiary bombs on a series of carefully selected military objectives and on works vital to air production" in Berlin Wednesday night.

The battle over the Thames estuary, which turned spiraling exhaust streams into a frosty lacework against the sky, marked the high point of daylight aerial activity for both belligerents.

Night of Horror.

It was the most ambitious effort in the Germans' daytime follow-up of a night of firemaking an explosive bombing such as England and Wales had never seen before. All parts of the country reported fires, demolition and death or injury to civilians as a result of the assault. It was London's worst night of the war.

Both Britain and Germany seemed to be building up to even fiercer retaliatory attacks.

The admiralty and air ministry joined in picturing far-flung assaults during the preceding 24 hours on plane factories, oil plants and airfields in Germany—aside from Berlin—and oil tanks, a motor patrol vessel and a supply ship along the German-controlled Norwegian coast.

Berlin Admits 10 Killed.

The Germans insisted the raids on Berlin hit no military objectives, but killed 10 and wounded many in residential sectors.

The admiralty sent its own dive-bombers over the Norwegian coast. These planes which the British call Skuas (after a gull found along the north European coast) scored direct hits on two remaining tanks of an oil depot previously bombed.

Ranging out from there the Skuas left burning a motor patrol vessel in a Norwegian fjord and scored two hits on a 2,000-ton supply vessel, according to the admiralty.

"All our aircraft returned safely," the communiqué concluded.

The air ministry's earlier account of the overnight British raids said plane factories at Leipzig and Dessau, oil plants at Reisholz, Dortmund and Nordenham and numerous air fields were bombed.

"A large vessel in the canal near Rathenau, 25 miles west of Berlin, sustained a direct hit and exploded," the air ministry said. "All our aircraft returned. Two made forced landings but their crews are safe."

Nazi Raids 'Aimless.'

Officially Britain emphasized the "apparent aimlessness" of Germany's raids and minimized their effects on industrial production and morale.

Symbolic of the country's grim decision to "carry on" in face of all contingencies was the appearance of King George at a north-west shipyard with a service revolver strapped to his Sam Browne belt. He and Queen Elizabeth each drove rivets into the keel plates of a new warship.

An air ministry official said that the Germans' "apparent objective of terrorizing" the civilian population of London had failed completely.

"For example," he said, "it is impossible to believe that the enemy can have had any specific targets in the London area in mind, and certainly no military objectives."

"The bombers mostly flew at very great heights and dropped their bombs at scattered points with no apparent plan."

"It can only be assumed that the object is to terrorize the civil population and Londoners are best able to judge for themselves how completely these attempts fail."

The official declared the RAF's campaign against Germany is confined to "carefully planned attacks on military objectives and is known to be achieving valuable results."

Various measures have been adopted in industrial centers to beat the German raiders, another informed source said.

Some factories have rooftop watchers who go on duty as soon as sirens sound and wait until the approach of planes or bombs and anti-aircraft shells necessitate taking refuge. Until that final signal production continues uninterrupted.

Make-Up Time Free.

The way in which one London factory has speeded early evening production to allow for the slack occasioned by air raids is likely to be followed in many other plants, it was said.

"It is a voluntary effort by employees and this week's results show that the nightly air raid warning interruptions has had no serious effect on output," this source said.

Most householders have worked out their own problem of getting sufficient rest by fitting out their shelters with mattresses and cots, and when the sirens wail they go straight to the shelter and stay there until dawn.

The French Cameroons and Congo, in following the lead of the Chad territory and entering the war at Britain's side, turned substantially the whole of French Equatorial Africa into a British ally.

Thus more than a million square miles of territory, nearly one-fourth of France's overseas empire, has been aligned with Britain, opening a vast corridor from the south Atlantic to Italian Libya, and creating an uninterrupted British land bridge connecting the Atlantic with the Mediterranean and Red seas.

Britain, military observers remarked, will be afforded a guarantee of the maintenance of communications for attacks on the Italian colonial empire.

At De Gaulle's headquarters it was declared that their new status as belligerents would sharply restrict Italian and German naval and air movements.

It was said, too, that not only were native troops available in those areas but that there were "a certain number" of airplanes there.

The British ministry of information announced tonight that General Catroux, ousted by the Petain government as governor general of French Indo-China, had joined De Gaulle's forces.

Norse Royalty Sees U. S. Fair With Roosevelt

Spend Hour Watching Horse Show at Typical County Fete.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 29.—(AP)—President Roosevelt introduced Norwegian royalty today to one of America's famed rural institutions—a typical county fair with its exhibits, sideshows, races and hot-dog stands.

With Crown Princess Martha by his side and her two daughters clambering over his car, Mr. Roosevelt spent an hour watching a horse show at the Dutchess county fair at near-by Rhinebeck.

Then they drove through a building of Grange exhibits, in which the President's own Chapel Corners Grange took the blue ribbon. They passed up all the other attractions except a display of Dutchess county flowers.

The members of the Norwegian royal family, refugees from a country conquered by the Nazis, found a temporary haven in the serene Hudson valley home of the chief executive and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The Crown Princess and her children, Princess Ragnhild, 10; Princess Astrid, 8, and Prince Harald, 3, drove up from New York city this morning in time for lunch.

Cuba Is Believed Seeking $50,000,000 U. S. Loan

HAVANA, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Cuba will try urgently to negotiate a loan of $50,000,000 in the United States, well-informed sources said tonight.

It was understood a cablegram giving full instructions for negotiation of such a loan was sent today to the Cuban embassy at Washington.

It also was understood that this loan has no connection with possible negotiations for a larger loan from the Import-Export Bank of Washington.

High government officials refused to confirm or deny the possibility of these loans.

Italian Munitions Plant Blast and Fire Kills 10

ROME, Aug. 30.—(Friday)—(AP) An explosion in a Bologna munitions factory last night killed 10 persons and injured many others.

Big fires broke out and flames caught a nearby pavilion as firemen fought the blaze. Troops and Red Cross workers engaged in rescue work early today, hunting for victims and removing the injured.

Take Last Fling At Summer Outdoors

Many, next weekend, will lay aside their labors and take one last fling in the great outdoors. But to be sure that the person in charge of feeding the picnickers gets a relief from her labors the meal will have to be planned. There are a few things to remember: Fare must be plain and substantial, do not plan things that require long cooking either at home or at the picnic grounds, and as far as possible, choose foods that can be eaten with the fingers or with just one utensil. Some picnickers prefer to make sandwiches and do all the cooking at home, while others love a campfire and delight in lending a hand with the cooking. Children are gleeful over a stick with foods to be broiled stuck on the pointed end.

It isn't necessary to have the skill of a scout to build an adequate campfire. But it helps if you can clear away a shallow indentation in the ground, and surround it on three sides with stones, earth or sand, so that a grill can span across the top. Wait until the flames have been reduced to glowing coals before you try to cook anything on it.

Take along at least one old-fashioned, long-handled wire toaster (if you have two, one can be used for toasting bread or rolls while the other does duty broiling cube steaks, frankfurters or hamburger patties.) A long-handled fork and a frying pan are also important tools of your equipment.

And here are suggestions for things to cook that can be "eaten from the hand" in real picnic style—no knives, forks or plates are necessary.

Hunters' Steak on Rolls.
Allow 1 cube steak for each roll. Arrange on old-fashioned double wire toaster; grill 1 minute on each side over hot embers of campfire. Dust with salt and pepper. Place in split, buttered hamburger roll (toasted first, if desired), and top with thin slice sweet onion. If you haven't a toaster, use a frying pan; when it's hot, add a bit of fat, and brown steaks quickly, 1 minute on each side.

Minute-Man Specials.
Shape minute steaks to fit slices of bread. Crush 1 clove garlic and sprinkle with salt to absorb juice. Dust steaks lightly with seasoned salt. (This may be done at home, and the steaks packed with sheets of wax paper between them.) Grill them over the campfire embers, about 1 minute on each side, and place between slices of hot buttered toast.

Chili Mulligan on Rolls
At home, place 3 tablespoons of fat in a metal measuring cup, then pack the cup full of chopped onion (for easy transportation to the picnic, place heavy wax paper over top and secure with elastic band). When ready to cook, empty onion and fat into frying pan and fry slowly 3-4 minutes. Add 1 pound of hamburger and brown meat. Pour in 1 can condensed tomato soup, 1 can spiced beans, salt and pepper to taste, and 1/2 teaspoon chili powder, if desired. Cook for 10 minutes more. Serve on split buttered hamburger or frankfurter rolls, or on toasted bread.

Hamburger Rabbits.

Prepare meat at home as follows: Season hamburger with salt, pepper, minced onion and a little mustard. Form into thin flat cakes to fit hamburger rolls. Place each cake on square of waxed paper, wrap and pack in picnic basket. When ready to eat, brown hamburgers quickly in a little hot fat in frying pan; turn once and top with thin slice of soft American cheese. Continue cooking until cheese melts slightly into meat. Serve on split toasted and buttered hamburger rolls.

Frankfurter-Sauerkraut Bake
Prepare this at home and reheat it over the campfire. Arrange in a covered kettle, 6 frankfurters, 1 pound sauerkraut, 1 chopped onion, 1-2 cup chopped celery, 3 tablespoons butter and salt and pepper to taste. Bake in slow oven (325 degrees F.) about two hours. Wrap kettle in newspapers and take to picnic. Heat again over campfire. Place frankfurters in split, buttered frankfurter rolls top with sauerkraut and eat.

If you're the kind of picnicker who finds it easier to make heaps of sandwiches at home, tuck them, along with fruit, cookies and drink, in the picnic basket and set blithely forth, here are sandwich ideas. Give sandwiches variety both with different breads and with fillings.

Men like rye bread, youngsters go for whole-wheat raisin, and most everybody likes white bread and cracked wheat. You can always splurge on a variety of breads with a clear conscience—any slices left over can be used for breakfast toast. Sandwich filling mixtures that taste especially good on various breads are suggested here:

On whole-wheat raisin bread or cracked wheat bread—Cream cheese, chopped nuts and salt. Peanut butter and crushed pineapple. Chopped ham blended with apple butter, put together with lettuce and mayonnaise. Chopped hard-cooked egg, shredded raw spinach, chopped green onion, mayonnaise.

On rye bread—Sliced corned beef, mustard and mayonnaise. Cottage cheese softened with sour cream, jam. Liverwurst and sweet onion. Sliced ham, Swiss cheese, lettuce, mayonnaise. Potato salad and lettuce.

On white bread—Crab meat, chopped olives, hard-cooked eggs, mayonnaise. Sliced pork, apple butter and lettuce. Sliced veal, pineapple mashed with mayonnaise. Chopped apples, dates and mayonnaise. Cream cheese and guava jelly.

A-picnicking we will go. And what fun it is to let each one help with the cooking! Trimmed sticks are fine for individual broiling.

Ideas From a Cook's Notebook

Cream soups of various sorts are as good luncheon dishes for warm days as for cold. In the summer make them early in the day and simply reheat them in a double boiler for serving at lunch time. Served with lettuce or watercress or cheese sandwiches and a salad they make a well balanced, nutritious and appetizing meal.

A good general rule for cream soups made from fresh corn, asparagus, spinach, green peas or mixed vegetables is to use 2 cups cooked vegetable pulp or puree to 2 cups white sauce, either thin or medium thin depending on the amount of liquid in the vegetables.

LAMB CHOP GRILL.

For each portion allow 1 thick loin lamb chop, 2 slices bacon, 2 or 3 mushroom caps and a whole small tomato. Preheat the broiler. Season the chops with salt and pepper and cook 3 inches below the broiler flame until brown on one side. Turn the chops to brown on the other side. Arrange the bacon, mushroom caps and tomatoes cut in thick slices on the broiler—place a small piece of butter in each mushroom cap, and sprinkle the tomatoes with salt, pepper, flour and sugar, then dot with butter. Continue the broiling until the chops are brown, the bacon crisp and the tomatoes and mushrooms tender. Arrange the chops on small triangles of toast and surround with the bacon, mushrooms and tomatoes. Serve very hot.

Now that the watermelon and cantaloupe season is with us, don't forget that some of that useless melon rind can be transformed into delicious spiced or pickled melon rind.

APPETIZERS.

Stuffed Celery With Shrimp
1 can shrimp
2 hard cooked eggs
Mayonnaise
Pickles Olives
Pimentos

Cut shrimp very fine, add other ingredients with enough mayonnaise or salad dressing to make a paste. Cut celery in 3-4-inch pieces and fill with this paste. Serve very cold.

Shrimp Beet-ies
I can tiny whole beets, or small beets of uniform size cooked
1 can shrimp, mashed fine
Pickled onions
Salt and pepper to taste

Hollow out whole beets. Fill with mashed shrimp seasoned to taste with salt and pepper. Top each beet with a pickled onion.

Cranberry Sherbet
Cranberry sherbet is a delicate pink and quite delicious. Make it this easy way: Crush 1 can cranberry sauce. Add grated rind and juice of 1 lemon and juice of 1 orange. Freeze partially. Fold in stiffly beaten whites of 2 eggs, or 1 cup whipped cream. Continue freezing.

Corn Fritters
Cut cooked corn from the cob to make 2 cups of the kernels. Mix with 1 cup milk and 2 well beaten eggs. Sift 1 1/4 cups flour with 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper and 1 teaspoon sugar. 2 in between the berries with whip-teaspoons baking powder. Add to the corn mixture and mix to a batter. If necessary add one or two tablespoons flour—the batter should not be stiff, but should be about the consistency of muffin or cake batter. Heat any preferred shortening in a deep frying pan, having about one-half inch of fat in the pan. Drop in the fritters from a tablespoon, brown on one side, turn and brown on the other, then remove to soft paper to drain thoroughly. Keep hot in the oven until all the fritters are cooked. Serve hot with crisp bacon, with thin slices broiled or fried ham, as an entree or a breakfast dish with syrup.

Here's a new wrinkle for your breakfast toast. Use your electric waffle iron, heating it to the same degree you would for waffles. Have ready thin slices of bread lightly buttered and crustless. Place each slice of bread in the hot waffle iron, close up the iron and bake for 2 or 3 minutes until the bread is crisp, golden brown and "waffled." Serve at once with honey, marmalade, or as is!

Paprika will darken if kept in a warm place, so be sure your can of this useful seasoning is stored in a convenient spot, but not too near the stove.

A baked pie shell filled with shredded fresh pineapple sweetened with powdered sugar and garnished with whole ripe berries makes a delicious dessert. Use about 1 pint of perfect berries for the garnishing and fill the spaces in between the berries with whip-cream forced through a pastry bag.

New Fixin', Old Dish

Among the humble foods that lay no claim to fame except that folks have liked them since cooking began, is rice pudding. Well made, it is a work of art; but so often is an unappetizing, lumpy version met, many persons eye this old-time favorite with frank suspicion.

The rice pudding pictured today has a ring of strawberry preserves around its creamy edge, for a pleasant change from the oft-used raisins. Children and adults will like this nutritious and healthful dessert, made thus:

Creamy Rice Pudding.

1-2 cup uncooked rice
3 cups scalded milk
1 teaspoon salt
4 eggs, separated
1-2 teaspoon lemon rind
1-2 cup sugar
1-2 cup strawberry preserves or jelly

Add rice to 2 cups of the scalded milk in top of double boiler, stirring constantly. Add salt and cook over hot water, covered, until rice is tender, stirring occasionally. Beat 4 egg yolks and 2 of the whites together, add lemon rind and half the sugar, and slowly add the remaining 1 cup of hot milk. Add the hot cooked rice, stirring carefully so as not to crush it. Turn into buttered casserole, set in shallow pan of hot water, and bake in a slow oven (325 F.) for 20 minutes. Beat the 2 remaining egg whites until stiff and gradually beat in rest of sugar until smooth and stiff. Spread about half the meringue over the pudding, arrange strawberry preserves in ring around the edge of the dish, and pile rest of meringue in center. Return to oven for about 20 minutes or until a silver knife inserted in the pudding comes out clean and the meringue is toasted. Serves 6.

Old-fashioned rice pudding bobs up in a new dress. Strawberry preserves lusciously encircle the pudding shown here.

Cooking for Two Is Simplified

Cooking for two persons, though small quantities are involved, is no small job, as any bride can tell you. To get variety without having too many leftovers is the main problem. It would be well for the woman who cooks for only two to make a scrapbook of recipes for smaller quantity cooking, because there are few cookbooks which deal with this subject at length.

Mrs. Allen Morris, a former president of the Debutante Club, gave us one of her husband's favorite dishes for your scrapbook.

Corn Pie.

1 cup whole grain corn
2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Salt and pepper
1 cup strained tomatoes
1 cup cooked, diced veal
Mix corn with tomatoes, egg yolks, butter and salt and pepper. Place half the corn mixture in a well-buttered baking dish, add veal and cover with remainder of corn mixture. Bake in a moderate oven about 30 minutes. Serves 4, but recipe may be cut in half for 2 servings.

Add these to your recipes for TWO:

Creamed Tuna Fish.
2-3 cup tuna fish
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Quite pleased with her job, Mrs. Allen Morris is cutting corn from the cob preparatory to making one of husband's favorite dishes.

Few grains of cayenne pepper
1-3 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1-2 teaspoon lemon juice
1 egg yolk
Melt the butter, add salt, cayenne and flour. Gradually add milk, cook until thick, stirring constantly unless in double boiler. Add egg yolk. Add tuna, separated with fork, and the lemon juice. Serve on hot toast or on toasted biscuits.

Ice-Box Rolls.

1 cake yeast
1-4 cup lukewarm water
1 cup cold water
2-3 cup fat (part butter)
1 teaspoon salt
1-2 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup mashed potatoes (not seasoned)
5 cups flour (about)

Crumble yeast in a large-sized bowl, add lukewarm water and mix well. Mix cold water, fat, salt and sugar. Bring to boiling point and cool to lukewarm before pouring into yeast. Add eggs, potatoes and two cups of flour. Beat three minutes. Add flour slowly until a soft dough forms. Knead three minutes, place in a greased bowl. Cover tightly and let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down a little, cover with waxed paper and a lid and store in the refrigerator. It will keep a week.

This pineapple drink has a cooling look.

Refresh Yourself

Summer is waning, but heat and thirst are still with us. Chilled fruit juices are the modern answer to thirst, because fruit juices are health-giving, and add no burden to the digestive system; that is, if they aren't taken too cold. Drinks should be thoroughly chilled, but are better thirst-quenchers if not icy-cold. Here is an extraordinarily delicious combination of fruit flavors.

Two cups canned unsweetened pineapple juice.
One cup peach juice (saved from canned peaches).
Half cup orange juice.
Two tablespoons lemon juice.

Crushed Ice.
Mix and chill the juices. Serve in frosted glasses over crushed ice. Serves six.
An unusually flavorful variation of iced tea is this:
Three cups boiling water.
Three teaspoons tea.
Half cup orange juice.
Third of a cup lemon juice.
One pint gingerale.
Mint sprigs, orange slices and sugar to taste.
Pour boiling water over tea, steep and strain. Cool. Stir in lemon and orange juices and sweeten slightly. Serve over ice. Add gingerale at last minute.

1-4 cup water
1-2 stick cinnamon
Mix sugar and water; add the cinnamon stick and bring to a boil. Dip the tomatoes for a few seconds in boiling water. Peel. Add to the syrup and cook slowly until thickened, or about 45 minutes. Remove cinnamon stick after first 20 minutes of cooking. Serve with meats. Good hot or cold.

Scalloped Eggplant.

Submitted by Mrs. James E. Bridges, Route 1, Lexington, Ga.

2 medium sized eggplants
2 eggs
5 tablespoons butter
4 cups cracker crumbs
1-4 teaspoon black pepper
1-4 teaspoon salt
2 cups sweet milk
Peel and slice eggplant. Cook in salt water until tender. Drain. Put alternate layers of eggplant and cracker crumbs in casserole. Beat egg, add milk, butter, pepper and salt. Pour over eggplant and cracker crumbs. Bake in hot oven until brown.

Sweet Potatoes

Sweet potatoes, from days on "way back when," have been a favorite staple of the south, and recent scientific investigations of the luscious insides of a sweet potato prove that you can go right on putting your bet on it. Sweet potatoes not only run high on a vitamin A count, but show up nicely on vitamins B and C and supply important minerals that you need. And since they are so delicious and inexpensive they can be used to supplement many meals.

Sweet Potato Casserole.
Peel and slice four medium-sized boiled potatoes. Place a layer of potatoes in a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with seeded raisins and sugar, to which has been added a little cinnamon. Put another layer of potatoes and sprinkle as before. Repeat until dish is filled. Pour over three cups of boiling water. Dot with butter and sprinkle top with sugar and cinnamon. Cover dish and cook until thoroughly steamed and raisins are tender. Then uncover and cook down to a syrup. Serve with cream.

Glaze Sweet Potatoes.
Glaze (pronounced glah-say) sweet potatoes always hit the spot and particularly when they are glazed with brown sugar. Select medium-sized potatoes. Cook in boiling water until tender. Drain and peel. Cut in halves lengthwise and put in a greased shallow pan. Sprinkle with third cup brown sugar and dot generously with butter or margarine. Sprinkle half teaspoon of ground cinnamon over all and bake in a hot oven about 20 minutes or until delicately browned.

A prize of $1 each is awarded for recipes printed in this column every Friday. Address recipes to The Constitution or to Sally Saver, with your name and address written plainly on each sheet.

Italians Need Suez To Win, Expert Says

Selassie's Former Aide Asserts Success Hinges on Naval Battle.

By PETER DOLAN JR.

For The North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—An announcement from London that the British forces have withdrawn from British Somaliland does not mean that the Italians have started a terrific, large-scale offensive in Africa, according to Harold A. White, world traveler and an expert on African affairs.

White, who was a captain in the regular United States Army during the World War, on special duty throughout the conflict, spent seven years in Africa and was Emperor Haile Selassie's fiscal agent during the Italian conquest of Ethiopia. White, now head of an advertising firm in New York, was an all-American tackle at Syracuse University in 1916.

Must Capture Suez. "Italy is putting the cart before the horse," Mr. White said in an interview. "Before she can make any lasting gains in Africa she must capture the Suez canal so that her troops will be assured of adequate food supplies and indispensable mechanical equipment. The battle for domination of Africa will necessarily be a battle of navies."

"Even the Italians must realize that a large-scale offensive could hardly be launched from the Somaliland battle area. There are too many major obstacles that bar the path to any sizable successes. First, the Italians must battle the heat, 130 to 140 degrees at practically all times; they must stamp out the independent spirit of the Somali people; they must wipe out of the minds of their own soldiers the moral hazard that the fierce practices of the native troops have implanted there; and it stands to reason that the Italian colonies in Africa could not possibly supply food for a large army."

Guerrilla Warfare. Through his own sources of information, White has heard that on the Sudan border the famed Ethiopian fighter, Beru, with 200,000 British-equipped Ethiopian fighters, stands ready to join in the guerrilla warfare now being waged against the Italians. It is his belief that these men, when properly equipped, "are the equals of any colonial troops."

"Italian bombings could not have amounted to much," said White. "They haven't bombed places of strategic importance. For instance, it was reported that they bombed Moyale. The Moyale fort is just an outpost surrounded by 300 miles of desert. Does this worry the British? The whole campaign is a farce."

Misfortune Rains On DeKalb Pair

Misfortune never rains but it pours. Three days ago the one and only cow owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Birets, of Indian Creek drive, was poisoned and died. Two days ago a person or persons unknown got into the Birets watermelon patch, stole a few of the melons and smashed the rest. They also pulled up a number of peanut vines. Yesterday Mrs. Birets reported to DeKalb county police that somebody had entered her home and stolen a purse containing $9 and a pair of glasses, and then made off with a one-pound slice of ham.

Library Exercises To Be Held Today

Ground will be broken at 3 o'clock this afternoon for the new $40,000 branch library near Little Five Points in Inman Park. Under a co-operative arrangement between the city and WPA, work will begin early next week. Alderman Raleigh Drennon, member of the library committee of council, and Councilmen Howard Haire and Frank Wilson, other members from the sixth ward, have urged the improvement for the last two years. The city has owned the tract on which the building will be constructed for the last 20 years. Mayor Hartsfield will wield the pick at the ground breaking, which will be attended by W. J. Scott, principal of East Junior High school in the vicinity of the site, and representatives of civic organizations in the community.

Youth Speaks Piece, Urging School Bonds

Letter Describes Shacks in Which Boys Try To Study.

Take it from one who knows, the bond issue for schools will be an investment Atlanta can hardly afford to reject.

The following letter, from a youngster who came up through the school system, spending his years of learning in the jerry-built firetraps which the bond issue will replace, expresses succinctly the way the people in the schools feel about their surroundings.

It begins:

"The Constitution's story on the schools told the truth. It revealed, as they are, the conditions in the old woodpiles, particularly at Tech High. I'm not saying this just to be saying it. I know what it's like over there. In the two years I've been there I've had 18 study classes, and 13 of them were in ice boxes.

"Sometimes I think more light comes in through the cracks in the walls than comes in through the windows.

"And it is hard to study in the winter. You can put on your coat, but your hands are still bare, and it makes writing one hard task. And feel! After 15 minutes you don't know whether they are still on or whether they dropped off on page 97.

"Some people may say: 'Why give them a new school? They'll only mark it up with chalk and carve it with knives.' Well, the school is marked. Why? Because the kids are mad. They are showing their contempt for the old traps they have to live in for six hours a day. Give us a new school and watch us handle it with kid gloves.

"I'll be gone, if and when we get a new building. But I hope, for the sake of the hundreds who in the future will go to Tech High and Boys' High, that they will have a decent place to study in."

"So keep on fighting for the bonds. I'm too young to vote. But I wanted to have my say. For I'm not talking just to hear the music of my own voice. I know."

"Sincerely,
"JOHN J. WATSON, TSH, '41."

'Reform Drive' Opens Tonight In Carrollton

Voters Stirred by Revelation of County Affairs in Trial.

A reform drive among Carroll county voters, stirred by revelation of county affairs in testimony at the murder trial of Bill Chappell at Marietta a month ago, is to be organized in an open mass meeting starting at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the courthouse in Carrollton.

Groups from all of the 22 militia districts were said yesterday to be expected, and especially interested delegations from Carrollton, Villa Rica, Bowdon, Hulett and Temple.

Heads Committee.

Frank Daniel, Villa Rica oil mill executive, is chairman of the general citizens' committee organized to bring reform, and S. N. Richardson, of Villa Rica, heads the subcommittee in charge of the meeting. Others active include J. T. (Tyre) Jones, and Warren C. Cantrell, oil distributor of Carrollton.

Jones, who lives in a rural section near Carrollton, has announced as a candidate against W. Hamp Chappell, father of Bill Chappell and sole commissioner of roads and revenues, having charge of all county expenditures. Chappell won renomination for the office in an early primary last spring, but the new developments will witness him fighting it out with Jones in the November general election—a virtually unheard-of proceeding.

Son Convicted.

Chappell's son, Bill, was convicted and given a life sentence in the murder of J. Ed Peek, a county supply salesman, and his wife, which remained a mystery for two years. The prosecution emphasized Peek's relations with Bill Chappell, involving alleged gifts of county property, laxity in management of convicts—two of whom were Bill's alleged murder accomplices—and the extent to which witnesses for the defense were recipients of county contracts or were allied with the elder Chappell politically.

Cantrell yesterday said tonight's meeting would be "a trial balloon."

"We have sent out the word, and we want to see if the people of Carroll county are interested," he said. "It is an open mass meeting, free to everyone, and with everybody invited."

An auditor was brought Monday from Gainesville by Chappell to prepare a statement of county finances and expenditures for the meeting.

HALF-HOLIDAYS ENDED.

Atlantans Flay Bankhead for Air Statement

Citizens Here Say City Is Better Terminal Than Birmingham.

Atlanta's aviation-minded citizens yesterday replied to Speaker Bankhead's blast at the Civil Aeronautics Board for "seeing only Atlanta when they look southward" by pointing out that "even a blind man should know Atlanta is a natural air and rail terminus."

The speaker of the house had complained in a letter to Chairman Harlee Branch that Birmingham had not been given direct air service to the east, although an application had been pending for months for a Birmingham-Pittsburgh line. "Frankly I have been greatly disappointed that Birmingham has not been given through service to eastern cities and to the west," said Bankhead's letter. Jesse Draper, aviation enthusiast and chairman last year of the Chamber of Commerce's aviation committee, said Atlanta did not wish to deprive Birmingham of any service they are entitled to but that he thought Speaker Bankhead would do well to check up on the comparative air traffic which the two cities provide.

Fears Politics.

"I do hope that they are not trying to put aviation into politics," Draper said. "The airlines might as well quit if they are placed in politics because politicians rather than need dictators where lines shall run, the rapid transportation aim of aviation will be defeated."

Roy Ulrich, secretary of the Atlanta Chamber, while refusing to comment on the statement by Speaker Bankhead, pointed out that Birmingham was not the only city on whose application for air lines had not been acted.

"We have had several applications for lines to and from the east and south which the CAA has not had time to get around to as yet," the chamber secretary said.

Natural Location.

Hugh Head, prominent in Junior Chamber of Commerce work in Atlanta, said that before "Birmingham went criticizing the existence of aviation terminals in Atlanta, it should make up its mind whether it could swap its natural geological location for Atlanta's natural location for an air terminus."

"I wonder if Birmingham is mad at Savannah for having a seaport," Head said.

And in reply to Bankhead's statement that "we of Alabama do not object to seeing Atlanta get adequate air service, but we resent most strongly the neglect of other parts of the south by our different government departments when efforts are being made to concentrate all government agencies and all modern air facilities in one city," Head declared:

"The army has long maintained that the great weakness in defense plans is the insistence by politicians that defense units be spread out among cities rather than concentrated where they could be of most service in defending the entire United States."

Albany May Continue Eastern Standard Time

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. ALBANY, Ga., Aug. 29.—Albany may have eastern standard time the year around, instead of "slow" time in the winter and "fast" time in the summer, as is now the case.

A movement, sponsored by local business men who believe the city suffers from a trade standpoint by not having eastern time the year around, has resulted in an ordinance being passed on its first reading to make "fast" time permanent.

The effect would be to continue what the city has and not to change back to "slow" time September 8.

10 Killed, Many Hurt In Italian Explosion

ROME, Aug. 29.—(AP)—An explosion in a Bologna "auxiliary establishment" killed 10 persons and injured many tonight.

Fires broke out, setting ablaze a nearby pavilion. Firemen and Red Cross workers removed the injured and fascist officials rushed to the scene.

(The meaning of "auxiliary establishment" was not made clear, presumably because of censorship, but the terminology suggested a plant used for military purposes was involved.)

HOLIDAYS TO CONTINUE.

THOMASTON, Ga., Aug. 29.—Thomaston grocersmen announced today that food stores in Thomaston will continue to close each Wednesday afternoon until the first week in December. Other stores will discontinue Wednesday afternoon closing this week until next spring. The food stores will resume closing in January.

ARRIVES TODAY—Congressman Martin Dies is due to arrive here this morning from Washington to address the Americanism Day program at the municipal auditorium tonight.

Lower Freight Rate To Begin September 1st

New Ratings Apply to Most 'Less Than Carload' Traffic.

Reduced railroad rates on merchandise traffic between the south and official territory will become effective September 1, according to J. G. Kerr, chairman of the Southern Freight Association.

The new scale follows action by the Interstate Commerce Commission that refused to suspend reductions in 3,500 "less than carload" and 220 classification ratings on merchandise traffic.

The low rates apply to practically all classes of "less than carload" traffic except light, bulky, fragile, hazardous and perishable goods. Reduced fares will range from 15 to 30 per cent.

Added to 600 reduced ratings made effective July 15, the new schedule will make the total reductions in "less than carload" merchandise approximate 45 per cent of the business in southern classification.

Thomas 'Up in the Air' About Election Outcome

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, who says that in past presidential years he has been able to name the likely winner by September 1, asserted today he was "completely up in the air" this year because "neither of the major party nominees are discussing the real issues."

He asserted that both President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie "are doing a bad job in statesmanship and political leadership—not a good job."

POPULARITY CONTEST.

THOMASTON, Ga., Aug. 29.—It was announced today that already 32 girls have entered in the "Miss Upson County" popularity contest being held in Thomaston by the Lions Club and co-operating business firms. First-prize winner will receive $100 or a trip to the New York World's Fair.

Patriotic Rally Here Tonight To Hear Dies

Un-American Activities Investigator Arrives By Train.

Congressman Martin Dies, of Texas, chairman of the House Committee Investigating Un-American Activities, will arrive in Atlanta this morning to fulfill a speaking engagement tonight at the city auditorium as Atlanta and Georgia observe Americanism Day.

Congressman Dies, principal speaker on the Americanism Day program, is due to arrive here by train from Washington. His entrance into Atlanta will be unobscured, although Mayor Hartsfield has urged merchants and other businesses to display the American flag.

Congressman Dies will be met at the station by Wellborn Ellis, general chairman of the Americanism Day committee; George B. Yancey, exalted ruler of Atlanta Elks Lodge No. 79, sponsor of the program; J. Clayton Burke, secretary of the Elks, and Ellis Arnall, state attorney general, who will introduce Congressman Dies at the auditorium.

No ceremonies at the station are planned, other than Congressman Dies being welcomed by those meeting him. From the station, he will go to the Biltmore hotel, where press interviews will be held and photographs taken.

Yancey said last night he did not know the congressman's plans for the time between his arrival and the hour when he addresses the meeting at the auditorium, scheduled to begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Virtually every civic, patriotic, fraternal and social organization is co-operating with the Elks in observance of the day, which has been designated as Americanism Day.

Day throughout the state by Governor Rivers.

SYLVESTER, Ga., Aug. 29.—The demand for farm labor far exceeds the supply in Worth county. Farmers from as far away as Cordele, Moultrie, Tifton and Albany are seen daily around Sylvester, looking for cotton pickers and peanut shakers. ## Nudist Camps Now Are Active After Bad Start

Cold Weather Almost Ruined Season in North Jersey.

By JAMES MACFARLAND.
For North American Newspaper Alliance.
STOCKHOLM, N. J., Aug. 29.—North Jersey's nudist camps, after a slow start, are alive with activity today as hundreds of back-to-nature lovers, who were deprived of their favorite "outdoor sport" for almost two months because of unseasonable weather, are roasting in the soft sunshine. The many nudist havens in this area were just about ready to fold up when summer at last made its belated appearance, but with the arrival of torrid weather north Jersey is again the nation's playground for no-clothes advocates. This correspondent, who is "trusted" by the nudist camp operators, dropped in one cool day early in June at Rock Lodge, the 220-acre elaborate establishment of the American Gymnosophical Association, near here. As a rule, the camp proprietors are not keen about having newspaper reporters prowling around their grounds, but Dr. Herman Soshinski, who operates Rock Lodge during the summer and Mossy Oaks, near Tallahassee, Fla., during the winter, is always willing to welcome a scribe "with an honest face."

Visit Uneventful.
The visit to Rock Lodge was uneventful. Dr. Soshinski stated at that time that the season was a "disastrous" one, explaining that "people prefer to stay in the city when we have all this rain and cool weather." In May and June, when the nudist season generally starts, the camps offered no entertainment to those who are wont to romp around unclothed, a survey at that time revealed that the operators of the other camps in the area were praying for hot weather.

What a Contrast!
What a contrast in the second visit! No longer was the camp deserted. No longer was there shivering. Heavy clothing and sweaters had been put in moth balls once and for all. Little nudists, medium-size nudists and big nudists were having the time of their lives frolicking about. Husbands and wives, sisters and brothers, grandmothers and grandfathers, without even as much as a pair of shoes to cover their skins, engaged in such games as volleyball, tag, tennis and badminton.

Dr. Soshinski invited this correspondent to hang his clothes over a hickory limb and mingle with the clothesless ones. He obliged, and was promptly escorted down a tree-studded path to the lake where the guests were "sun bathing," that is, some bathing and others sunning.

Seriousness Impressive.
The attractively tanned nudists were most congenial and courteous. They invited their new guest to partake of a game of volleyball. This invitation was accepted. After the volleyball game, the correspondent chatted with the nudists and was impressed by their apparent seriousness. They declared that nudism made one more healthy and contented, that once one tried nudism, he or she would be sold on the idea. The latter argument is open to much question.

TO ORDAIN THREE.
BARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 29.—Ordination services for George Horne, Floyd Murphy and Franklin Ethridge, new deacons of Milner Baptist church, will be held at the church Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

LUCKY FOR LOVE

Clara Accuses Al of Insulting Her, And Hess, Coming Up Behind, Hits Him

By JANE DIXON.

SYNOPSIS. Clara Marsh, very conscious of her blond good looks, is announced as the winner of a six-county beauty contest in Millville's Bijou theater by Al Martin, sleek-haired representative of the Metropole Amusement Corporation of New York. The prize is a 10-day trip to New York and Clara takes the $100 allowed for a chaperon to her instead of taking her mother. That evening Clara's younger sister, Marilyn, is awarded the $1,000 prize for the best single contest. Marilyn celebrated by lunching at the Silver Grill with Sally Meacham with whom she works in the Bon Ton store. Al, there with Clara, sees Marilyn and it is love at first sight. Marilyn has to tell him he will make trouble for her if he doesn't stop his attentions. Back in New York with Clara, Al tells Palmer Watson, Metropole chief, Clara is drinking too much and getting out of hand. Al wires Marilyn in New York. She phones Clara but she refuses to see her, accusing her of spying on her. Al's ruse brings them together but Clara still is obstinate. Marilyn goes to work in Clara's promotion department. Al hears Clara will be at the Blue Parrot next night and takes her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XV.

Inside the plain plateglass doors, beautifully etched and frosted to shut out the curiosity of a long-necked public, Marilyn Marsh hesitated. The atmosphere was something she had never known. Thick and hot and sweetish. It enveloped her like a smothering fog shot with darts of light, heavy with strange perfumes. It pressed against her like a massive hand in a velvet glove. "Steady, Duchess," Al said close to her ear. "The eyes of the keepers are on you. They have to be careful, with all those insane inmates on the other side of the white plush rope. Black this out and pretend you're walking in the Silver Grill in Millville." Miraculously, Marilyn succeeded in adopting Al's suggestion. The pressure of his arm guided her to a seat. She kept her eyes on the table before her, imagining the familiar make-believe marble and mawish pink of the Silver Grill. "Have you looked, Al?" she asked, not raising her eyes. Is— is Clara here?" "Not within eyeshot," Al said.

"But wait a minute—don't look now. We're just in time for the big entrance. Blondie is sweeping by the barrier and making a beeline for the crystal bar." Insidious rhythm was throbbing against Marilyn's ears. Muted drums and a clicking sound, at once sharp and silken. Conga. "You can take your head out of the sand now, Duchess," Al said encouragingly. "Better look around and get your bearings. Blondie is parked at the bar and she'll be there for several rounds. Herman Hess is buying bubbles with a dash of bitters and a maraschino cherry in them. Giddy-up, Herman, you're going fine!" "Clara at the bar? She hasn't seen us?" "Not yet. She's giving us a very expensive and intimate view of her back. The bar is over there, to the left." Marilyn looked at a long curve of crystal behind fantastic plumes and mazes of green water plants were a garden for tropical fishes that might have been fragments of a rainbow dropped into a coral cove. "I don't see Clara," she said, with relief, when she had quipped the curve from end to end. Al said, dryly, "We'll have to get you a set of lorgnettes, De-lovely. The bright lights blind little ladies like you. Note the number in the flame-colored dress near the center of the curve. The one with the black butterfly sitting on top of her taffy head. Anything familiar about the picture?" Relief swelled to a chuckle in Marilyn's throat. "I'll treat you to a pair of dark glasses out of my first pay check," she told Al. "Bright lights have positively dazzled you. Or Clara has worried you so much you're having multiple vision." "Sa-ay," Al gave the woman at the bar a searching look. "Blondie is putting it over! Why, she's so set up her own sister doesn't know her." "Very well," indulgently, "if you must clown. Don't you suppose I know Clara when I see her. That woman's hair is shades lighter than sister's. As for the flame-colored gown—obviously it is a gown—the combined Marsh girls' wardrobes wouldn't pay the designer who thought up that creation." At that moment the flame woman at the bar turned her head so that she faced her companion, the pudgy man at her right. Her profile came into clear view. The stem of a wide frosted glass was slipped between the first and middle fingers of her hand so that she cupped the bowl in her palm. She raised the glass to her lips with a theatrical gesture. "Clara!" Marilyn's cheeks went as pale as the orchids that flecked one of them. "Al, it can't be—there's some mistake—it's the lights—they're playing tricks—" Al warned, "Take it easy, pal. You're not seeing ghosts. The only hants around this place are the ghosts of yesterday and they're dead. The one you thing you see, the blonde one, is very much alive and sizzling." "We've got to get her away from that man," Marilyn declared. "He's horrid. He's—repugnant. Al, he's putting his hand on Clara's shoulder—her bare shoulder. I'm going over there this minute." "Oh no, you're not, Duchess." Al took Marilyn's hand, held it firmly to prevent her bolting. "All that would get you would be a scene, with you cast as the heavy. Use your head, honey-chile. Use your head. See the table next to you, the empty one? Hess leases it by the season. As soon as Clara decides she needs a new position for her spotlight they'll make for Hess's table. To get to it, they'll have to pass right by us. Then we'll see what we'll see."

John Wellborn Arrives in Spain With Other Ambulance Drivers.

John D. Wellborn, Atlanta who volunteered for service in the American ambulance units assigned to the French army, has survived his war experiences and is safe in Barcelona, Spain, according to information received by his brother, William Wellborn, here yesterday.

The brother said here that he had not heard directly from John since he received a letter written July 15 in Pau, France, but Associated Press dispatches said John was with the American ambulance drivers who arrived yesterday in the Spanish city.

William Wellborn was sent funds to a New York shipping company to pay for his brother's transportation home, he said.

John Wellborn sailed on the United States liner Washington to join the ambulance unit and took refuge in Pau, France, when the French army retreated.

The Associated Press story says the Americans, wearing uniforms when they reached the border, were held by Spanish authorities for a short time to determine whether they should be treated as combatants.

Senator Bridges Asks F. D. R. To Oust Robert Due to Fees

Party Secretary Says He Will Welcome Senate Investigation.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Lawrence W. (Chip) Robert, secretary of the Democratic National Committee, tonight said he welcomed a defense contract investigation demanded today by Senator Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, and asked that it be held quickly "before he attempts further to clog up the vital defense program by petty political sniping."

"Senator Bridges, if he desires to be honestly constructive," Robert said, "should read the record and learn that this company and its associates have been continually and without interruption doing business running into millions for the federal government since the Coolidge administration."

"As a professional firm, all of this work has been by negotiated contracts based on ability and readiness to serve and in competition with countless other firms."

"I heartily welcome the investigation suggested by the senator and the quicker the better before he attempts further to clog up the vital defense program by petty political sniping."

The firm, Roberts said, has had a business volume of over $500,000,000 in the last 23 years.

"But because I am a stockholder have been elected to an honorary and payless position as secretary of the Democratic national committee," he continued, "then this important firm of over 400 skilled architects and engineers should be counted out altogether and not use its talents and facilities at this vital period."

Robert said "my distinguished Republican friend, Albert Kahn, a Detroit architect, has obtained far greater jobs for national defense. But the senator has not time to go into this at the moment. He evidently just wants to complain for political purposes."

Probe of Contracts Given Atlantan Also Demanded.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP) Senator Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, demanded in the senate today that President Roosevelt remove Lawrence W. (Chip) Robert as secretary of the Democratic national committee because of disclosures that the Atlanta architectural firm of Robert & Company had been granted fees of $931,560 on defense contracts totaling $26,859,081.

Information on the contracts and fees were placed in the Congressional Record yesterday by Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the house naval committee after the committee had called for data on the Robert contracts.

Bridges also demanded that the attorney general investigate award of the contracts. He made similar demands earlier in the day in a statement issued through the Republican national committee.

Bridges said it would be "interesting to find out whether these contracts were put up for bidding or just passed out." He added the people "want to know whether these billions for defense are being passed out honestly."

'Boom Town' Opens at Loew's Today

Gable, Colbert, Tracy, Lamarr In Top Roles

'Escape,' 'Strike Up Band,' 'Philadelphia Story' Coming Soon.

With the showing of "Boom Town," starting today, Loew's officially will launch its fall entertainment season.

This initial production, starring Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr, was selected because it represents the most ambitious multi-star photoplay released over the Loew circuit since "Dinner at Eight," seven years ago.

The story is an exciting and intensely romantic narrative, on a sweeping scale, of the great oil rush in the west, and its effect on the lives of those caught up in its cycle of feverish activity. Much of the later action takes place in New York City. Although the four stars have never appeared in a single feature before, Gable and Miss Colbert scored one of the greatest successes in film history in their costarring parts in "It Happened One Night." Gable and Tracy were also heroes of another of the most popular pictures ever turned out in Hollywood, "Test Pilot."

Other Big Features.

In rapid succession Loew's will play "Escape," "Strike Up the Band," "The Philadelphia Story" and the new Marx Brothers' vehicle, "Go West." All these high spots on the early fall schedule promise to attract more than the usual amount of attention.

"Escape" is a dramatization of Ethel Vance's international best seller of the same name, dealing with a son's daring attempt to rescue a mother imprisoned in a foreign concentration camp. Robert Taylor has the male starring role, Norma Shearer the part of the young countess who risks everything to aid the rescue, and Nazimova the role of the mother.

"Strike Up the Band," a follow-up to the earlier Mickey Rooney-Judy Garland hit, "Babes in Arms," presents the two juvenile stars surrounded by a wealth of Hollywood talent. Paul Whiteman has a featured role in the picture, as a band leader, and the music is the work of such notable composers as George and the late Ira Gershwin, Arthur Freed and Roger Edens. Busby Berkeley and Arthur Freed, director and producer of "Babes in Arms," are responsible for "Strike Up the Band."

Hepburn Starred. "The Philadelphia Story" foremost on the list of last year's Broadway dramatic successes, comes to the screen with Katharine Hepburn in the role she made famous before the footlights. James Stewart and Cary Grant are costarring in the leading male roles of the film version of Philip Barry's play.

"Go West," new Marx Brothers' mirthfest, is awaited eagerly by picture audiences. The material for this new farce-comedy was tried out before actual audiences on tour throughout coast cities and the middle west during the past spring and summer, in much the same fashion as was the case with "A Night at the Opera" and "A Day at the Races."

The attractions that will make up the M-G-M release schedule are of wide scope. A new Dr. Kildare story, "Dr. Kildare Goes Home," will carry along popular interest focused on this Lew Ayres-Lionel Barrymore series, while "Dulcy" will bring to the screen one of the brightest and most amusing of the George S. Kaufman-Marc Connelly stage comedies. "Our Home Town" is another new comedy with a unique story angle, dealing with a lonesome couple who "adopt" a home town. "Bad Man of Wyoming" presents Wallace Beery in an exciting story of western frontier days. All these pictures are scheduled for early fall showing at Loew's theater.

Small wonder that the first thought of young couples is to own the house which shall become the setting for their family life. Yours is being offered for sale in the Want Ads of The Constitution

ALL-STAR CAST—In leading roles in "Boom Town," opening at Loew's today, are Spencer Tracy, Hedy Lamarr, Frank Morgan, Claudette Colbert and Clark Gable.

SWEATER GIRL—M-G-M production plans call for Lana Turner, the "Sweater Girl," to star in several of the fall releases.

Mickey, Judy Costarred in New Musical

Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, Hollywood's most talented team of youngsters, are again costarring—this time in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Strike Up the Band," which is a new season hit to play this fall at Loew's, and their successor to "Babes in Arms," which swept the country. Mickey and Judy are surrounded by a talented young group of players. June Preisser, dancer who scored in "Babes in Arms" and "Judge Hardy's Children," plays the juvenile vamp role in the picture. Paul Whiteman appears as an actor and also directs his orchestra. William Tracy, who scored in "The Shop Around the Corner," plays Mickey's principal aid in organizing a high school swing band.

MUSICAL COMEDY—Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland will star this fall at Loew's in the musical, "Strike Up the Band," which is a follow-up on their previous successes.

Colbert, Gable Invented New Comedy Type

When "It Happened One Night" reached the screen, back in 1934, the enthusiastic critics declared a new style of movie comedy had been invented. Much of the credit was given to Frank Capra, who directed the picture, but the real perpetrators of the fun were Claudette Colbert and Clark Gable, teamed together for the first time, who gave to their unique hitchhikers a quality of such charm that the public has remembered them in the story ever since.

The Motion Picture Academy award was bestowed upon the production, and Miss Colbert and Mr.

MYSTERY—Bob Montgomery, Constance Cummings star in "Haunted Honeymoon."

Gable also received the award for who adapted the story, won the best performances of the year, academy's laurel for the best "Business-For-Sale" ads in the want ads of The Constitution.

State Rests Its Case In N. Y. Scalise Trial
NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The state rested its case today in the trial of George Scalise, former president of the Building Service Employees' International union, who is accused of theft of $80,000 of union funds.

The final evidence produced was the deposition of Elizabeth A. Grady, Chicago, an official of the international union. She testified she never had heard Scalise had an agreement with the international whereby he was to receive 50 per cent of the per capita tax paid by members of eastern locals. The defense contends Scalise was entitled to all of the money he is alleged to have stolen by virtue of such an agreement.

Home Defense Aid Offered By Old Guard.

25 of 95 Members Take Duties With Governor Rivers' Corps.

By JACK SPALDING.

The Old Guard of social, grand march and Confederate Memorial Day fame has volunteered its services to the people of Georgia for the duration of the present national emergency.

Twenty-five of the Guard's 95 members have been detailed to Governor Rivers' Home Defense Corps, an outfit now sniffling out Fifth Columnists, but one that may take the National Guard's place as guarantor of the public safety when all National Guard units have been called into training.

Now more of a social organization than anything else, the Guard is more famous for the brilliance of its uniforms, its annual ball and colorful grand march than its military activities. Its parent organization, the Gate City Guard, covered itself with glory in the War Between the States, was reorganized here in 1870, became a part of state troops in 1893, and is now a unit of the 179th Field Artillery, Georgia National Guard.

Function Summarized.
The Guard's function and spirit is well summed up on the cover of its 1940 year book. It reads: Sired in 1857 to assist the civil authorities in maintaining order. Reared to fight invasion of property rights.

Nurtured to preserve the heritage of southern chivalry. Pledged to commemorate the virtues of the old south. Devoted to the perpetuation and appreciation of southern ideals and traditions.

Alert for service in new issues. The history of the guard begins back in the spacious days before the War Between the States when well-born young southerners, saturated with the heroic tales of Sir Walter Scott, formed mighty uniformed military outfits and maintained them out of their own pockets.

Brave War Record.
The Guard was one of these groups and at the outbreak of the war volunteered after a hot dispute with the few union men in its ranks. Its war record was brave, a story of valor, suffering and achievement.

Reorganized in 1870 by the surviving original members and new men, the guard entered a career of civil and military usefulness that carried its name over the United States.

Under the aggressive leadership of Captain J. F. Burke, the guard "invaded" South Carolina as a congratulatory gesture after that state had thrown off carpetbag rule, and later undertook a highly successful peaceful invasion of Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Poughkeepsie.

A historian of the guard describes the latter invasion: "This was the first invasion of northern territory by a southern military company bearing arms. Special permits had to be obtained to do this; but a more royal welcome was never accorded a conquering hero than was given us, and the friends we made then have remained our friends to this day. No military event of any importance in any of the cities visited fails to issue invitations to the Old Guard to attend, and we are frequently represented on these occasions."

Monument Dedicated.
In 1893, the Old Guard was formed of ex-officers and some active officers of the Gate City Guard. In 1911, the Peace Monument at Piedmont Park was dedicated, with a large number of northern military organizations present and the Old Guard as hosts of the occasion and sponsors of the monument.

In 1913, the Guard repeated its northern tour of 34 years ago, but this time with a difference. A Democratic president was in the PART OF THE GUARD'S CREED.—Pledged to commemorate the virtues of the Old South, is part of the Guard's creed. At last December's "Gone With the Wind" celebration, Lieutenant Colonel Franklin S. Chalmers, Guy Woolford, Richard M. Eubanks, and Henry Lawrence, Major Frank Fling and Lieutenant Bayne Gibson formed an honor guard at the lighting of the Flame to the Confederacy in the shell-torn old lamp-post at the corner of Whitehall and Alabama streets.

BACK IN THE SEVENTIES.—This picture of the officers of the Gate City Guard, taken in the '70s, is in the files of the Atlanta Historical Society. Founded in 1857, the Guard covered itself with glory in the War Between the States, was reorganized in 1870, and again in 1893, when the Old Guard, made up of ex-officers of the Gate City Guard, was formed. The Guard has now volunteered for home defense.

White House and the Guard was received by President and Mrs. Wilson.

Since then the Guard has made three good-will trips to the West Indian islands, served as military hosts at the unveiling of the figure of Robert E. Lee on Stone Mountain, marked the grave of Alexander Stephens, vice president of the Confederacy, and been strenuously active in whatever pertained to the advancement of Atlanta and Georgia.

Its officers are Henry A. Lawrence, commander; Franklin S. Chalmers, adjutant; Dr. W. L. Champion, surgeon; Russell L. Beutell, quartermaster; William M. Graham, commissary; Judge Thomas H. Jeffries, chaplain; J. E. Oxford, ordnance; J. C. Gavan, secretary; and Bartie E. Goodman, treasurer. Wilson Kemp is commander of Company A, and Frank R. Fling, commander of Company B.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Jose Lopez Quinones, Puerto Rican Nationalist, was sentenced to a year's imprisonment today for slandering the president. The prosecution charged that Quinones in a speech said President Roosevelt was "a murderer who should be sweeping floors in Atlanta prison." Quinones appealed.

Excess Profits Tax Is Passed By the House

Senate Expected To Take Up Measure Next Week.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(UP)—The House today passed by voice vote an excess profits tax bill designed to help finance the rearmament program but at the same time give industry incentive to expand its plants for defense production purposes.

The Senate is expected to take up the measure next week. It is estimated it will raise $305,000,000 on 1940 incomes and $700,000,000 annually thereafter.

Major Provisions.
It contains three major provisions:

1. Levies rates ranging from 20 to 50 per cent on excess profits.
2. Permits industries expanding for defense purposes to amortize their expansion costs over a five-year period.
3. Suspends provisions of the Vinson-Trammell act limiting profits on warship and airplane contracts.

A fourth objective, insisted upon by President Roosevelt when the current war emergency began, is to prevent creation of "war millionaires," or profiteers who reaped millions during the World War.

The House acted after less than three hours of debate and under a stringent gag rule against amendments except those offered by the ways and means committee.

Some Object.
This procedure was adopted after Mr. Roosevelt charged that dilatory tactics on essential legislation were impeding the defense program. Numerous Republicans and some Democrats objected vigorously but were shouted down with the warning that "We face an emergency."

The National Defense Commission and army and navy chiefs had urged speed on the plant amortization section, asserting many manufacturers are reluctant to enlarge their plants and accept defense orders until they are insured against financial loss.

Some congressmen charged the industrialists with conducting a "sit-down" strike, but they offered scant opposition to the concessions in the bill.

Chairman Pat Harrison, of the senate finance committee, plans to hold brief hearings on the measure next Monday or Tuesday. Several members of his group sat in on the house hearings so as to facilitate action when the measure comes before the upper chamber.

Earnings during the base period.
By the first method, a corporation would be permitted to figure its average earnings during the base period, subtract from that a flat $5,000 exemption, and pay excess profits taxes on all over that amount. Corporations choosing this method, however, must pay in addition a 4 1/2 per cent tax on their normal net tax income.

Rates Differ.
Under the second method, corporations are allowed a minimum percentage of return on their invested capital. On the first $500,000 of invested capital, a 7 per cent minimum is allowed, with a 5 per cent minimum on the remainder and a 10 per cent maximum.

Differing sets of rates, ranging from 20 to 50 per cent, are levied on excess profits figured under each of the two methods.

Under the invested capital method of computation, these rates are 25 per cent on the first $20,000 of excess profits; 30 per cent on the next $30,000; 35 per cent on the next $50,000; 40 per cent on the next $100,000; 45 per cent on the next $250,000; and 50 per cent on all over $500,000.

Rates computed under the average earnings method are 20 per cent on the first $50,000; 25 per cent on the next $30,000; 30 per cent on the next $50,000; 35 per cent on the next $150,000; 40 per cent on the next $250,000, and 45 per cent on all over $500,000.

Increases Allowed.
The bill permits corporations to increase average earnings by 8 per cent of the capital added after the first of this year. A 6 per cent decrease is made for capital deductions.

New capital is allowed a 10 per cent tax-free return under the invested capital method in instances where it does not cause the total invested capital to exceed $500,000. Eight per cent is allowed on new capital over a $500,000 total.

Corporations formed since 1936 must compute their tax under the invested capital method, but they are allowed to count for the part of the base period in which they were not in existence, capital equal to that at the beginning of the 1940 tax year. These firms are credited with 10 per cent on the first $500,000 of this imaginary capital and 8 per cent on the remainder.

Corporations formed since the first of this year also figure their tax by the invested capital method. They are allowed credit equal to 10 per cent of the first $500,000 of invested capital and 8 per cent on the remainder.

Two minor amendments sponsored by the Ways and Means committee were adopted. The first exempts from the tax domestic corporations which derive at least 95 per cent of their income from sources outside the United States. The second provides special treatment for airlines having government mail subsidies.

PUPILS LIKE RADIO.
A survey of radio listening habits of children in the St. Louis area has disclosed that they spend approximately half as much time listening to programs as they do in school. The average number of hours spent at the radio each week was 14.

LeCraw Hits Mayor's Speech At Techwood

Candidate Charges He Was 'Denied Right' To Talk There.

Mayor Hartsfield was permitted to make a political address at Techwood Homes, a federal low-cost housing project, controlled by the administration-appointed Atlanta Housing Authority, although other candidates were denied the same privilege, Roy LeCraw, opposing Hartsfield's renomination in next Wednesday's primary, told an audience last night at Piedmont park.

Charging that Hartsfield caused signs advertising his meeting to be posted at the entrance of the apartments to "insure the attendance of occupants despite the fact that I was denied the right to get my message over at Techwood," LeCraw offered Hartsfield $100 if he can prove that a former chief of police ever visited the city campaign headquarters, a statement he made at his special privileged gathering. You know the Atlanta Housing Authority, which controls the project, was named by the mayor.

"In other words, it's a lie," someone shouted from the audience. "I just didn't like to use that little three-letter word," LeCraw retorted. "I am trying to be nice about it. You know I have not held political meetings on Wednesday night, because it is prayer meeting night."

LeCraw assailed Hartsfield's record, citing newspaper clippings showing the administration ended the past two years with surplus but "the money burned their pants pockets so they spent it building a park on Edgewood avenue and in paying a higher price for a city incinerator than should have been paid."

"That was your money," LeCraw said as the audience applauded. "He took it out of your pockets. It didn't belong to him, but he had his salary raised $2,000 a year so he could balance his own budget easier. If you have your salaries raised that amount, I believe you could balance yours, and I wish I could do just that."

at the CITY HALL

Driving of concrete piling for a foundation for the $550,000 new city incinerator will begin next week, H. J. Cates, chief of the rearmament department, yesterday predicted. The contract calls for placing 247 of the piles. When the huge driver fails to sink the shaft one inch in four blows, the pile will have been sunk deep enough to hold the heavy incinerators.

Dr. James F. Hackney, assistant chief of the sanitary department, yesterday called on parents to send their children entering Atlanta schools for the first time are provided with birth certificates and that they have certificates showing they have been immunized against smallpox and diphtheria. These are requirements for admission into classes in the Atlanta school system.

Despite the fact that the city primary occurs next Wednesday, members of council's various committees are attending to city business. The attendance percentage is higher this year than when there are no races.

Dr. John P. Kennedy, city health officer, is out of the city on a vacation trip to Florida. He is expected to return to his desk early next week.

Anglers at Piedmont park lake received something of a shock yesterday when the state Wildlife Division Division George I. Simmons, general manager of city parks, that the law against fishing without a license will be enforced there. Under the law, persons may use a pole and worms without a license if they are residents of Fulton county. If, however, they use live minnows or artificial bait, they must have state fishing licenses even though they live in the county. All nonresidents must have licenses.

Mayor Hartsfield, members of city council and department heads yesterday surveyed the newly equipped shops of the city fire department at station No. 7, Oak and Whitehall street. A crew of machinists are constructing a huge power truck, which will generate power for searchlights and other emergency use.

BUFFALO, Okla., Aug. 29.—(AP) Deaths caused by a terrific gasoline pipeline explosion reached six today and physicians held little hope for three others burned.

'Police Crowd' Seeks Return, Mayor Asserts

Hartsfield Declares 'Ticket Fixers' Are Paying Fines Now.

Assailing his opposition for offering nothing but a "lot of side-line criticism of the administration," Mayor Hartsfield last night charged the "old police crowd" was trying to get back in power because we took ticket fixing away from them and made the traffic laws applicable to both rich and poor.

"Surely we are collecting more money," he said in answer to his opponents' charge that traffic fines are increasing. "Why shouldn't they? The ticket fixers are paying their fines now while under the previous administration, some cheap politician or racketeer had them fixed."

"People Control City." The mayor also pointed out that during his administration, "control of the city has been taken away from the banks and given back to the people where it belongs."

He pointed out that last year for the first time in 40 years the city government operated without borrowing one penny from the banks. He also declared no money will be borrowed this year as the city is now operating on a cash basis, paying its debts on time and saving thousands of dollars yearly in discounts and interest.

Cites Water Rate.
The mayor stressed the fact that in increasing the water rate, the city had made every user of city water pay for the $2,000,000 improvement program instead of just limiting it to those persons within the city limits as would have been the case had the administration floated bonds for the improvement.

He charged his opponent with an attempt to "fly speck" the city's improvement program because "he has nothing constructive to offer."

Judge John S. McClelland, of Fulton criminal court, is expected back today from a vacation tour of north Georgian mountains.

He is also under indictment on several charges involving bad checks.

North All-Stars Favored Over South Tonight at Grant Field

BY JACK TROY

Dodger Doings NEW YORK, N. Y., Aug. 29. We were sitting in Larry MacPhail's office in Brooklyn, Mr. Earl Mann and I, when the secretary came through the door with a telegram.

MacPhail opened the message and sat silent for a moment. "Well, this takes the cake," the Dodger generalissimo said.

"Harry Lavagetto has been operated on for appendicitis. First it's Phelps . . . then we go out on a limb and buy Medwick . . . he gets beamed . . . Reese gets hurt . . . AND NOW it's Lavagetto. . . I'm not in very good shape for baseball, either."

MacPhail called his secretary in and told her to call the afternoon papers.

He talked with them one by one. Finally, he talked with one that couldn't quite get a name.

"What's that?" asked MacPhail, "you don't get the name of that hospital. Here it is again . . .

"Christ. C-H-R-I-S-T-I!" That's Brooklyn for you.

Sympathy MacPhail had a very sympathetic listener when he began moaning low about injuries. Mr. Mann's Crackers have had their share of tough luck this season.

The Dodgers at one time and another have lost an entire infield.

And the beaming of Medwick, in MacPhail's opinion, ruined him for a season. MacPhail still thinks the former Card star is a good investment.

"We probably would have won the pennant if we'd had any breaks," MacPhail said. "I never saw such a year for hard luck. I cross my fingers every time I cross the street."

MacPhail revealed that Larry Gilbert was moaning the last time he talked with him over the phone. "He was almost frantic when you came up with Besse and Bates, Earl," he pointed out.

"He begged me to send him some help, but I had to tell him we were having troubles of our own."

The Vols thought they were going to get Larry's son, Charlie, back, but Brooklyn sent him to Montreal instead.

MacPhail is highly pleased with the Georgia boys—Hugh Casey and Whitlow Wyatt—on the Dodger club. He'd like to have more pitchers like them.

He's No Engel Somehow I had an idea Larry MacPhail was another Joe Engel. But he really isn't. There isn't much done in the way of showmanship in connection with the Brooklyn games.

One of the real attractions, as a matter of fact, is the prospect of seeing a fight, in addition to a game. The Daffiness Boys give 'em their money's worth.

MacPhail said the idea that a lot of added attractions were presented was largely hokum.

"We give them bands—music. But that's about all."

Incidentally, MacPhail is one of the Tennesseans who stole the Kaiser's ash tray in the last World War. He said that he still has it out at his home.

Player Chart In one of the rooms at the Dodger headquarters there is a tremendous chart on the wall. It is like a stock exchange board.

On it are the names of the teams with which Brooklyn works and the players.

MacPhail pointed to the big board and, turning to Mann, said, "There are a lot of names up there, but actually there aren't enough good players listed to make one winning ball club."

Mr. Mann grinned. It is just barely possible he might have seen a name or two the Crackers could use next season.

The sun hasn't shone since the trip began, but Mr. Mann is making hay, nevertheless.

Letchas, Gray Rivals as Clinic Reaches Finish

Nearly 10,000 Fans Expected; Game To Start at 8:30 O'Clock.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

A brand-new football season will be born on Grant Field tonight when Wallace Butts sends his underdog Southern All-Star eleven against Frank Thomas' Northern Yankees at 8:30 o'clock in the climax of the third annual Georgia Coaching Clinic.

Upwards to 10,000 fans are expected to watch the third annual classic which starred some of the niftiest prospects in the south in the first two games.

The series is even, the Rebels having upset the dope last year to win, 13 to 12, and the Yankees romping, 25 to 6, in the first game in 1938.

More weight, experience and class in the line has established the Northern team as favorite but the South figures to even up a bit with a host of galloping backfield stars. Indeed, it would be a novelty if the South were favored as the Yanks have been liked in all games thus far.

PRETTY EVEN.

However, the teams look more closely matched this year than ever before and there are not many folks giving points.

A strong exponent of hard blocking and tackling, Butts has drilled his team mainly along these lines and the stocky Georgia coach admits his first eleven will be pretty tough to get along with. However, when they get tired there's no telling what will happen, he says.

Thomas will depend on his front line to bear the brunt of the burden. While he has several capable backs at his command, the South has more and the Alabama coach figures on a defensive game until breaks make way for a scoring opportunity.

Future stars of the Southern gridiron who will bear watching include Gus Letchas, Felix Marbury, Mutt Manning, Ryals Lee, Pete Page and Johnny McCrary, of the South, and Jack Jordan, Al Anderson, Walter McGuire, Hugh Alford, Dick Gray and Ted Forbes, of the North.

LETCBAS VS. GRAY.

Indeed, the game may develop into a battle of triple-threaters with Letchas on one side and Gray on the other. The Thomasville boy is one of the best kickers and runners ever developed in south Georgia, while Atlanta fans well know the exploits of Dapper Dick while he was a member of North Fulton's classy crew last season. Gray won't start the game, but is sure to see plenty of action.

Marbury, Lee and McCrary are members of the Rebel backfield. Page is probably the best tackle Red Jenkins ever had at Jordan High, and Manning, who will enter Tech, is definitely the best center Harold McNabb ever had at Albany High.

Jordan, who played for Boys' High last fall, Anderson and McGuire are three big reasons why Thomas' line is so strong. Alford, a big fullback, is the pride and joy of Hartwell High and will attend Clemson this fall.

In case of rain, the game will be postponed until Saturday night. Probable starting lineups:

What I Would Do as Governor To Aid Wildlife in Georgia

Abit Nix Would Adopt 'Hands Off' Policy by Setting Up Commission To Run Wildlife Department.

Editor's Note: In keeping with its Sunday presentation of wildlife news and features on the south's only full outdoor page, The Constitution invited each gubernatorial candidate to write "What I Would Do as Governor To Aid Wildlife in Georgia." The last is presented herewith.

By ABIT NIX.

I am glad to have the opportunity to discuss what I believe are some of the needs for the propagation and preservation of wildlife in Georgia.

Since I was a boy in Jackson county, where I hunted rabbits and squirrels like every country-bred Georgia boy has done for two centuries, I have been deeply interested in this subject, and, though of recent years I have not found much time to hunt and fish, I am, nevertheless, a sportsman at heart.

When I am Governor of Georgia I intend to adopt a "hands off" policy as regards the actual running of the wildlife department. That is, I want to set up a commission of five or seven men—men who are recognized sportsmen and sincerely interested in the preservation of wildlife, and empower this commission with the authority to appoint the heads of the divisions, and otherwise conduct the affairs of this important department.

In my opinion Georgia, at present, has a very bad set of game laws. I would favor a stabilization of laws regulating hunting and fishing seasons, more in line with the LAWS OF NATURE.

To illustrate what I mean, in Screven county right now, I am told, the season is now open for the hunting of deer and turkey. Last year, in certain south Georgia counties, they were hunting quail when the birds were too young to fly.

The commission I advocate would have regulatory powers over all such laws as these and would fix the seasons properly. Moreover, the commission should have the authority to make laws to meet emergencies. For instance, last winter, during the heavy snow, many persons went dove hunting and shot them in the snow. Legal—but unfair.

There is another matter, too, which the next Governor of

Big Ernie Lain Appendicitis Strikes Lavagetto Fails To Make Redskin Squad From Dodger Lineup for Year

Ex-Rice Star One of Six Cut Off Team by Flaherty.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 29.—(P)—Ernie Lain, the pudgy half-back whose brilliant work in the Rice Institute backfield made him a football headliner for three seasons, failed to make the grade with the Washington Redskins of the National Professional Football League.

Lain was one of six men lopped from the squad of 45 today by Coach Ray Flaherty as the Redskins wound up their pre-season training and entrained for Milwaukee to meet the Green Bay Packers Monday in an exhibition tilt.

Jimmy German, a quarterback who went to the Washington camp from Centre College last year, also was dropped, along with Gene Blackwell, end, from the University of Alabama; Vince Farrar, halfback, North Carolina State; Frank Kiss, center, University of South Carolina, and John Thomassin, tackle, University of Southern California.

Flaherty put the squad through a regular game last night to climax the training program and obtain a final check on the players' abilities.

A crowd of 8,000 watched the veteran Andy Farkas, scoring ace of the professional league last year, play for both the "Eastern" and "Pacific Coast" divisions of the squad—one half on each side—and engineer most of the tallies for both teams.

The "Easterns" won, 30 to 27.

Bob Chipman Ill, Savannah Needs Lefty

Pitcher, Recently Acquired by Crackers, Taken to Hospital.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 29.—With Bob (Lefty) Chipman shelved by illness for at least 10 days, the Savannah Indians are without portside pitching as they strive to protect their Sally League lead.

Chipman, leading Indian hurler and recently acquired by the Atlanta Crackers for delivery next spring, was taken to a hospital Tuesday. His attending physician reported his temperature slightly higher than 105 degrees but the following day it was reduced to an even 100.

Manager Chick Autry regards the absence of Chipman a severe blow and the only replacement possible under league rules would be the purchase of a roundsman from a lower class league.

Under normal schedule conditions the Tribe would have the pennant clinched at this time but the season, which heretofore has been concluded on Labor Day, runs to September 15 this year.

elected Governor I promise you I will make a great effort, through economies in other ways, to find the money with which to match this amount.

We need the money and we are entitled to it.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 29.—(P)—Acute appendicitis struck Harry "Cookie" Lavagetto today and dealt a new stunning blow to pennant hopes of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

As surgeons removed a gangrenous appendix from the 25-year-old veteran third sacker, Manager Leo Durocher assembled a "scrambled" infield and insisted "we'll carry on." He conceded, however, that his pennant-hungry charges had experienced another tough break in their injury-plagued battle to wrest the league lead from the champion Reds—currently eight and one-half games.

"Lavagetto is a very sick boy," said Dr. Reed Shank, staff surgeon of the Cincinnati Reds, as he left an operating room in Christ hospital.

The appendix had not ruptured but, he added, "there was a definite gangrenous condition and we took it in the nick of time."

The young Californian was stricken during the night after retiring in apparent good health.

Barring complications which Dr. Shank said he did not expect, Lavagetto will be confined to the hospital a week or ten days and must rest the remainder of the baseball season.

Rookie Pete Reiser will take over the hot corner and Durocher and Johnny Hudson will divide the shortstop trick where Reiser has been performing in the absence of Harold "Pee-wee" Reese.

Reese, from Louisville, Ky., and one of the rookie finds of the year, fractured a bone in his left foot several weeks ago shortly after recovering from the effects of a "beating."

Other Dodgers have met injury or been otherwise incapacitated: Whit Wyatt of the hurling staff nursed a bad knee early in the season; Joe Medwick, $150,000 ex-Cardinal outfielder, and Pitcher Hugh Casey were hit with pitched balls; Dolph Camilli, slugging first baseman, was out with a muscular ailment, and Durocher himself has recently complained of a sore throwing arm.

Lavagetto has hit .257 in 118 games, against an even .300 last year. He batted in 41 runs, and scored 56, including four circuit blows.

Without Licenses

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 29.

A. E. Thornton, wildlife ranger in this county, apprehended and made cases against three hunters this week.

H. C. Ballard, Ernest Ballard and Marvin Ballard have agreed to plead guilty to the charge of hunting without licenses.

Lain was one of six men lopped from the squad of 45 today by Coach Ray Flaherty as the Redskins wound up their pre-season training and entrained for Milwaukee to meet the Green Bay Packers Monday in an exhibition tilt.

Jimmy German, a quarterback who went to the Washington camp from Centre College last year, also was dropped, along with Gene Blackwell, end, from the University of Alabama; Vince Farrar, halfback, North Carolina State; Frank Kiss, center, University of South Carolina, and John Thomassin, tackle, University of Southern California.

Flaherty put the squad through a regular game last night to climax the training program and obtain a final check on the players' abilities.

A crowd of 8,000 watched the veteran Andy Farkas, scoring ace of the professional league last year, play for both the "Eastern" and "Pacific Coast" divisions of the squad—one half on each side—and engineer most of the tallies for both teams.

The "Easterns" won, 30 to 27.

Bob Chipman Ill, Savannah Needs Lefty

Pitcher, Recently Acquired by Crackers, Taken to Hospital.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 29.—With Bob (Lefty) Chipman shelved by illness for at least 10 days, the Savannah Indians are without portside pitching as they strive to protect their Sally League lead.

Chipman, leading Indian hurler and recently acquired by the Atlanta Crackers for delivery next spring, was taken to a hospital Tuesday. His attending physician reported his temperature slightly higher than 105 degrees but the following day it was reduced to an even 100.

Manager Chick Autry regards the absence of Chipman a severe blow and the only replacement possible under league rules would be the purchase of a moundman from a lower class league.

Under normal schedule conditions the Tribe would have the pennant clinched at this time but the season, which heretofore has been concluded on Labor Day, runs to September 15 this year.

elected Governor I promise you I will make a great effort, through economies in other ways, to find the money with which to match this amount.

We need the money and we are entitled to it.

Appendicitis Strikes Lavagetto From Dodger Lineup for Year

CINCINNATI, Aug. 29.—(P)—Acute appendicitis struck Harry "Cookie" Lavagetto today and dealt a new stunning blow to pennant hopes of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

As surgeons removed a gangrenous appendix from the 25-year-old veteran third sacker, Manager Leo Durocher assembled a "scrambled" infield and insisted "we'll carry on." He conceded, however, that his pennant-hungry charges had experienced another tough break in their injury-plagued battle to wrest the league lead from the champion Reds—currently eight and one-half games.

"Lavagetto is a very sick boy," said Dr. Reed Shank, staff surgeon of the Cincinnati Reds, as he left an operating room in Christ hospital.

The appendix had not ruptured but, he added, "there was a definite gangrenous condition and we took it in the nick of time."

The young Californian was stricken during the night after retiring in apparent good health. Barring complications which Dr. Shank said he did not expect, Lavagetto will be confined to the hospital a week or ten days and must rest the remainder of the baseball season.

Rookie Pete Reiser will take over the hot corner and Durocher and Johnny Hudson will divide the shortstop trick where Reiser has been performing in the absence of Harold "Peewee" Reese.

Reese, from Louisville, Ky., and one of the rookie finds of the year, fractured a bone in his left foot several weeks ago shortly after recovering from the effects of a "beaming."

Other Dodgers have met injury or been otherwise incapacitated: Whit Wyatt of the hurling staff nursed a bad knee early in the season; Joe Medwick, $150,000 ex-Cardinal outfielder, and Pitcher Hugh Casey were hit with pitched balls; Dolph Camilli, slugging first baseman, was out with a muscular ailment, and Durocher himself has recently complained of a sore throwing arm.

Joe Murrow Tops Scorers With 15 Points

Anderson Holds Lanier Star to One Field Goal in First Half.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
Desperate battling against overwhelming odds only held the score down as a fighting Northern all-star basketball team lost to the lanky Southerners, 39 to 30, last night at the Georgia Tech gymnasium.

Led by the six-foot-eight Joe Murrow, of Lanier, and the six-foot-six Jim Homer, of Columbus, Elmer Lampe's Rebels grabbed an early lead and, although it was close all the way, held on until the final gun of the game, played as a part of the third annual Georgia coaching clinic.

The smaller lads of Adolph Rupp battled gamely all the way and stayed in the ball game until

Bob Jones Cards 67 at East Lake

Bob Jones shot a 67 yesterday at East Lake as he and Brook Lemans, of New York, defeated Gene Dahlbender Jr. and Amos Williams, of Philadelphia, 2 and 1. Dahlbender, 16-year-old qualifier for the National Amateur, had a 2-over-par 73. Jones has been 70 or better all except one time, since he returned a couple of weeks ago.

Between halves members of both the All-Star basketball and football teams were given medals for being chosen on the squads. Wally Butts and Red Drew made the presentations to the South and North football teams, while Lampe and Rupp awarded their cage players.

This 'n' That: Spec Towns, Georgia track coach, checked in and tipped he may come up with a better javelin thrower than Bob Saltsbury, the conference champion. However, he won't be eligible next season. . . . J. V. Sikes, another Bulldog coach, has recently returned from Texas and was telling a story about a high school which is pumping oil out of one corner of their stadium. . . . ## Packers Beat Stars, 45 to 28, Before 84,567

Game Presents Wildest Scoring Battle in History of Series.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—(AP)—In the wildest scoring battle in the history of the series, the Green Bay Packers, champions of the National Professional Football League, defeated the college All-Stars, 45 to 28, before a record-breaking crowd of 84,567 spectators in flood-lighted Soldier field tonight.

The game, ushering in the 1940 football season, gave the Packers an opportunity to make amends for their failure of three years ago and also gave the professionals an edge in the series, which had been deadlocked with two victories apiece and two ties.

The thrilling contest produced the highest scoring since the series was inaugurated seven years ago, eclipsing the game of 1938 when the All-Stars conquered the Washington Redskins, 28 to 16. It also drew the greatest crowd, exceeding the previous record in 1937 of 84,560.

The Packers, with a superior aerial attack, packed too much punch in the air for the collegians. Paced by Cecil Isbell, famed Purdue athlete, who in 1938 led the All-Stars to triumph, the Packers scored six touchdowns with Isbell throwing three long scoring passes and running for the final touchdown himself.

Score by periods:
College All-Stars 7 14 0 7—28
Green Bay Packers 14 14 10—45

Cincinnati Recalls John Vander Meer

CINCINNATI, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds recalled Johnny Vander Meer, their double-no-hit king of two years ago, from the Indianapolis club of the American Association tonight.

Johnny, plagued by wildness all last year, was sent to Indianapolis early this season in hopes of improving his control. He has won six and lost two for the Indians, a Red farm club, and came within shouting distance of another no-hit game.

The Reds also sent recall notices, probably effective next spring, on Charles "Red" Barrett, right-handed pitcher, Catcher Dick West, and Third Baseman Don Lang, both with Indianapolis; Mike Dejan, outfielder, now with Birmingham of the Southern Association; Neil Clifford, catcher, with St. Paul in the American Association, and Joe Mack, first baseman, now with Birmingham.

Macon President Urges Fight Scale

MACON, Ga., Aug. 29.—(AP)—President Roy Williams of the Macon Peaches, whose shortstop, Ed Stanky, was fined $100 by a Savannah judge after a ball park squabble, thinks the port city's officials should publish a scale of prices for fights. (Williams' request for a refund of Stanky's fine was rejected by the Savannah city council.)

In a letter to the Macon Telegraph, Williams suggested: "Fights on Broughton street—$10.74 and up. "Fights on Bull street—$10.75 and 50 pounds of bull-up."

"Fights in that palace of sports, commonly known as the Municipal stadium, the home of the Savannah Indians—$100 or life."

Amateur Leaders To Clash Today

Rain washed out the semi-finals of the second annual Atlanta Amateur Baseball Federation tournament between Whittier Mills and Oakland City at Ponce de Leon park yesterday afternoon. The same games will vie today at 4 o'clock at the same site.

Only three of the 16 original entrants, Whittier, Oakland and Clarksdale, are left in the meet. Whittier has won five and lost none, while the other two have won a like number and dropped one game each. Should Oakland lose today they will be eliminated. The same will be true of Clarksdale when they tie up with Whittier tomorrow.

The winner of the meet will represent Atlanta and Georgia in the National Federation's world amateur meet in Birmingham September 7-15.

SIXTH CAVALRY BEGINS INTENSIVE DRILLING

Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., Aug. 29.—The Sixth Cavalry began intensive drilling today in preparation for two important public appearances the regiment will make this weekend.

Although no definite plans have been completed yet, soldiers of the mechanized units began grooming their "iron horses" yesterday in anticipation of escorting President Franklin D. Roosevelt when he speaks Monday morning at Chickamauga dam, eight miles from Chattanooga.

The mechanized portions of the Sixth Cavalry are expected to be assigned as part of the escort to the President, who will arrive at Chattanooga Monday morning at 8:45 o'clock. President Roosevelt will come to Chattanooga by special train from Hyde Park, N. Y., and his address here will be his first formal speech since the acceptance address.

The entire Sixth Cavalry will make another public showing in Chattanooga at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, when the regiment will be a feature of a large preparedness parade to be staged as part of the Tennessee Valley Celebration. The motorized and mechanized units of the Sixth Cavalry will speed through Market and Broad streets of Chattanooga at a speed of approximately ly 20 miles per hour. All of the horses of the Sixth Cavalry will be carried in large trailer vans for the parade. The entire parade is expected to symbolize G. America's preparedness program.

Georgia Cotton Challenge Cited By Westbrook

Competition From West Commands Action, He Asserts.

Georgia cotton growers are facing a sharp war-born competition from western growers and must unite to meet it, E. C. Westbrook, Agricultural Extension Service cotton specialist, declared last night.

Mr. Westbrook, at the same time, reminded cotton farmers of a three-county meeting of growers, to be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Coweta county courthouse in Newnan, at which the increasing need for better cotton will be discussed.

Speakers at the meeting will include Mr. Westbrook; R. R. Davis, extension cotton specialist, and Coweta County Agent N. V. Davis. Mr. Westbrook cited the development of one-variety cotton communities as the foremost means of meeting western competition.

Western Cotton.

In the 1921-30 period, he said, many Georgia manufacturers turned to the west for a large part of their cotton requirements, instead of using Georgia cotton. This, he said, was because Georgia cotton was "badly mixed in staple length, due largely to the fact a number of different varieties of cotton were grown in the same gin community. The cotton was mixed in the field and at the gin, and therefore was of low spinning value."

The one-variety movement, Mr. Westbrook said, began in 1931, and has gained wide support. Under this plan, he pointed out, it has been proven profitable for farmers in the same gin community to produce a high quality cotton of the same staple length and character.

Approximately one-fifth of the cotton now grown is from organized one-variety communities, he said.

One-Variety Works.

When manufacturers tried out the one-variety cotton, Mr. Westbrook said, many turned to it in preference to the western cotton they had used previously. Many mill men said it met requirements fully as well, because of its uniform staple length and character. And since only the best varieties are used in one-variety communities, this has meant added profits to the grower and manufacturer as well.

This, Mr. Westbrook said, was the situation when the European war began. During the past decade, much western cotton has gone into the export trade. Now cotton exports have been sharply reduced, causing western growers to look again to the eastern mills for a market.

And therein, says Mr. Westbrook, lies the new challenge to the Georgia grower.

Must Market Elsewhere.

"If the local cotton cannot meet this competition successfully," he declared, "then it will mean some of our cotton will have to go elsewhere to find a market. Because of this situation, we feel it is up to the farmers and others concerned with the production, harvesting, ginning and handling of cotton in Georgia to take a greater interest in our local cotton and to use all the improved methods at their command. If this is done, it will go a long way toward convincing the manufacturer that Georgia one-variety cotton will meet mill requirements as well as cotton of equal staple length grown in other sections."

Along this line, Mr. Westbrook said, the Surplus Marketing Division of the United States Department of Agriculture is offering to help Georgia farmers this year by putting on a demonstration whereby cotton in a selected area can be assembled and shipped to Georgia and Carolina mills in lots of even grade and staple lengths. In this way, he said, definite information may be obtained from the manufacturer as to how this cotton compares with other cotton used by the mill. The cotton in the proposed project would be classed by a government classifier, showing the grade and staple of each bale.

In this connection, Mr. Westbrook said a classing office is expected to be established in the first chosen three-county area (Coweta, Fayette and Meriwether), in order that the farmer may receive prompt service in the classification and marketing of his cotton.

No effort will be made, he pointed out, to upset the usual order of marketing in the area selected. Farmers will not be required to sell to any particular buyer, but will sell, as usual, to the highest bidder. The cotton obtained by the authorized agent will be shipped in lots of even grade and staple, in order that it will have the best possible opportunity of making a good showing in the mills.

"This is a farmer program," Mr. Westbrook asserted. "It is up to each individual cotton producer to believe in it, to talk it, and to help sell the manufacturer on the value of Georgia one-variety cotton. It is up to him to believe in one-variety cotton and to be willing to defend vigorously the fact that he has a cotton that is superior to 'just cotton.'"

Laval Back in Vichy After Calling on Nazis

LE VERRIERE, Franco-Swiss Frontier, Aug. 29.—(P)—Pierre Laval, vice premier of France, returned to Vichy tonight from Paris, where he was reported to have conferred with German authorities concerning the possibility of a shakeup of his government.

There have been persistent reports that a reorganization of the French press, "co-ordinating" it with the Axis press, was under consideration. Whether Laval succeeded or failed in his mission could not be learned. It was said, however, that the Vichy government had "temporarily" abandoned its plans to move to Paris or Versailles.

Stratoclinchers To Tighten Ties Of Americas

Route, Cutting Time by 2 Days, May Develop Vast Jungle Area.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(UP)—Pan-American Airways announced today that on September 1 it will squeeze the western hemisphere closer together with a higher, straighter and faster air line from Miami to Buenos Aires, cutting two days and 1,000 miles from the present east coast route.

A journey which now requires 25 stops will then take but seven over the high-flying stratoclincher express route—San Juan, Trinidad, Para, Barreiras, Rio de Janeiro, Porto Alegre and Buenos Aires. The distance will be covered in three and one-half days, of which only 36 daylight hours will be spent in the air. Lack of airport facilities now prevents night flying over much of the route. Capacity for the full route will be 20 passengers and 3,000 pounds of mail and express.

Aside from its importance to hemisphere defense, which Pan-American officials would not discuss, and to United States trade with the southern part of the hemisphere, the new route may prove of immense importance in developing a vast stretch of Brazilian jungle territory which once was believed to be impenetrable.

This belief about the 1,534 bee-line miles between Para and Rio de Janeiro long delayed attempts to avoid the great South American "hump" extending into the South Atlantic 2,600 miles eastward of New York. Pan-American explorers plunged into the supposedly impassable area in 1934 and found that it was merely fringed with jungle. The great mass of the interior, they learned, was flat savannah country "through which you could drive a kiddie-car."

That discovery permitted establishment of interior airports, dispelled the hazards of jungle flying and laid open a tremendous new country to agricultural development.

When this cut-off route is opened Sunday, it was announced, stratoclinchers also will begin thrice-weekly non-stop service across the Caribbean between Miami and Cristobal, Panama, to connect with Pan-American Grace Airways, whose west coast schedules will be stepped up to equalize flying time on both coasts.

The new coast schedules mean that, including west coast service, the United States will have six round-trip flights to Buenos Aires each week.

137-Year-Old Clock In Savannah Is Wrecked

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 29.—(P)—The 137-year-old clock and bell that once struck the hours from the steeple of the City Exchange is now a pile of wreckage, due to the recent hurricane.

The tower of the building, now occupied by Rourke's Iron Works, was blown down and the clock was wrecked.

The clock, during its long years of service, struck the hours when such distinguished visitors as Presidents Monroe, Polk and Fillmore, General Lafayette, Henry Clay and Daniel Webster visited the city.

Four-Leaf Clover Predicts Good Luck For Bride-Elect

• • • FATE HAS an amazing way of shuffling events and people around in an amazing way, and one day last spring this unpredictable force began its work on the life of pretty Rozelle Emery, whose marriage to Leon Walker will be an interesting event of tomorrow afternoon.

The story runs that Rozelle was walking in the garden of her home on Stovall boulevard, when she spied a four-leaf clover. This was luck indeed, so thought Rozelle. She plucked the lucky symbol and when she returned to her room, she opened her diary at random and inserted the clover to be pressed between the pages.

Imagine Rozelle's surprise when she set the date for her wedding as August 31, and found that it was on this date that she had unknowingly pressed the four-leaf clover! Just to make her good luck doubly sure, Rozelle is going to wear the clover in the heel of her slipper tomorrow.

Another bit of good luck which the pretty bride-elect will employ, and a custom borrowed from the Old World, is the bit of Scotch heather she will wear. When she visited in Scotland a year ago, Rozelle obtained the heather with the view of wearing it when she married.

Rozelle admits that she needs all the good luck possible, that is, if dreams will be any forecast of things to come. For instance, Rozelle dreamed that a series of terrible calamities occurred at the ceremony, and Mrs. Lyman Morris also had bad dreams concerning the bridal couple. And, to make matters still worse, Mrs. Gray Lambert, who fashioned Rozelle's wedding gown, dreamed that the long trains of 400 yards of lace fell off during the ceremony!

• • • TODAY MARKS the 86th birthday of Mrs. A. W. Calhoun, beloved and revered Atlanta, whose wit, charm and graciousness endear her to her family and large circle of friends. Born Louise Phinizy, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Phinizy, of Athens, she married the late Dr. Abner W. Calhoun over 60 years ago and came to Atlanta as his lovely bride. She is the widow of Dr. Calhoun, who was one of the most eminent specialists of his time.

One of the most beautiful photographs of Mrs. Calhoun was published recently in The Atlanta Constitution, which pictured her in the exact pose of the famous painting of Whistler's mother. The picture was taken at the Andrews drive home of Mrs. Stuart Witham, daughter of Mrs. Calhoun, who will motor from Lakemont today to be with her mother on her birthday anniversary.

Dr. and Mrs. Phinizy Calhoun will return from their summer home at Linville, N. C., to attend the family dinner to be given for this prominent Atlanta by Mr. and Mrs. Witham, with whom Mrs. Calhoun resides. Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Oglesby, the latter being Mrs. Calhoun's daughter, and Mrs. Andrew Calhoun will be seated around the festive board also, and it will be a very auspicious occasion.

Although 86 years have passed by, silver-haired Mrs. Calhoun has kept abreast of the times and with every-day happenings. She enjoys her daily motor rides to the fullest measure and always has a congenial companion seated beside her. More than that, she has lived to see all of her granddaughters make their debuts in exclusive social circles in Atlanta, and now there are several great-grandchildren to pay Mrs. Calhoun homage.

• • • THOSE POPULAR new-layeds, Billie and Rebecca Cofer Willingham, are now ensconced in their new apartment on Ponce de Leon, and their furnishings already consist of several beautiful pieces which they treasure very highly. Among them is a pair of original Audubon prints which were presented to them by Mr. and Mrs. John R. Burress upon the occasion of the latter's party for the bridal pair.

Another lovely gift is an old English Sheffield scoop bearing the date 1860, which was presented the couple by Mr. and Mrs. William K. Jenkins.

Although not in the category of gifts, Becky and Billy have two keepsakes of sentimental interest. They are two poems composed by Mrs. W. W. Anderson, aunt of Billy, and were presented the bride at the recent linen shower given by Frances Chamberlee. The poem to Becky follows:

"Towels can wipe away water, I

But nothing can wipe away the love you possess,

For Becky and Billy are lovers

And every good wish is theirs

The poem to Billy follows:

"There was a young fellow named

Billy,

Who did not dallie or dilly,

He got him a bride, to stay by his side,

And on this he was not very silly.

For Becky is grand, and I now understand

Why he lost his heart so completely.

She is lovely and fair and full of

Miss Wilensky Becomes Bride Of Harry Solomon

Centering the cordial interest of a wide circle of friends was the beautiful ceremony at noon yesterday at The Temple at which Miss Gene Loeb Wilensky became the bride of Harry Solomon, of this city, formerly of Chicago. Dr. Lawrence Bloch, of Athens, officiated in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends.

Decorating the temple were arrangements of handsome palms, interspersed with tall floor baskets filled with gladioli, roses and snapdragon. Miss Nell Steinheimer presented a program of nuptial music prior to and during the ceremony.

The lovely bride was becomingly gowned in an Eisenberg costume suit of soldier blue lightweight woolen, with which she wore a small maroon felt hat trimmed with wings, and other accessories of maroon. Her shoulder cluster was of brown orchids.

The groom had as his best man his cousin, David Solomon, of Chicago. The groom's sister-in-law, Mrs. Maurice Solomon, and her young daughter, Enid, of Chicago, also attended the nuptials.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wilensky entertained the members of the immediate families at breakfast at their home, 551 Park drive, N. E. Mrs. Wilensky wore a black crepe gown with satin panels extending from shoulder to hemline, a small black felt hat, and gold accessories. Her flowers were deep purple orchids.

Later the bridal couple left on a motor trip, following which they will reside temporarily with Mr. and Mrs. Wilensky.

The bride is the younger daughter of her parents and is the granddaughter of Mrs. Herman Loeb, of Atlantic City, her mother being the former Miss Nina Loeb, of Philadelphia. The bride's father, who has been in the leather business here for 50 years, is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. Wilensky, of this city. The bride, who was graduated from Sacred Heart school, has traveled extensively. She has one sister, Mrs. Felix Kaufmann, of New York city, who is now in Honolulu.

Mr. Solomon is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Solomon, of Chicago, his mother having been Miss Rose Fogel prior to her marriage. He was born and educated in Chicago and for the past three years has been living in this city, where he is associated with Will Hirschberg.

Back Again, After 20 Years!

Remember the beaver hat you used to wear to Sunday school, about twenty years ago, when you were a little girl? And do you remember the plume laden beaver creation your mother used to anchor firmly, with innumerable hatpins, to the masses of her pompadour? It's been years since beaver hats were in style, but they're back now, in a dramatic revival! They're lighter than they used to be, in feeling . . . but they are just as wide-brimmed, just as soft and exquisitely silky as ever! Some are dark brown, others are dyed in fascinating reds, juniper green, soldier blue! They're cut like a pirate's hat, in brave, bold, dashing lines . . . wide, definite, clean-cut lines, gallant and glamorous! And they're flattering beyond words!

Pinching Visitors Convince Myrna Loy They Should Be Banned From the Sets

By Sheila Graham.
HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 29.—Myrna Loy almost jumped a foot into the air when a lady visitor on her set suddenly grabbed her arm, pinched it black and blue, and then explained, "Oh, I just wanted to touch you!" No wonder the studios are getting together to ban visitors to the sets. There are more of them this year than ever.

Here's the sort of thing that has been happening lately: Clark Gable's picture, "Comrade X," drew such a large crowd the other day that shooting had to be suspended for two hours while the set was cleared to make way for the actors. And the Norma Shearer picture "Escape" charged Metro's publicity department $1,800 for alleged time wasted due to visitors chattering on the set. One of them pocketed a cigarette case used by Taylor in the picture—as a souvenir. But it had already appeared in several shots, and was wanted for another. And the production was held up while they searched the town for one like it! Greta Garbo's boy friend, Gaylord Hauser, induced Lady Mendl to take the carrot cure. But I saw the lady at Chasen's the other evening, and she said to the waiter, "I want nothing but a steak. I'm sick to death of vegetables" . . . A guard is posted outside the sound stage where Paulette Goddard is working—to save her from further writs issued by her father. Papa is still insisting on $150 a week from Paulette instead of the $75 she is now paying him. I think Paulette has more than fulfilled her daughterly duty with the $75 weekly. Don't you?

Leslie Howard is coming back to Hollywood—with the sole object of earning money to turn over to Red Cross and British relief funds. His wife will stay in England, where Leslie's son is in the mine-sweeping department. . . . Richard Greene is returning to Canada, and this time will stay there until he is called for service. . . . Vice Mature, handsome lad from Louisville, is the newest and most sought after beau in Hollywood. He is now dividing his spare time with Lana Turner and Mrs. Jock Whitney—with the edge going to Lana. "She's learned her lesson," he tells me at the RKO studio, where Victor is lead to Anna Neagle in "No, No, Nanette." He means that Lana will never again rush into matrimony until she knows the man better than she did Artie Shaw, with whom she eloped after one date.

Fall Colors Introduced At Breakfast

By Lillian Mae.

Things have a way of happening in New York. Imagine being invited to a fashion breakfast. At a very formal breakfast in New York the other day the Color Affiliates, a group of foremost fashionists, introduced their new fall colors at such a breakfast party. Their six new tones are subtle and subdued, taking their inspiration from natural, outdoor coloring: bark brown, subdued and handsome; Juniper green, deep and foresty; Indian summer, ripe russet; huckleberry, frosty purple; nightflight blue, and Scarecrow Grey, a very dark shade.

Naturally, the cosmeticians wouldn't let the fashionists get away with introducing their new colors without having ready to complement them, cosmetic make-ups in blending shades.

One in particular, has a most gorgeous make-up ensemble composed of lipstick, cream rouge, nail polish and eye shadow—very definite in character and dramatic in effect.

A rich, red russet, the lipstick, rouge and nail polish are tuned to fall as a season, and to the brilliant new idea of matched costumes and accessories.

You see, the cosmetic designers are always alert to what is about to happen in the fashion world. They obtain swashes of new fabrics and colors as soon as the fashion and color designers perfect them, and go to work experimenting and perfecting their own products so that when there is a fashion show or exhibition of what's newest in costumes, they will have ready their complementary make-ups.

This one is so new and so different that I'm sure you'll enjoy experimenting with it and your new fall outfit. And according to calendar, it won't be long until you are wearing huckleberry, juniper green, soldier boy blue, bark brown or Indian earth.

To look "just right" in the new costume ensemble, you'll want to have a blending make-up ensemble. So you'd better get busy now. Phone me for the name of this new, dramatic make-up and see it today at your favorite toilet goods department. Write me if you do not live in Atlanta, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

A harmony box containing the nail polish, lipstick and rouge may be had for $3.75—that's cheaper than you could assemble your own set.

Parents Are Unable To Cope With Son's Selfish Attitude

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:
Our only son is the biggest problem we have and we don't know what is the best thing to do. He is 19, has a job several miles away from home, and earns seven dollars a week. His father works hard on the farm and I do all our work, including washing and ironing of clothes and bed linen. We have practically no cash and yet our son refuses to give us even a small part of his wages. Week-ends he lies in bed and reads when he should be helping his father and me. He's rude to us and when we tell him that we will not put up with his goings on he says: "What can you do about it?" Now shouldn't he be willing to help us work and divide his wages with us too?

A DISCOURAGED MOTHER.
ANSWER:
Of course the son should share the work and share his wages and be respectful to his parents to boot. But my dear woman, he doesn't see it this way because you, his parents, indulged him, pampered and spoiled him when he was a little fellow and now that he is grown, he continues as you started him off. That's cold comfort, I know. But it is the only possible explanation of your son's selfishness and inconsideration of you.

Under these circumstances a pair of parents must do one or two things, let matters rock along while they try to reason with the boy and show him what a mean advantage he's taking of his best friends; or tell him he will have to find a boarding place and stretch his one dollar per, to feed, sleep, clothe and amuse himself. Living at home with no personal expense he has no idea what this will mean. He should be learning.

At 19 a boy may be saved from utter ruin by coming to grips with some of the stark realities of life; namely, that a man doesn't deadbeat on his parents, that board and keep aren't free for the asking anywhere, at any time; that the world is utterly contemptuous of a man who won't work and pay his way. Unfortunately, too, loving, too-indignant parents frequently keep their children from coming to grips with stark realities, until it's too late for them to learn the lessons.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.
Swim Word Banned.
Because of the American cancellation of a Japan-U. S. swimming meet which was to have been held in Tokyo this summer, the Affiliation of Swimming Associations voted to expunge the English word "crawl," described as a style of swimming, from the Japanese vocabulary. The word "hayaoyagi," which means fast swimming, was substituted.

Man Cured After Long Illness Lauds Doctor for Advising Treatment

By Dr. William Brady.

Midwest reader making the circle tour reports from his stopover spot on the coast an instructive experience with blind piles. Thirty years ago I had what was called typhoid fever and apparently recovered fully. Some years later I began having dizzy spells and headaches. My appendix was removed and later my gall bladder. Blood tests at various times gave no clue to the cause of my headaches. Doctors could find no cause or remedy.

Then about five years ago, after one of my occasional intestinal infections (so-called) the blood test showed undulant fever. I've had several serum treatments with severe reaction at first, also several sulfanilamide treatments with mild reaction. But headaches continue every six days or so, as before. Recently my doctor said: "I wonder if what you thought was typhoid 30 years ago was not undulant fever instead."

To make sure, I took a typhoid serum treatment and had a severe reaction. The doctor thinks that is further evidence that I have had undulant fever for 30 years.

Whatever it is, my trouble incapacitates me more or less, but can do light work. Last winter I began having lame back, could do almost no work, and of course laid it to my pet undulant fever. Then came an article of yours pointing out that internal or "blind" piles sometimes are the cause of "lame back," "sciatica" or "lumbago." I showed it to my doctor, and on examination with speculum he found several fairly large hemorrhoids. He sent me to a specialist in —, who charged $10 for an examination same as my own doctor made for $3. The specialist said he would fix me up for $150 plus incidentals. (Hum, incidentals seem to complicate the case in various ways.)

Back to my own doctor and offered to be his first guinea pig if he would try your injection treatment.

(It is not my injection treatment. I merely recommend it as the method of choice for intelligent folk today.)

He agreed and cured me with four treatments, for $40. I haven't had a stitch or crick in my back since. I owe you at least this testimonial and a "Thank you."

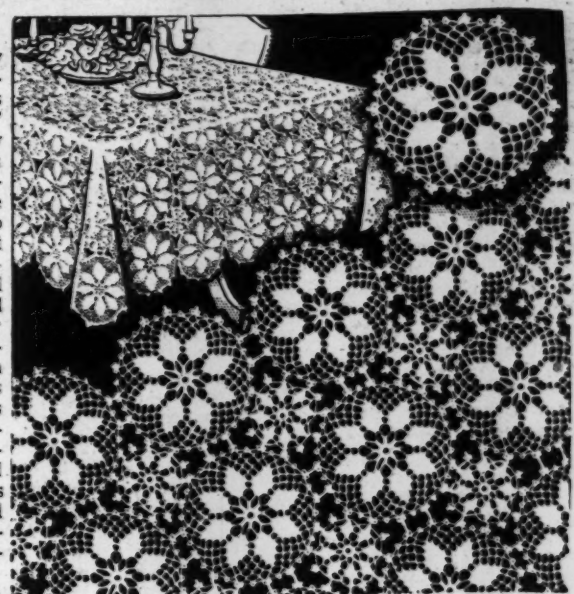

(End of story. Not that the hemorrhoids had anything to do with the 30 years of ill health the reader describes, but certainly internal hemorrhoids, which the patient may scarcely know are present, often are responsible for obstinate humbug. If you know what I mean. Likewise internal, silent or "blind" piles are really all that ails many a woman who imagines she has, and takes unnecessary remedies or treatment for "displacement" of other gynecologic ailment. It should be remembered that internal hemorrhoids are, as a rule, painless unless they happen to become strangulated and prolapse or "come down," as the patient exclaims a doctor diagnose internal presses it. Only in visual examination, can a doctor diagnose internal hemorrhoids.)

MY DAY: The Talk Against Mobilization

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY.—Last evening I spent a most interesting time talking with a group of people who are closely following world and domestic events from day to day. One man said something which seemed to me very extraordinary, and yet I have heard it said by many people. I begin to wonder if it is one of the things that come partly from our background, which has given us a sense of isolation from the world, or whether it is a thought being subtly suggested to us by people who would like to confuse our thinking.

The statement runs something like this: "There is much talk today about the need for mobilization, but I have never heard stated, to my satisfaction, what we are mobilizing against."

It seems very clear to me that we are mobilizing against a force represented by Germany, Italy and Japan, a force which believes in the domination by the state of the individual; allows for no personal liberties or preferences; tells the individual what religion to practice and sets the state up as a religion.

This force orders the daily way of life for everyone, and when it decides to go to war, sacrifices human beings with apparent indifference. Under this system the production of human beings becomes after all a business like any other, ordered by the government, so the sacrifice of human lives is just a matter of judgment whether the objectives to be attained are worth what you have to pay for them, and you calculate as coldly about human lives as you do about other war materials.

That is the force and the system; yes, the philosophy, that we are mobilizing against. From the economic and moral standpoint, he who runs may read the necessity of this mobilization. The military needs may not be quite so clear to all of us, but I have a feeling that, with the background of what we have seen happen to other nations, there is one thing which every mother can think about.

The bully rarely attacks where he thinks he is going to be beaten. We women want peace, we do not wish to see our sons go to war. I believe our greatest safety lies in having our nation ready. The men must be trained to the highest efficiency, and so well equipped with all the modern mechanisms of war that the strongest among the powers of the world will think the price too high.

There is undoubtedly need for discussion as to just what type and degree of military preparation we shall have, and how we should achieve it. But we should not let any idea get abroad that we do not understand what we are mobilizing for, and, above all, it must be clear that we are ready and willing to mobilize.

The bride was given in marriage by her cousin, Dr. Albert Charles Jackson, of Jasper, Ala. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Solon Couch. Her handsome gown of magnolia satin was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline outlined with seed pearls and leg-of-mutton sleeves edged with pearls. The bouffant skirt extended to form a court train. Her tulle veil was caught to her hair by a coronet of pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of orchids, valley lilies and swainsona. Her only ornament was a cameo pin which was a gift of her father to her mother on the occasion of their first wedding anniversary.

After the ceremony Mrs. Jessie Lee Jackson, mother of the bride, entertained at a reception at her home on Johnson road for the wedding party and out-of-town guests. Mrs. Jackson received her guests wearing a dress of ash: of roses lace and a shoulder spray of roses and sweet peas. Mrs. Daniel Jefferson Guy chose for her son's wedding a gown of blue lace. Adorning her shoulder was a cluster of pink roses and sweet peas.

Centering the lace-covered table was a tiered wedding cake which was flanked on either side by silver candelabra holding gleaming white tapers. The home was artistically decorated throughout with silver owls containing arrangements of white dahlias, white gladioli and gypsophila.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. A. C. Jackson and Misses Betty Jean Wilson, Jean Belton and Jacquelyn Jackson, all cousins of the bride.

Mr. Guy chose for traveling a soldier blue tissue wool costume suit and matching accessories. Adorning her shoulder was a spray of orchids. After a wedding trip to New Orleans, the couple will reside at 1630 Johnson road.

Out-of-town guests were Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Jackson, Jasper, Ala.; Dr. and Mrs. L. N. Duncan, Auburn, Ala.; Miss Louise Jeanes, Milledgeville; Mrs. Hortense Vaughn, Jackson, Miss.; Miss Belton Jackson, Jasper, Ala.; Miss Jacquelyn Jackson, Jasper; Miss Betty Jean Wilson, Florence, Ala.; Mrs. Louise B. Wilson, Florence, Ala.; Mrs. R. A. Fennimore, Summitville, Ind., and Miss Jennie Fennimore.

Parties To Honor Florida Visitors

Two of the city's loveliest visitors are Misses Alice Palmer and Nadia Barnette, of Jacksonville, Fla., who are visiting Miss Margaret L'Engle, popular bride-elect, at her home in Ansley Park.

Among a series of parties planned in honor of the duo is the luncheon at which Miss Hazel Hardin, of Forsyth, will be hostess tomorrow at the Piedmont Driving Club, covers to be laid for 12 guests.

Miss Olive Bell Davis entertained at a luncheon last Wednesday at a downtown hotel for the visitors, which was among the interesting affairs of the week.

The initial party planned in compliment to Miss L'Engle, whose marriage to Nathaniel Hardin, of Forsyth, will be a brilliant event of the fall season, is the luncheon at which Miss Mary McGaughey will be hostess on September 7 at her home on Habersham road. Sharing honors will be those attractive brides-elect, Misses Elizabeth Colley and Jean Oliver.

The Old Nazi Way

Berlin now is accusing England of bombing Ireland to furnish the pretext for an occupation of the Emerald Isle. Three girls were killed in Ireland this week by bombs dropped from a swastika-marked bomber. The Irish officially identified the ship as German.

The very fact of the German accusation of England should redouble the guard of the Irish and the British against an attempt on the part of Germany to invade Ireland. It is the pattern of all Nazi invasions, now worn a trifle threadbare, but nevertheless apparently still in use.

The government of Eire cannot be envied in its situation today. Officially neutral, yet surrounded by operations of warring powers, incidents are bound to pile up in the months to come which will test that neutrality to the breaking point. The greatest degree of safety could be obtained by permitting establishment of British defense positions in Eire, yet such an admission of British soldiers inevitably would result in civil warfare. On the other hand, the danger of a German occupation, which could scarcely be resisted without aid from England, is very real. The reality is punctuated by the charge of the German government against the bombing of Irish civilians.

Ireland is the last neutral of western Europe. How long that neutrality can last is a serious question, both for the Irish and for the British.

Rabies on Decline

Increasing knowledge on the proper care of dogs is reflected in the astonishing statement that rabies, in Atlanta, decreased 75 per cent for July, as compared to the same month one year ago.

This figure, however, is not exactly accurate. For it is based on the number of "mad dog" bites suffered by Atlantans and it is well known to all doctors that by no means all bites by "mad dogs" develop into rabies. In fact, many so-called "mad" dogs are actually not even infected with rabies. It is so easy for people to brand a "mad" dog which may be suffering from any one of several other temporary conditions.

However, it is extremely interesting to note that out of 62 dogs declared rabid after examination at the state laboratory, only two had been inoculated. No stronger evidence of the value of anti-rabies inoculation could be given.

Atlanta's dog population is given as approximately 32,000. The vast majority of these animals are well cared for by their proud owners, though there are too many strays, unlicensed, who roam the streets and alleys until picked up by the city authorities or the Humane Society.

There are, it is said, some 6,000 dogs in the city which are not given the annual inoculation against rabies. It is these which are a menace to human health and life. The owner of a dog who fails to have his animal inoculated is perpetrating a serious injustice to his neighborhood and to the entire city.

No one who has ever owned a good dog but would extend to it the best of care. That is, to one with ordinary concepts of decency. And those few who would not properly care for a dog, don't deserve to have one.

Is It Logical?

Most of the so-called "isolationists" express themselves as willing to attempt to defend the entire western hemisphere, the two continents of North and South America, against any attack by an outside power. Yet, when the issue of aiding Britain in her struggle with the Nazi force is placed before them, they raise their hands in horror and piously declare this nation "must not become involved in European war."

As a matter of fact, that attitude is utterly illogical. For, on racial, cultural, idealistic and geographic grounds, Britain is far closer to the United States than are most of the nations of Latin America.

On mere geographic grounds, it would be far easier, and more logical, to send aid to Britain than it would be to send aid, or men, to the greater part of South America. The distance from the port of New York to the port of London is 3,341 miles. To Liverpool it is 3,107 miles.

To Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, the distance from New York is 4,770 miles. To Buenos Aires, Argentina, the distance is 6,004 miles. To Valparaiso, Chile, it is 4,633 miles and to Montevideo it is 6,111.

Racially, the peoples of Latin America are even further removed from the vast bulk of Americans. They are, mainly, of Spanish or Portuguese descent, or of native, Indian stock. Their language is not the same as ours, the majority of the educated speaking Portuguese or Spanish.

The United States inherited its principles of justice and court procedure from the common law of England. The literature of both nations, the United States and Britain, is the common heritage of both. And in government, in the ideals of human society for which both stand, there are no two nations in the world so much alike.

Both believe in the rights of the common man, both believe in government only by consent of the governed and both give themselves, passionately, to the faith that individual human liberty is the one thing worth fighting for, worth dying for and worth living for.

Today, Britain stands, almost alone, offering herself as a living bulwark against a hated flood of totalitarian force which, if the bulwark falls, bids fair to engulf all the world, our own country included.

The sympathies of this nation are, practically unanimously, with Britain in the struggle of democracy against dictatorship. Great aid, in the form of munitions and implements of war, is flowing from the ports of the United States, to beleaguered Britain.

Who can doubt that the heart of this country and the practical interests of this country are far more deeply involved in the fate of Britain, the country from which we first sprang, whose language we speak and whose ideals of liberty and human conduct we still cherish, than they could ever be in the fate of some nation of totally different racial stock, of different tongue and twice as far away.

CHANNEL DEFENSE

(From The Dallas Morning News.)

The successful passage through the English channel of a mile-long British convoy last Thursday is accepted as highly significant by military observers. To the uninitiated into modern military technique, it would seem to be. Obviously, the Germans must not attempt a crossing of the channel until they have absolute control. Obviously, again, they do not hold anything like complete control of the channel when a convoy can sail through it unharmed in fair weather.

After the appalling blitzkrieg by which Hitler swept France to its destruction, there was a wave of pessimism regarding the present-day utility of the channel as a defense barrier. "It will be nothing against Hitler's military machine," said some of the experts. It now appears that the counter-swing of pessimism went too far. Napoleon's "wet ditch" is still a little boggy, at least.

Hitler's new machine of destruction consists primarily of airplane and tank. While the airplane is peculiarly adapted to striking across the channel, the tank is just as peculiarly not adapted to this undertaking. And it was not the airplane or the tank alone that crushed France, but co-ordination between the two. Assuming that Hitler might put his tanks across the channel in a great thrust, there remains the question of how he might get them back on the safe side if things did not go well. Great Britain has not brought the full force of its mighty fleet to bear upon the channel as yet. It would do so if Hitler should land an army on British soil. Failure of the Germans to maintain their life line would be disastrous.

It is a wide Rubicon that Hitler looks across, even at its narrowest between Calais and Dover, and he undoubtedly hesitates to cross it. His recent offer of peace indicated as much. With both British and American industry turning out increasing numbers of airplanes, Hitler must cross the channel in a short time or not at all. Already he is behind his schedule for arrival in London.

THE LIFE OF A CANDIDATE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Wendell L. Willkie now knows full well the lot of a presidential candidate. It is not a happy one. It is not a life of ease and comfort. It is a life of constant struggle, of constant battle, of constant sacrifice. Willkie has been beset by squabbles within the Republican organization, by petty jealousies and by the coolness of the old-line Republican leaders. Many of his difficulties were composed some weeks ago, but the main purpose of Willkie's recent trip to New York was to complete the job.

Anyone old enough to vote could have guessed that Willkie would have trouble. He was a former Democrat and independent, unloved by the Republican leaders who fought his nomination. He had new ideas on politics and political campaigning, and he was his own boss. He was determined that two of his "fellow amateurs," Russell Davenport and Oren Root Jr., should be rewarded with important positions in the campaign. Both Davenport and Root are able persons but neither talks the language of the politician.

Willkie was equally determined that John Hamilton and his good friend, Joseph Pew, the Pennsylvania organization leader, should no longer dominate the Republican national committee. He wanted Republicans with new ideas, such as Joseph Martin and Harold Stassen. And Willkie was heretical in his belief that he could follow his convictions, support some of the Roosevelt policies, and gamble his chance of election on the independent voters, many of them Democrats, who supported the President in 1932 and 1936.

A Republican presidential candidate with such thoughts could not help but have difficulties, even if, by strange chance, he could avoid the ordinary jealousies of a campaign. Willkie's harassment started with his nomination, and has been with him ever since. Luckily for his peace of mind, his New York trip seems to have been fruitful. Nevertheless, a few of the happenings of the campaign to date should be set down as examples of the trials of a candidate.

WHO TALKS TO WHOM?

Willkie and his running mate, Senator Charles L. McNary, now get along extremely well. They frequently consult each other by telephone. They were in complete agreement on Willkie's stand on conscription. And they plan a long talk soon on the Republican farm program. Yet some time ago McNary was irritated because Willkie failed to consult him more often, particularly on agriculture. McNary had some misgivings on Willkie's endorsement of the AAA, and he felt the Republican candidate should not have spoken so quickly.

Friends of Senator Robert A. Taft, who was Willkie's leading opponent at Philadelphia, were also slightly miffed at the recognition they had received in the campaign. Senator Taft had sent Willkie a telegram and a long personal letter of congratulations, and by a queer mischance Willkie never saw them and they went unanswered. The Taft people have been mollified by Willkie's selection of John Hollister, one of Taft's campaign managers, to act as liaison between Oren Root's associated Willkie clubs and the regular Republican organization.

The Root clubs, the regular Republican organization and the new group of "Democrats for Willkie," headed by former Undersecretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes, have been bickering almost continually since the campaign started. Willkie spent a great deal of his time in New York composing these differences. He has asked Governor Stassen to carry on this social influence, particularly within the Republican national committee, where John Martin, the new chairman, and Hamilton have not gotten along very well.

Davenport, who quit a high-salaried job to devote himself to the cause, remains one of Willkie's closest friends, even though he has annoyed several Republican leaders. Davenport, like Willkie, is a great believer of the need for attracting the independent voter, and he has been taken to task for this heresy by prominent Republican leaders. Davenport's stock reply, which is naturally most annoying to a stalwart, is that the 16,000,000 Republicans who voted for London have "no place to go" except to Willkie. While Davenport may be more tactful in the future, he has yet to lose any of his power.

TRUE CONVICTIONS Willkie has spent a great deal of time reconciling different factions, but he has refused to compromise on one point, on which he is being subjected to the greatest pressure. He is adamant in his support of his refusal to take help from racially intolerant groups. Enough people have told him that he is committing political suicide to make him almost believe it, and it is to his credit that he adheres to his convictions.

Those Who Benefit.

Since America began to wake up—the process is not yet complete—to the terrible danger that will face this nation and this hemisphere if Britain goes down before Nazi savagery, there have been many attempts by lesser or greater authorities, and political subdivisions, to form organizations that might be of help in case of emergency.

There is a group, for instance, now forming to arrange for the best uses of Georgia industry in event of national emergency. There is not only a state defense council, but scarcely a county so behind that hasn't its own council, or committee, on defense.

A most charming lady called on this office the other day. She introduced herself as chairman of the Business Women's Defense Committee of the local Business and Professional Women's Club. It is her duty to induce all members of the club to join her committee and volunteer to serve, for defense, in any capacity assigned, should the need come. Some of her members haven't yet come forward, and she thought for a little publicity, in this column, would help. I hope it does and here it is.

But, to many of us, there must have come the thought that all these worthy, though sometimes confused, efforts to raise to a looming emergency are rather useless and wasted effort.

Nothing could be further from the truth. They are of value, tremendous value.

Wherein They Aid.

Even though they accomplish nothing else, they are of immeasurable value in increasing the true patriotism and sense of national duty of their own participants. No man or woman can belong to a local state-wide committee on defense without learning to think more seriously than ever before of his own obligations as a citizen. It is teaching by practice in the only true form of patriotism, that which is eager to give instead of to take. It is spreading the essential spirit of "what can I do for my nation" in place of the weakling's wail of "what can I wheedle for myself out of my government."

The men and women who take part in the deliberations or efforts of these committees will themselves be better Americans thereby. Which is sufficient, more than sufficient, reason for their being, even though their surface results may not appear extremely extensive.

A Story From London.

Those of you who listen regularly to the short-wave broadcasts from London may skip this item. That is, if you listened in to the 7:30 program of "London Calling" last Tuesday night. But this little story, told by J. B.

Priestley that night, is too good not to spread abroad.

Priestley said he left his home on the outskirts of London just after the "all clear" signal had sounded after a German air raid. He had to go to the city. On his way he passed the spot where a German bomb had fallen.

The only damage done was an extensive hole, a crater, in a piece of wasteland, and a number of windows, near by, smashed by the concussion.

A Cockney A. R. P. warden was busy sweeping the broken glass off the street, though the dust of the explosion had scarcely settled. As Priestley passed, the Cockney looked up from his sweeping and said:

"Just 'tler's 'ousemaid, that's me, guv'nor."

Sense of Humor.

I hope all those who have believed that ancient calumny against the English that they have no sense of humor are watching and listening to what is going on in England today. If they are, they must be eating their words of the past.

For, if Englishmen and women didn't have a real sense of humor, how could they bear up, in the spirit they are displaying, under these nightly visitations from enemy bombers?

The story of a London bus driver who led his passengers to an air raid shelter and then played his mouth organ while they danced, is typical.

And the farmer whose home was wrecked, who saved, in this order, his wife, his mother-in-law, a bottle of champagne, his pigs and his cows, must have had some quirk of humor in him. Else why the champagne? On a farm, too.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Monday, August 30, 1915: "Washington, August 29.—President Wilson announced today he would remain in Washington until the situation between the United States and Germany is cleared up."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Saturday, August 30, 1890: "A son of Mr. J. D. Hulme, of Elbert county, is thirteen years of age and is six feet four inches in height. He is also a well-proportioned man."

Bandit Hut Burned.

Bush fires recently destroyed the hut on Faithful's Creek Station, in which Australia's Dick Turpin, Ned Kelly, imprisoned the people of Euroa when he robbed the bank there. The capture of Kelly, clad in body armor made from plowshares, after a pitched battle with the police, was the most sensational incident in Australian crime, according to Melbourne officials.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

French NEW YORK, Aug. 29.

The instinct to kick a Jew for every broken shoelace or hair in the soup is now taking command of the French government, and the turn to anti-Semitism prompts some recollections for the sake of honesty in the record. The Germans under Hitler were told that the Jew was the cause of their disaster, when the fact was that they had come apart politically, had quit cold in the field the minute the Jew finally turned against them and had been defeated by the most German German of them all, Kaiser Wilhelm, who ran away. Their trouble was mostly humiliation, and finally they took it out on their half-million Jews on Hitler's promise that once these people were totally eliminated from German life all would be well. The Jews were eliminated, but Hitler, nevertheless, led the Germans on to war, and for the war, which began with a German invasion of a Catholic country, he now blamed not Jewish Bolshevism, the original bane, but Jewish capitalism and the plutocratic countries.

The French will have to work out their own problem, but they insult the facts and the intelligence of all who saw anything of France in the last 20 years if they attempt to ignore their own dishonesty and corruption among the causes of the fall.

This was not Jewish dishonesty and corruption but a native French trait. There was not another nation on earth in which graft had become such a robust institution, although Americans, in gloomy moments, may think that our own country deserves at least a draw in the comparison.

Everybody Grafted.

In France, roughly speaking, everybody grafted. Their journalism was a mixture of harlotry and treason in the front office, and their reporters were we-boys and moochers. Their servants received a graft—which was condoned, perforce—on every article of food that came into a Frenchman's house, and the concierge, or janitor, was a privileged brigand or racketeer and a stool-pigeon for the police.

To do any business in a straightforward or honest manner was to be naive and a sucker, and every Frenchman who put his chalkmark on a deal on its way through the works felt that he was entitled to a commission, or kickback, and usually got it. Even in their biggest and best hotels the traveler had to check his possessions against pilferage and examine the bill with care, lest the French multipliers, instead of adding them, chisel-ing was a national custom.

Paris during this time achieved a worldwide reputation as one great honky-tonk or joint to which the people of other nations flocked to get drunk and otherwise misbehave, secure in the knowledge that because the French were so broadminded, everything they did would be off the record. Americans far outnumbered all the others during most of this period, and in the boom years of prohibition the transatlantic ferries were grooves in the sea taking them over for the drinking and back for fresh money!

Share The Blame.

The Americans certainly contributed nothing to the moral tone of Paris, and their conduct was not endeavoring, but a nation which permits its capital city to become known abroad for licentiousness and little else certainly shares the blame. It is impossible to imagine the people of this country permitting Washington to become so known to the world.

What were the wares that Paris offered the tourist but night life, divorces, liquor, perfume, lady-layers and styles, and what opinion did the French expect to establish abroad, and what regard for their own capital at home by their obsession with frivolous and sordid things? Not only was good faith lacking in most of their dealings with suckers who soon would be poured on the boat ramps and probably wouldn't return, but to the detriment of French life the people didn't mind. They seemed to think they were being quaintly French.

It certainly is true that France has paid terribly for her carelessness and generosity in offering asylum to political refugees of all political hues who abused her hospitality by promoting their selfish little conspiracies and dumping their dead weight on a people with problems of their own.

But the French themselves are chiefly to blame for the decay so thoughtlessly but accurately summed up in the drunken yelp of the tourist: "So this is Paris! Where are the naked women?"

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

SHAMPOO FOR A DUCHESS

In the papers the other day I read where the Duchess, wife of the Duke of Windsor, now governor of one of his majesty's islands (and serves him jolly well right, too) was being given a special shampoo.

It consisted, according to the hairdresser, of rum and eggs. I have forgot whether it was six eggs and two quarts of rum or two eggs and six jiggers of rum. That is not really important. The ingredients are rum and eggs.

I have mentioned this to several persons about our shop. Mr. Billy Hines, the city editor, polled the city staff for me; Mr. Sam Cox polled the copy desk and Mr. Johnny Bradberry the sports desk. The consensus was: "It is no way to treat good rum."

The shampooing of the non-royal hair in good, honest rum shocked some of the boys. The eggs did not worry them. There seemed little consideration of the eggs. It did not mention whether the eggs were yard eggs, cold storage eggs or the ubiquitous "country eggs." One assumes they were candied. The report did not say that the best grade of rum was employed.

In the society department I was met with a varied reception. The consensus seemed to be that eggs were something to put on one's hair at the time of a high school initiation. One of the young ladies insisted eggs must be cheaper in Nassau or that the budget could take it.

I asked Miss Martha, who does nails in the barber shop I frequent, and she said she'd take her eggs sunny-side up with bacon, crisp, on the plate and not on her pate.

A BLOW FOR CUBAN LIBERTY The rum at Nassau is very much like the rum at Jamaica. The latter island possession of the empire is a somewhat dreary place, but the "narrows" are pretty and so is the harbor. It is the place where rum originated and also the place where the Planter's punch was invented. The punch, as prepared there, is not a fruity drink. It is a dark-brown drink, after the color of the rum, and contains no fruit at all.

The rum of Nassau ought to be able to do real things for the hair. It is good, stout stuff. It was the Jamaican and Nassau rum of which the pirates used to sing:

"Fifteen men on a dead man's chest,
Yo ho ho, and a bottle of rum.
Drink and the devil have done for the rest,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum."

In those days rum was the drink of men. Whisky was for sissies. Pirates drank rum. Or, mixed with plain water, grog. It was some years later that the American soldiers in Cuba invented the Daiquiri cocktail, having a plenty of rum, limes and sugar and ice. And little else. This was at the town of Daiquiri. They also invented the "Cuba Libre," which is rum and a well-known soft drink and juice of one good lime. In this manner they were able to strike a few blows for Cuban liberty long after the cruel grip of Spain had been loosed from the throat of "The Pearl of the Antilles." The custom prevails to this day and in many a kitchen or drawing room in Atlanta there are those who strike blows for Cuban liberty.

It is a quaint custom. But rarely, if ever, do they pour it in their hair. And then never with eggs.

"RUM AND BACON AND EGGS"

The old sea captain in "Treasure Island" was an ardent believer in rum. It may be recalled that, when he came to the inn, young Jim Hawkins asked him what he might be called.

"What would you call me? You might call me captain. I'm a plain man. Bacon and eggs and rum is what I want, and that point of land for to watch ships off of—"

He was a plain man. And rum, or grog, and bacon and eggs was what he wanted. It was rum which did him in at last—rum and the excitement of the black spot with which they served him. I never once read of any pirate in "Treasure Island" shampooing his hair with eggs and rum.

Well, the Duchess may have her shampoo. Assuredly it is her business and her's alone. It just happens the subject intrigued me. The thought of it is not quite aesthetic—rum and eggs mixed together in one's hair.

The Duchess and her Duke long have given me a slight pain. It is, let me say, very slight, and requires no aspirin. The Duchess, poor thing, is reported bored with Nassau. A great many persons are bored with the Duchess and this proves we are living in the democratic way.

It does seem a poor way to treat rum. And eggs. Even yard eggs. And eggs on the plate do seem more attractive than eggs on the pate.

The Proud Peacock's Gorgeous Tail Is Coveted Only By Other Peacocks

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

A certain rich man who was an old bachelor had two charming nieces whom he loved as much as he was capable of loving anybody. But his chief love was his money. He had worked long and hard to build his fortune and he valued it, as men do, in proportion to the effort it had cost him.

He knew that many people envied him, and the knowledge gave him a sour pleasure. He found pleasure, also, in defeating the designs of chiselers who gathered about him like jackals about the kill of a lion.

His other pleasures were few. He enjoyed the respect of sensible people and the awed servility of others, and he enjoyed the knowledge that no other member of his family had made money. But his digestion wasn't good; he couldn't sleep well; rheumatism bothered him in damp weather; and this combination of infirmities had left him little appetite for pleasures of any kind.

He despised failures and felt superior to the poor, and his way of expressing supreme contempt for a man was to say: "He's got nothing."

His nieces were in that plight. They had married poor boys, like themselves just turned 20, and the two couples shared a three-room apartment to save expenses.

On pay days they went to a movie and ate dinner at a restaurant. It was the only dissipation they could afford.

One spring evening the four young people called on the rich man and found him musing in his library.

As they talked, the old man studied them and thought in his heart: "They are trying to keep on the good side of me. They look a little shabby, and I suppose they have a pretty hard time. Can't blame them for wanting my money. Poverty is pretty tough. Well, let them earn their money as I did. It isn't my fault if they suffer. Decent kids, though. I feel sorry for them."

As the young people left the mansion, one of the nieces drew a deep breath of the cool night air and said: "Isn't life wonderful! It seems unfair for us to be so happy while Uncle Billy gets so little out of life."

Vital Objectives In Britain Not Struck - Bomar

London Proves Humans, Machines Can Take Terrific Aerial Bombing.

By EDWARD BOMAR.

The aerial battle of Britain is obviously in too early a stage to be decisive, but what is known of the results thus far suggests that the defenders are at least holding their own.

Although the immediate Nazi objective is still open to conjecture, if the intent of the day and night attacks launched early this month was to soften the British in short order, there are no signs of its early realization.

On the contrary, a careful reading of official claims and of reports that profess objectivity bolsters the conclusion that primary military objectives thus far have escaped vital damage.

London's docks are still busy with shipping, it appears, even though Britain's once-important Scandinavian trade has disappeared and passenger traffic is at a standstill.

Berlin reports Nazi dive bombers in a surprise attack made a "sea of flames" around the harbor of Portsmouth, the great naval base, and turned a near-by air-drome into a "desert full of craters." It may be recalled, however, that after another recent Nazi raid in apparently greater force American correspondents found work uninterrupted.

Output Sets Record. Of possibly greater significance—accepting the statement at its face value—was the British official assertion, after more than two weeks of Nazi bombing directed particularly at aircraft plants, that the week's output of warplanes set a record.

This war is adding to the testimony of Madrid and Chungking that humans and machines both are able to bear upon under a terrific aerial battering.

Aside from these considerations, the cumulative effects of the confusion, delays and wear on nerves must be appalling in a crowded industrial nation.

A dispatch reports the night shift in a British factory had taken to shelter in Thursday night's raid when an incendiary bomb struck its building. Although the blaze was reported quickly under control, every alarm that halts work lessens production and the loss of time of this single unidentified factory must be multiplied by the thousands as the day and night raids continue.

Such losses and wear on nerves must be widespread in Germany as well as Britain. Insomnia is a two-edged weapon. Berlin as well as London is being bombed. The British told their foes in a propaganda leaflet that they had dropped 37,000 missiles in a month to 7,000 that fell on England. Sleep and munitions production have been interfered with repeatedly in such distant enemy industrial centers as Italy's Turin.

Grimmer Ordeals. British gratification over the situation to date and pride in the exploits of the Royal Air Force must, nevertheless, be tinged with the constant realization that still grimmer ordeals are in prospect.

The most expert neutral judgment is that the Nazis raids thus far have been preliminary in nature. Their prime immediate objective appears to be to whittle down the R. A. F. by destruction of planes and air fields, while interfering with replacements, hampering the output of munitions and sapping morale if possible.

The German Luftwaffe, airmen understand, has five fleets, each of about 1,000 warplanes, facing Britain, and thus is capable at any time of sending over thousands instead of hundreds of raiders.

In the foreground of further possibilities is the threat to use incendiary weapons such as thermite bombs on a scale never before seen. And in the background is the threat of an attempt at invasion.

Large Majority of Young Men Willing to Serve In Army as Public Backs Senate Draft Measure

Would Welcome Physical Training and Discipline, They Say.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 29.—With the Burke-Wadsworth draft already passed by the senate, a question of vital importance is how the young men of draft age will take to the idea of spending a year in the army or navy if the bill is finally adopted.

Will they look forward to the new experience with misgiving, or will they enter into it willingly?

To find the answer to this interesting—and human—question, the institute has interviewed a nation-wide cross-section of young men from whose ranks the draft would presumably draw most heavily. It finds that an overwhelming number say they would have no objection to spending a year in the armed forces, in fact, many of them say they would actually welcome the physical training and discipline.

The Gallup Poll

The study covered two groups—men between the ages 21 through 24 who, because fewer are married or have permanent jobs, would probably be among the first drafted, and men between 16 and 20 who will mature to draft age if the war emergency lasts long enough. To all of them it put the question:

"If the draft law is passed, will you, personally, have any objection to spending a year in some branch of military service?"

The vote is:

Age Group	Would Have No Objection	Would Have an Objection
Men 21-24	68%	32%
Men 16-21	81%	19%

The results clearly show that the younger the men, the more the willingness to serve. As a matter of fact, a similar variation is found in attitude toward the principle of a peacetime draft. Young men 21 through 24 are for the draft by a vote of 63 per cent, while those 16 through 20 are for it by the higher vote of 67 per cent.

The reasons given by the young men for having no objection to spending a year in the armed forces are many and varied. One of the chief ones is that given by a 19-year-old clerk in Maryland: "It would build me up physically and put me on my own for a while." A 17-year-old drug store clerk adds: "Sounds like good training. A year in the army would do me some good." A few actually look up to a year's army service as a sort of holiday. As a 22-year-old engineer puts it: "I have no obligations now and it would be on the order of a vacation for me."

Some regard it as their simple "duty" to their country, while others say, "It might give me a chance to learn a trade." Still others take the attitude expressed by a 21-year-old Iowa farm boy: "If I have to fight, I want to know how."

Those who have some objection to serving are, in order of frequency, objections to support their families and the belief that a year in the army or navy would interfere with their training for careers.

The public as a whole, all age groups and both sexes included, has been polled successively in recent weeks by the Institute of the principle of the peacetime draft, and each time has supported the draft by more than two to one.

In the most recent study, completed this week, a vote was taken on the specific principle of the Burke-Wadsworth bill. The question was:

"Do you favor increasing the size of our army and navy now by drafting men between the ages of 21 and 31 to serve in the armed forces for one year?"

Those with opinions voted:

Response	Percentage
Yes	71%
No	29%

Only one voter in twenty (5 per cent) was undecided or had no opinion.

Wheeler Challenges Gallup, But Recheck Confirms Figure

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, leader of the fight against the draft bill in the senate, challenges the American Institute of Public Opinion's figures reported August 11 showing 64 per cent of the voters in his home state favoring compulsory military training.

The institute has just completed a recheck of Montana, conducting a new survey on conscription in 13 areas which institute statisticians have found to give a representative picture of sentiment throughout the state: Bozeman, Billings, Choteau, Fort Benton, Polson, Dillon, Wolf Point, Red Lodge, Scobey, Great Falls, Forsyth, Hardin and Butte.

The results are virtually identical with those of the earlier poll to which Senator Wheeler took exception. The earlier survey covered the general principle on conscription in the following question:

"Do you think every able-bodied young man 20 years old should be made to serve in the army, the navy, or the air force for one year?" Montana voted as follows:

Response	Percentage
Yes	64%
No	36%

The new survey put to voters the specific issue involved in the Burke-Wadsworth bill. The question was:

"Do you favor increasing the size of our army and navy now by drafting men between the ages of 21 and 31 to serve in the armed forces for one year?" The results were:

Response	Percentage
Yes	62%
No	38%

Approximately one voter in every nine (11 per cent) was undecided or without an opinion.

Real Estate Unit Opposes Bonds For Schools

Other Parts of Issue Favored in Board's Statement.

Expressing its approval of bonds for Grady hospital, Battle Hill and the fire department, the Atlanta Real Estate Board yesterday expressed its opposition to the $1,800,000 bond issue for city schools.

In a statement prepared by the board of directors, the real estate group questioned the statement that school bonds could be retired without taxation, and urged that the school system should retire its own bonds out of its share of city revenue, which amounts to 30 per cent of all tax funds.

The statement by the Real Estate Board follows:

The school board should retire its own bonds instead of imposing its obligations upon the other departments of the city government, since the department already receives 30 per cent of all the revenue coming into the city treasury. The school department has operated for the past two years with an average surplus of approximately $100,000 per year.

In addition to the $200,000 surplus, the school department is due by the state a sum in excess of $300,000. This sum, together with the surplus, should go a long way towards the building program of the city schools. This does not take into consideration considerable savings which could result from a more efficient administration of the school department. In order to pay the $1,800,000 bonds for the schools, it would be necessary for the city to set up a sinking fund of $2,500,000, which would not only pay the school board's indebtedness of $1,800,000, but would give to the school department $700,000 for operating expenses. This does not take into account the interest on the bonds, to which must also be added 30 per cent for operating expenses of the schools.

Everybody is not familiar with the fact that the schools receive 30 per cent of the entire city revenue and in reality their 30 per cent of revenues collected. The Real Estate Board does not feel that the schools should penalize other worthy causes to this extent.

The proponents of the bond issue make the statement that bonds could be liquidated without increased taxation. We are rather skeptical about such statements, since similar statements have been made about so many previous bond issues and have not worked out as promised. The Real Estate Board does not believe that this bond issue in full can be retired without some future increase in taxation.

The city of Atlanta now has outstanding eight different bond issues. One of these bond issues was for public school expansion and the payment of principal and interest was assumed by the school board.

board and they have been paying it as it came due. It is nothing but fair and proper that the school board with its ample income, derived directly by law at 30 per cent of all the city's income, should take care of its own needs, borrow its own money for expansion, and repay all money so borrowed. Figures show that the school department is in position to do this and there is no reason why they should not do so. The school department expenses decrease in the same proportion as the decrease in school population.

The Real Estate Board believes that Grady hospital needs improvements very badly, since the city has no other way to make the necessary improvements to Grady hospital, we feel that the bonds for this purpose should be approved.

The realtors doubt seriously whether the amount designated in the bond issue for Grady hospital is sufficient to give the city of Atlanta the type of charity hospital needed.

We also favor bonds for Battle Hill sanatorium and the fire department.

But reading this article reminded me of a verse in the Bible which we may all ponder. It is in Amos, chapter 4 and verse 12. It reads: "Prepare to meet thy God." It does not say within a year, nor within a month. It says: "Prepare to meet thy God." Who has any guarantee of a year or of a month or of a week? "Today, if ye hear My voice, harden not your heart."

The only man who is prepared to die is the man who is prepared to live, and the only condition of heart that makes us fit to live an hour is that state of heart of which another prophet speaks: "What doth God require of thee but to do justice, love mercy, and walk humbly with thy God." Such condition of heart and life is possible only by implicit faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. He saves us in life and in death, even forever.

"What would you do if you knew you had only one year to live?" asks Mr. Funderburk. My answer would be, live every day of it as unto the Lord, seeking by His grace to discharge my duty to my day and generation by His will. It is not a matter of how long or how short a time we have to live, but rather that long or short as the time may be, we shall seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness.

Two To Hear Another Blow U. S. Cases in At 'Pardoning District Court Racket' Is Seen

Underwood Will Share Duties With Russell on September 9.

First double-barreled session of United States court for the northern district of Georgia convenes September 9 with Judge E. Marvin Underwood hearing the criminal cases and Judge Robert L. Russell the civil.

Judge Russell, son of Georgia's late chief justice and brother of Senator Russell, was recently appointed to the federal bench as additional judge to assist Judge Underwood with the increasingly heavy business of the northern district.

A federal grand jury, convening the same day, is expected to devote itself to run-of-the-mine matters before resuming its investigation into alleged irregularities in the conduct of state affairs. Before adjourning the jury is expected to probe charges that "Bugs" Glover, former supervisor of state convict forces, had a house constructed on his property using state labor and materials.

Cases against ex-Imperial Klan Wizard Hiram Wesley Evans; Clerk of the House of Representatives John Greer Jr., and Highway Purchasing Agent George Blount, are expected to be reached in October. The trio are under federal indictment on misuse of taxpayers' funds in the purchase of material for the Highway Department.

Evans and Greer are charged with conspiring to violate the Sherman anti-trust act and of violating mail fraud statutes in connection with the sale of emulsified asphalt to the Highway Department, while Blount is charged with receiving commissions on sales of American Oil Company products to the department.

Fulton Grand Jury Expected To Make Attack Today.

Another blow at the "pardoning racket" will be struck today when the Fulton grand jury returns its presentments after two months in office, it was understood last night.

Recommendations also will urge combination of the tax receiver's and tax collector's offices—which has been advocated by many jurists in the past, and that legislation be passed allowing installment payment of taxes for the convenience of both the county and the taxpayers.

Dealing only briefly with subjects of general interest, the presentments will be returned this morning before Judge Paul S. Etheridge by George S. Foster, foreman of the July-August jury. Judge A. L. (Jack) Etheridge is to swear in 23 members of the September-October grand jury Tuesday morning. This jury customarily is charged with the duty of investigating all phases of county affairs. Names of 50 citizens have been drawn from the jury box and from this 50 the jury of 23 will be selected in open court. The new jury will organize Tuesday morning before Monday is the Labor Day holiday.

The outgoing jury is expected to reiterate the preceding jury's views concerning the "pardoning racket," it was understood. The jury, headed by Carlyle Fraser in May and June, caustically criticized the Governor for indiscriminate pardoning and recommended a curb to the pardoning power of the Governor.

Women Are Freed, Court Keeps Child

A 32-year-old grandmother and her 18-year-old daughter won their freedom in the civil court of Fulton county yesterday when they departed for North Carolina without their 15-month-old grandson and son.

Dressed in black suits, Mrs. D. A. Atwood, the grandmother, and her daughter, Martha, told Judge Ralph McClelland they had jobs in Fayetteville, N. C., where they could earn enough money to return and get Baby Jerry, whom they abandoned in a Mitchell street hotel Tuesday night.

Judge McClelland said he disapproved of their actions and allowed them to go their way. But little Jerry remained in the care of the Fulton juvenile court authorities.

PECAN CROP GOOD.
EDISON, Ga., Aug. 29.—The pecan crop in this section apparently is better than it has been for years, and prospects are that an unusually large quantity of nuts will be gathered. For the last several years less than half an average crop has been made.

Nazi Specter Hanging Over West Indies

Lesser Antilles Hard Hit by Effects of War Blockade.

For North American Newspaper Alliance.
SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Aug. 29.—From Anegada Passage, between the Virgin Islands, last American outpost in the dark blue waters of the Caribbean, and the solitary lighthouse of Sombrero, standing on a tiny reef at the beginning of a long chain of islands ending at South America, down to the large island of Trinidad, almost touching Venezuela, fate is playing a cruel trick on thousands of natives and their white French, Dutch and British masters who populate the lesser Antilles.

The specter of Nazidom hovers over these blood-stained islands and islets, cradle of pirates in bygone years, but pawns today in the gigantic struggle for world domination. There is a struggle within a struggle there, between former Allies. At Martinique, birthplace of Napoleon's first wife, Josephine De Beauharnais, within gunshot of ancient Fort-De-France lies at anchor the French airplane carrier Bearn, with more than 100 American-made airplanes on board. In the harbor are tied up several French submarines, the last of which was seen going through the Mona Passage, between Santo Domingo and Puerto Rico, two months ago.

Constant Watch.
A little farther north, between Basse Terre and Grande Terre, the twin islands known as Guadeloupe, the French training cruiser Jeanne D'Arc is anchored. Offshore a squadron of British cruisers, drawn from the West Indies forces based at Bermuda, had been keeping constant watch over the former comrades at arms. Before French and British civil and military officials reached a working agreement recently whereby the above-mentioned French ships and the cruiser Emile Bertin will be practically disarmed, the impact of this situation had been felt over all the West Indies.

Martinique's and Guadeloupe's sugar, rum, cocoa and bananas, which formerly enjoyed ready sale in the motherland, are now rotting in warehouses, because the blockade cut them off from France. Planters are suffering and the natives, too, in larger measure. The many steamers that in happier days plied between the West Indian ports and Puerto Rico, Santo Domingo and the United States, rarely call now. The British let provision-laden ships enter Guadeloupe and Martinique, after a contraband-control examination, but these vessels are few and far between.

Two Steamers Leave.
From Santo Domingo only two tiny interisland steamers, of about 600 tons each, now leave, twice a month, for the French islands. From Puerto Rico no surface communication with them is functioning; only the "baby clipper" of Pan American Airways pass through, every Thursday. The planes carry few if any passengers, because the French embassy at Washington, under whose control is the consulate at San Juan, Puerto Rico, has given strict orders that no vessel be given to foreigners, according to Christian Bell, the consul, whose office in the Banco Popular building, the island's tallest building, appears forlorn.

There used to be an active sea traffic from Saint Thomas, in Charlotte Amalie, one of the Virgin Islands (American) and the West Indies Islands—Anguilla, St. Martin (half French, half Dutch), Guadeloupe, Martinique, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, Barbados, the Grenadines, Tobago. The war and the British blockade killed most of the trade. From Puerto Rican harbors and anchorages—Fajardo, Mayaguez, Ponce—a schooner could be hired before, and for perhaps $100 the master would take you down to the French Islands and back. Not so today. Your question brings only a smile, a negative shake of the head and a "No, señor. Impossible."

Social Life Disrupted.
Even San Juan's social life (a story in itself) has been disrupted by the goings-on at Martinique. The French consul, a likable, sun-burnt, medium-sized man in his middle thirties, who speaks excellent English, has not been on good terms with his British colleague, J. H. Noble, a white-haired, kindly, soft-spoken Englishman, nor with the local American press, ever since the collapse of France. He feels that Americans have been unfair in their treatment of the news—a feeling that seems shared by embassy headquarters in Washington. This, perhaps, explains their refusal to admit visitors.

Neither Puerto Rico nor the Virgin Islands have a stake in the situation. Guadeloupe's and Martinique's sugar, cocoa and rum were sold in France. These products could not compete, were they exported to the United States, with those of the American possessions, due, primarily, to the high tariff differential, and, secondly, to the need of creating a distribution system.

Puerto Rican officials in general are sorry to see such a state of affairs near by and hope the situation changes for the best—but the matter does not affect them at all. But it does affect the 304,000 people who live in Basse Terre and Grande Terre in the 250,000 inhabitants of Martinique, represented, altogether, by two senators and four deputies in the French parliament that voted itself out of existence at Vichy. Guadeloupe has been French since 1634 and Martinique since 1635.

Jaycees Nominate Slate of Officers

Cannon and Parks were nominated to succeed Vernon S. Brown, whose term expires October 1. Both nominees have served as associate directors, directors and vice presidents. Parks is 34 and Cannon is 35.

NEW COUNTY NURSE.
DALTON, Ga., Aug. 29.—Miss Aleese Birt has been appointed Whitfield county nurse, succeeding Mrs. Rex Elkins, who is on a leave of absence, it was announced today by Dr. Charles F. Engeling, commissioner of health.

NAVAL RECRUITS.
VALDOSTA, Ga., Aug. 29.—Six naval recruits were enlisted here Tuesday and sent to the naval training station at Norfolk, Va. Both naval and army recruiting stations here report they are handling about as many enlistments as facilities will permit at present.
